The company claims the club is in arrears of rental for over five months, amounting to $2,231.12. The property of the club is valued at $12,000.

HONEYWELL ENTERS RACE

Former Winner to Take Part in Balloon Event.

Capt. H. E. Honeywell, winner of the national balloon races in 1912 and 1920, has entered the national balloon race to be held July 4 at the Speedway. Entries closed on June 15, but Honeywell's letter of application was mailed to Blaine McGrath, promoter of the race, June 14. This makes thirteen entries.

Efforts are being made by McGrath to bring to Indianapolis the largest bombing plane in the world. The plane is now at McCook Field, Dayton, Ohio. It carries 2,100 gallons of gasoline, has six twelve-cylinder motors, and its upper wings are thirty feet from the ground. It has two propellers and carries ten men.

A spectator dropped a match in the street and the fire leaped high. Chemicals quickly used prevented much damage.

In the crash, Harry Goldstein, 16, 838 Maple St., riding with Bornstein, was slightly cut on the knees.

Versatile Chief of Police Proves Jack of All Trades

CHIEF WILLIAM G. BARROWS

CLEVELAND HEIGHTS, Ohio, June 20.—The mottoed phrase about a man being "a jack of all trades and master of none," falls flat when speaking of William G. Barrows.

For he's—
Police chief of Cleveland Heights.
A husband.
A lawyer.
A father.
A licensed exhorter of the Methodist Church.
A band director.
A ranch owner.
A fraternity member.

At the age of 12 Barrows started out as a promising musician in the home town band back in Chardon, Ohio.

Then followed student days at Allegheny College, where he became a Methodist exhorter. Soon afterward he moved to Cleveland.

But Barrows decided practicing law in Ohio would be lucrative and commenced the study. While burning the midnight oil over his books, he earned money waiting table in a hotel dining room. His perseverance was rewarded in 1892, when he was admitted to the Ohio bar.

But law didn't hold him long. In the very year he received his diploma, we find him accepting a job on the Cleveland police force.

"I found it more consistent and lucrative to uphold the law with a club than with my brains," he explains.

Barrows remained in the Cleveland department until 1903. He became a sergeant under Mayor Tom L. Johnson's administration.

In 1903 he went West. There he bought a ranch.

At the time he took his place at the helm of the Cleveland Heights police force, Barrows was a police lieutenant for a steel company. The boyhood love for music still coursed through him and three years ago he organized a forty-piece band.

It is doubtful if any other police chief in the country can claim mastery over so many varied occupations and professions.

That's about all there is to say about him—unless, oh, yes, Chief Barrows is a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity!

Oh! Mr. Officer How Could You?

A SOFT answer turneth away wrath and a traffic cop with a sense of humor soothe the angry feelings of the irate motorist.

She was a sweet young thing, all dolled up in the latest style sport clothes and in a big hurry to get her snappy roadster to the Union Station.

Just as she bore down on the Market and Pennsylvania Sts. intersection the traffic man turned the "Stop" sign against her. She threw on her brakes and skidded out into the middle of the street. Her lips plainly formed an expressive word, whose profanity content was one degree stronger than "damn."

The cop walked over to the car, his face stern and eyes hard. Spectators gathered for the big fall-down scene.

"Young lady," he said, mildly, "I could arrest you for what you are thinking about me," as he sent her on her way.
