Will Run Newspaper, Despite
Judgment on Libel Charges.

By United Press
LAS VEGAS, N. M., July 13.—Charles Magee, editor of the New Mexico State Tribune is to come before Judge David Leahy today for final judgment on seven counts of contempt of court, growing out of Magee's previous conviction on a charge of libel against Judge Frank Parker of the State Supreme Court.

The maximum sentence, according to Judge Leahy, is six months' imprisonment and a fine of $50 on each count in the delinquency, or a total of three and a half years and $350 fine.

Magee is already under sentence of a year to eighteen months for alleged libel, and his counsel, Judge Richard H. Hanna, formerly of the State Supreme bench, stands convicted of direct contempt of court and faces two additional citations leading toward disbarment proceedings.

"Regardless of the judgment of the court," Magee said this morning, "I shall continue to run my paper and I shall continue to expose rottenness in San Miguel County politics, or wherever else I find it."

"Firpo will lick Dempsey to a frazzle, and then Johnson intends to do likewise, only more so, to Angel Luis," he said.

"The trouble with them boys is they don't know how to move around to keep out of Firpo's way, but I do," Johnson confided.

After paying $341.62 costs to the county clerk, the pugilist was given the car.

"I got to go back in it, sheriff, because I only brought $60 to fix things up here," he said.
