LETTER FROM LESLIE PRES. COTT TO LESLIE PRESCOTT, CONTINUED

There is one thing for which I have to thank Jack's mother. I do get so much comfort out of you, dear little Marquise, who only beside myself may hold the key to this secret drawer. I wonder how Mrs. Prescott would fit in her heart to part with this beautiful desk.

Now for a great secret. I have found out that Ruth Ellington's heart has not grown cold. It has merely grown for itself a kind of prickly cocoon, something that will protect its warmth and youth from the knowledge of the world.

Before we had tried on nearly every hat in town and had a most beautiful time, I invited Ruth—I have begun to call her Ruth by this time—to go with me to the smartest tea place in town.

Before we went in, we both dolled ourselves up a little in the ladies' dressing room and I knew the same thought came to each of us as we entered. We were quite the best looking women in the room.

"Society women, Leslie," said Ruth, "always look so bored."

I did not have the heart to tell her that the night before I thought it she was a great beauty.

"If you don't know," she answered

abiguously, "you haven't entered it yet."

"Leslie, I was the gayest girl in my set, always laughing, always dancing and if the truth must be known, always coqueting more or less. That was the girl my husband, Harry Ellington, fell in love with and married."

"I could not help wondering just what made her appear so differently when her husband was with her.

"Perhaps," she continued, "it is because most women who are rich enough to lunch and tea at a place like this are society women, that men always seem to think we are bored with each other. Always one feels rather sorry when one sees a group of women dining without a man and one has no such ideas about a group of men. And yet I feel today that women can enjoy each other and do enjoy each other more than men enjoy each other."

"It is correct for a man to fight for a girl first. But that is another thing a girl of your age need not worry about.

"Summer Bride

Miss Lee, 1. For a wedding in July or August, what will be better, a blue tailored suit or a dark blue dress?

2. Should the bride wear a hat when married?

3. What kind and color of dress should the bride wear?

4. Should the bride wear a newly married couple visit first?

5. Should the bride never have her husband's parents?

6. What is the best color for a bride?

7. Do all married women have to be made over?"

"If you don't know," she answered

abiguously, "you haven't entered it yet."

"Leslie, I was the gayest girl in my set, always laughing, always dancing and if the truth must be known, always coqueting more or less. That was the girl my husband, Harry Ellington, fell in love with and married."

"Immediately he started to make me over. The first thing he found out was that I smiled too much. A woman who is always laughing when she talks with other men is apt to be misunderstood," he said.

"Then he insisted that his wife should not dance the new dances with other men and, as he did not care very much about dancing himself, I found myself sitting on the sidelines with the dowagers and women old enough to be my mother."

"I have almost ceased to go out with the young people that I used to go with and the tragedy of it all is that Harry doesn't like me at all, now that I am made over. Yet he doesn't know why he doesn't like me. He makes all sorts of excuses to go out without me."

"He wants the same joyous irresponsible fun that we used to have together, the joy he will not let me give him. So he goes to some other girl to get it, never dreaming that perhaps there might be some man just over there in the offing who might tell me that he would rather love me in his arms than worship me on a pedestal."

M. E. TRUSTEES TO MEET

Site of New Children's Home Will Be Considered.

Martha Lee Her Column

Husband Neglectful

Dear Miss Lee: I am a married woman of 31. My husband is 43. We have been married twelve years and have a boy 10 months old. My husband gives me but he loves me. He loves the baby and me. But he goes fishing every Sunday, rain or shine. And goes to work every night and stays until 9:30 and 10 o'clock. We have a nice little home. Whenever I say anything to my husband about spending some time at home, he just says, "I'm sorry we are sorry for afterward."

He does not go with other women. He tries to go to have a good time, but whenever I go I am tired out and worried with baby. Can you please help me to do something so that my husband will come with his family? I don't mind his going fishing and I don't care if he goes to town, if he would come home earlier. I am very much in love with him and don't want to be fusing all the time. LONESOME HOUSEWIFE.

Fussing will do no good. The only thing to do is to make your home and yourself so attractive that your husband will want to be with you more. Put on your most becoming clothes and most charming air to greet him in the evening. Have house slippers and a comfortable chair and his paper ready for him, after a wholesome meal. Don't bother him with details of housework, but if he wants to talk, get him to tell you things that interest him.

As your son grows up, your husband probably will want to be home with him more.

Wait Awhile

Dear Miss Lee: 1. We are two girls, 15 years old. We are chums. We met a couple of young fellows that other night. They are not the kind we are interested in for a date. We made dates for Sunday afternoon, but if you say we are too young, we will not go. Do you think we are too young to have dates with boys of 18? Do you think we are too young for chums to go riding with boys in the early afternoon?

4. Is it proper for boys to take girls to ball games on Sunday evening?

MILLIE AND BILLIE. 1. Girls your age are better off with no "dates." However, if your parents do not object, you might let the boys come to see you at home. But don't do this often.

2. It would be better for you to limit your boy friends to those nearer your own age.

3. Street car or automobile? This is another question for your parents to decide. I am afraid you are thinking too much of boys.

4. Even though you have no religious scruples against sports on Sunday, you are young to make a practice of going to games with boys.

Not Jealousy

Dear Miss Lee: 1. I am 19 years old. My mother is very good to me, but my father is jealous. What shall I do to prevent this jealous disposition? I don't run around with fellas, but I like certain ones very much. He lives many states from here and is very wealthy. Do you think it is wrong for me to love him? Sometimes I feel like taking poison, but then I build castles above the hills because he is right. It is right for a girl to write to a fellow first, or a boy to a girl?

2. Of course, our father is not jealous. Perhaps he seems harsh, just because he is trying to prevent your doing anything you would regret later.

Don't be so eager to grow up.

Betty, Love will come to you later, but don't imagine it has come now. It is all right to build air castles, but live in the present, as a girl of 12 should.

3. It is correct for a man to fight for a girl first. But that is another thing a girl of your age need not worry about.

5. The bride never has met her husband's parents.

6. What is the best color for a bride?

7. Do all married women have to be made over?"

"If you don't know," she answered

abiguously, "you haven't entered it yet."

“RUTH ANN,

Meet Me Downtown
for Lunch Tomorrow

We'll go to the Guaranty Cafeteria for lunch—it is really the coolest place in town and it's a nice refined place, too.

Their food is deliciously prepared—the vegetables taste as though they had
