Mr. and Mrs. Louis L. Kiefer, 1131 Keystone Ave., announce the marriage of their daughter, Mabelle Clare, to Ralph J. Staunch of Minneapolis, Minn. The wedding took place Saturday afternoon in Chicago, the Rev. Austin Lynch Young officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Staunch will be at home at the Columbus Apartment, Minneapolis, after Aug. 1.

The wedding of Miss Letha Lucille Heckman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heckman, 3356 Broadway, to Orvin K. Gaskins, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Gaskins of Indianapolis, took place Sunday at the Central Avenue Methodist Church, the Rev. O. W. Fifer officiating. Miss Mildred Owens, organist, played "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses" and "I Love You Truly." Miss Frances Brewington, in a gown of orchid georgette and lace with a corsage of sweetheart roses, sang "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly." For the wedding march the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" was played.

The ushers were William Terrell and Eugene Bennett of Greencastle and Harry Sherer, Miss Dorothy Rist of Hammond, in orchid chiffon and lace with a head-band of silver and with arm bouquet of butterfly roses, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids, Miss Irma Aufderheide, in turquoise blue chiffon and cream lace, and Miss Bernice Gaskins, in peach chiffon and lace, wore head bands of silver and carried arm bouquets of Columbia roses.

The little ring bearer, Keith Rogers, dressed in a white silk suit, carried the ring in the heart of a lily. Little Miss Janan Fowler, flower girl, wore a dress of white ruffled organdie, trimmed with pink and blue roses, and scattered rose petals from a little French basket.

The bride was charming in a gown of white Elizabeth crepe, beaded with crystal and trimmed with pleated panels of crepe. Her veil was arranged in coronet style and caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The guests were served in the rose garden. The bride's table was arranged on the sun parlor. The bride was member of Phi Delta Xi and Psi Iota Psi sororities and Mr. Gaskins was member of the DePaul chapter of Delta Upsilon.

Sister Mary's KITCHEN

PICNIC AND TEA SANDWICHES

SANDWICHES for picnics, sandwiches for tea and sandwiches for parties are always in season. These fillings may be new to you and help fill the picnic or tea sandwiches. Combinations are always interesting and more or less intriguing to the summer appetite.

Olive and Pimento

One pint small green olives, one can pimentos.

Cut meat of olives from stones. Put olives and pimentos through food chopper. Mix thoroughly and put between thin slices of bread and butter.

Cream Cheese and Pimento

Four tablespoons butter, 1 neufchatel cheese or 4 tablespoons cottage cheese, 2 pimentos, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon paprika.

Work butter to a cream, beat in cheese and minced pimentos. Work smooth and spread on thin slices of brown or white bread.

Cheese, Olive, Pimento

Mix ½ cup chopped olives, ¼ cup minced pimentos and 4 tablespoons cream cheese. Put between thin slices of bread and butter.

Nut and Celery

One-half cup chopped English walnuts or hickory nuts, one-half cup minced celery, salad dressing.

Date and Nut

One-half cup chopped dates, ½ cup chopped blanched almonds, ¼ cup whipped cream, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Mix ingredients and spread on thin slices of brown bread and butter.

Nut and Cheese

Four tablespoons cream, ½ cup cottage cheese, 1 cup finely chopped of their daughter, Elizabeth Margaret Vickers, to Russell E. Tucker. The wedding will take place in September.

Mrs. Joyce Sherman Bernad of Toronto, Canada, is in Indianapolis for several weeks, visiting friends and relatives.

Mrs. Bina McGrath, Liberty, Ind., arrived from Cleveland today to visit her son, Blaine T. McGrath, 103 E. St. Clair St.

Attempts to conceal complexion blemishes usually fail, and only serve to draw attention to the defects. Underneath most unattractive skins is a clear, pleasing complexion—all that is needed is the proper treatment. It is surprising how often a brief use of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap will clear away blotches, redness and roughness and give the skin its natural freshness and charm.

Ask your druggist for Resinol.

Face Reflects Beauty or Ugliness of Soul

If a girl's character and mind are beautiful, her face will be correspondingly so. Whether or not she wears a touch of rouge will not matter, as long as she does not have enough to be conspicuous, for persons she meets will feel her beauty, anyway.

That is the opinion of "Mr. Average Man," who declares he "likes a girl with some stamina."

Letters continue to pour in, with opinions on the question of beauty. Some voice strong praise, others, severe criticism, of the girl of today and the woman who goes to the drug store to buy her beauty.

Here's what a few have to say on the matter:

'Stamina' Needed

My Dear Madam: I'm glad you are giving us men a chance to tell the girls what we think. Well, here's my opinion: It's a girl's character, not her face, that counts. Her face reflects the beauty or ugliness in her soul. Too many girls today forget that. They think we men care only about looks. Well, personally, I like a girl with some stamina, one who is willing to be called "old-fashioned." If she knows she's better off that way.

'Sheik' Blamed

My Dear Madam: How can the boys object to our using rouge, lipstick and eye-brow pencil and hobnobbing our hair in frizzy efforts to look well, when they rush after the most beautiful girl every time?—and usually after the one who is most artificial. It's the modern "sheik" as much as the flapper who is to blame. He wants us to look our best, is ashamed of us if we don't look as pretty as the other fellows' girls, and still criticizes us for the means we take.

Besides, I'm sure our cosmetics are no worse than the stuff the boys use to slick their hair, and our bobbed hair no worse than their sideburns. And an unprejudiced person surely cannot deny we get better results than they.

No Peace in Office

Dear Madam: I work in an office with about five other men and some fifteen or twenty girls. And if there is one minute when several powder puffs are not waving and several lipsticks in action, I'd like to know it. Those girls don't seem to have a bit of sense of the right time and place to put on their cosmetics. I don't object so much to the kind of complexions as to the time and place they choose to put them on. We men would not think anything of the rouged, lipstick girls if the girls themselves did not constantly bring their cosmetics to our attention.

Well, Well

My Dear Madam: Three cheers for giving us a chance to tell what we think! Give me the girl that uses rouge and lipstick and isn't ashamed to admit she does it to try to be beautiful, in preference to the prudish girl who looks at them because she's afraid of criticism, or won't admit she needs anything to make her more beautiful, any day.

Slow Down

Dear Madam: I love a boy dearly and he knows it, as I cannot help showing my affection. He seems to think quite a little of me, as he shows me a very good time, but he goes with other girls when he could go with me. Should I show my affection to ward him so strongly? Advise him how to make him appreciate my friendship.

Don't try to be more than a friend, until the man asks you to. By showing so plainly that you care for him you make it necessary for him to discourage you.

Flirting Falls

Dear Madam: I am 18 and in love with a boy of 21. I am called a flirt. I don't like to make him jealous, but he does not seem to care. Do you really think he cares for me? I have been going with him for a year.

Either he cares very much for you or—so much he would not cause you any displeasure by a show of jealousy—or he does not care at all. The only thing you will accomplish by flirting will be to let all men know that they can have a good time with you, but had better keep away when they feel as if they might fall in love and want to marry. Men don't like flirtatious wives, you know.

Sure 'Nough Puppy Love

Dear Madam: I am 15 and have just graduated from high school. People say I am pretty, but really, I don't see where they gather prettiness from a long-legged, sawky-looking thing.

This is my trouble: I have a severe case of puppy love. I have tried all your cures, but none helps. I work hard at it, swim, play tennis, row a boat, paddle a canoe, ride a bicycle, play the piano in fact, do everything to make myself a good girl, but this does not happen. As soon as I get to bed, my thoughts go to him and I lay

LETTER FROM MRS. JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON TO BEATRICE GRIMSHAW

MY DEAR BEATRICE:

It was very sweet of you to write me that long letter and I hasten to answer it.

I am enclosing Alice's last letter from England, as I think you will enjoy it. Will you please return it to me, because, although I have read it to Leslie, I do not think she was able to enjoy it as she will later.

Poor Leslie, Beatrice, has been and is still very ill. We have not been able to interest her in anything. It is such a grief to her that she lost her baby.

Leslie, you know, is one of the old-fashioned girls as far as children are concerned. She always declared she was going to have a large family. In some way she seemed to feel, however—we have learned since the accident—that Jack did not care for children.

This is a mistaken idea. Jack loves children. Any way she had not told him of the baby that was coming. Consequently after the accident its loss was much harder for her to bear than if she and Jack had talked over its coming.

We have just about come to the conclusion that it will be necessary to adopt a baby. Anyway, I am going to try and find one tomorrow and bring it over to the Convalscent Home, where we have taken Leslie, and see how it affects her. We are doing this as a last resort, because if this does not fill her interest the doctor tells us he will despair of doing anything for her.

My dear, it is rather selfish of me to burden you with Leslie's troubles just when you have decided to marry that young man of yours. Even though you should have as hard a time as Leslie is having, I could not wish you not to marry. Of course Leslie thinks now that she is the unhappiest woman on earth, but she will look back upon it, when time has given her the right perspective, as a part of her destiny, and probably she will say that it was all for the best after all.

You know when I was a very young woman I lost a boy baby. At the time I thought I would never get over it, but now it seems only an unpleasant dream—but a dream from which I awakened to a closer companionship with, and a closer devotion to, my husband. I learned to appreciate our "oneness" at that time.

If I could only make Jack and Leslie talk over the loss of their child, I am sure everything would come out all right. But for some reason Leslie seems to feel the child belonged to her alone, and Jack is afraid to mention it to her because he does not want to grieve her any more than she is grieving now.

Both Mr. Hamilton and myself are very glad to know that young Atherton will probably regain his sight. Mr. Hamilton is going to ask Sally to bring her husband over to our city, because you know we have one of the greatest eye specialists in the country here, and the sooner Sam regains his sight, the sooner Mr. Hamilton can put him to work.

I am expecting to see Karl Whitney today before he sails for England. We have not told Alice yet that Leslie has been ill, as you will see from her letter. I am sending my answer by Karl to tell her the sad news. It will be easier for her if Karl is there to supplement my letter with explanations. Please write me, my dear. And remember that if it is not so that I can come to your wedding, to which you so kindly invited me, I shall send you all best wishes that are in my heart. I heartily congratulate the young man you are going to marry, because of all of Leslie's friends, you, my dear Beatrice, have always seemed the nearest to me.

Because I have not been able to make any purchases, I am asking Mr. Hamilton to send you a check today. Will you please buy with it the thing you desire most and accept it with the love of the mother of Leslie?

Yours sincerely yours,
ALICE CARTON HAMILTON.

Next: Mrs. Hamilton writes to her daughter, Alice—Why Leslie doesn't write.
