

SOCIAL Activities

ENTERTAINMENTS
WEDDINGS BETROTHALS

Legion Auxiliary to Be Entertained

MRS. CLARENCE HUGEL

AT THE home of the officiating minister, Rev. J. A. Coulter, 2868 Northwestern Ave., before a few friends and relatives, Miss Marie Orme, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Orme, 607 Congress Ave., was quietly married to Gerald Wilds, son of Mrs. Stella Wilds, 524 N. Noble St., this morning.

The maid of honor, Miss Gertrude Nolan, was gowned in black beaded georgette with a red hat and wore a corsage of Mrs. Aaron Ward roses. The bride wore a gown of beige satin crepe with a hat to match and a corsage of pink roses. Frank Buck was best man.

After a prettily-appointed wedding breakfast at the home of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Wilds left for a motor trip in the East. They will return to make their home at the Chadwick Apartments, Sept. 1.

Out-of-town guests here for the wedding of Miss Gertude Lockwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Lockwood, 2339 Central Ave., to Earl Robinson, which will take place tonight at the Third Christian Church are: The Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Stout, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Waggoner of Franklin; Mrs. Frank Feltthous of Cincinnati, Ohio; Mrs. Minerva Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gardner, and Mr. and Mrs. James Batchelor of Greenfield; Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Robinson of Fowler; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robinson of Greenpoint, Ind.; Mrs. Ruth Partner of New Augusta; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Rydale of Knightstown.

Mrs. Robert Bryce of the P. H. N. A. was hostess Tuesday afternoon for a tea at the John Herron Art Institute for the board of directors and nurses of the association. Miss Anna Hasselman of the art institute acted as guide and interpreter for the art exhibit. Tea was served in the Sculpture Court to about twenty-five guests.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Chambers, 1919 N. Illinois St., left Tuesday for a motor trip to New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Winton, 1530 N. Dearborn St., have returned from a week at Lake Wakawee.

Mrs. A. A. Stubkins, 1433 N. Pennsylvania St., left today for a visit in Marion, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. William Patrick, 4172 Broadway, and daughter Mary Margaret, accompanied by Miss Mary Lee Orlopp, and Mrs. Henry Woessner and daughter Margaret, have returned from Lake Maxinkuckee.

Mr. and Mrs. Merle Sidener and daughter Evelyn, 4245 Park Ave., have motored to Bay View, Mich., for the rest of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Pittman, 3029 College Ave., and daughter, Miss Louise, left Tuesday for a motor trip to Michigan.

Mrs. Jessie T. Clapp, 2323 Central Ave., and Miss Frances Potter have returned from Chicago, where they married last week. Mrs. Clapp, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Margaret Thieband, left Tuesday for the southern part of the State for the rest of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Orlopp, 2042 College Ave., have had as their guest E. C. Worrell of Antioch, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Doerschell, 514 N. Summit St., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Albert Steele at Victory Cott. Barbee Lake.

Mrs. Thelma Scott, 2152 N. Delaware St., daughter of Mrs. Lydia Scott, has chosen her attendants for her wedding to Fred Van Arsdel.

Career or Marriage? Cry of 'New' Woman

"I love a man. But if I marry him I must give up my ambition of being a great surgeon. What shall I do?"

That is the gist of a letter from a young woman. Her question is as old as the so-called "emancipation" of women. She alone can answer it.

Some women have had both marriage and a career. Sometimes the career has wrecked the marriage. Again, the combination has proved successful.

That is not possible in this case.

Woman's natural instinct is to build a home. When she patterns her life along other lines usually she must change her character.

Which? Girl Asks

Dear Martha Lee: Do you think a woman's career, or home and family, is most important? I am 22 and graduated from college this June. For several years I have been engaged to a fellow 22. I met him in college.

He left high school at 16. I did not know until afterward that he had been obliged to give up his education to help support his parents. I would have known if he never would marry a woman. It has been my dream to be a surgeon and to "reach the peak" with my education.

I shall have travel, study in foreign lands and opportunities of all sorts. Yet, perhaps some day I will regret that I did not have the career I might have had. Although I love this boy, I do not feel sure I can sacrifice all my hopes and ambitions for him. I know for he is not greatly ambitious. I cannot ask him to wait until I go through medical college. I would like to be a surgeon, and it would not be fair for me to keep him from all that a man naturally wants.

We have talked over and over again. I have tried to prove it to him, but even if we break, I never will love another man.

Travel, foreign lands and congenial friends seem a great deal, yet, without love, they don't always satisfy. I detect the thought of our growing into the usual, everyday married couple. Yet it might not be bad, if we loved and understood each other. It is hard for me to choose between service to husband and service to husband. Can you tell me what to do?

UNDECIDED.

You ask a great deal of me, to decide such a question without knowing either you or your fiance. For, of course, upon your characters depends your future happiness, whichever course you choose.

If you are not sure love alone would satisfy you, it would be better, no matter how eager your fiance is to establish a home, to postpone your decision, than to marry now and then regret.

Are you sure you are fitted to be a surgeon? You know, it is work which requires great strength and skill and super-steady nerves. It is not a natural career for a woman.

Think these things over before you make your decision. No one but you can decide.

No Hurry

Miss Martha Lee, a boy of 16, has been going with a girl for a few months younger than me for about a year. Although I am young, I love her. She thinks I do care for her, but I don't know if I do.

LONESOME HARRY

Telling the girl you love her would accomplish nothing, so far as I can see, as both of you are years too young to marry or to know whether love will be lasting. So just keep on being friends, and stop worrying.

Girl Shies Off

Martha Lee: I am a young fellow of 18. My girl friend seems to think me all right, but will not let me take her home at night. She is not the only girl who does not go with boys, but she is always telling me of the fellows and parties she has. I think she is only afraid to take her home at night, or at least part of the way home. Please advise me how to win her confidence.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA

It is possible that the girl has a very modest home, and feels "ashamed" to take you there. Tell her how you feel about the matter, and let her know that you think no less of a girl because her home is not richly furnished. You could show her, too, that men think less of girls who always meet them away from home.

Fireman Sweetheart

Dear Miss Lee: I love a fellow very much. I can see him only every other night because he is a fireman. And when I am not with him, I am with other fellows. He finds it hard to do his seem to care. Should I go with him steady, or go with other fellows. I have so much to tell you.

I have a girl friend whom my steady does not like because she told me to quit going with him.

CRAVING-FOR-LOVE-BABE

As long as you and the fireman are not engaged, there is no reason why he should object to your being with other men. But I should think you would have little time for anything but "dates," at the rate you are going.

It is quite apparent you are not in love with the fireman, and there is no reason why you should confine yourself to him.

Your fireman's reason for wanting you to give up your girl friend is pretty flimsy. Apparently the only thing the girl did was to express her opinion.

Never Again

Dear Miss Lee: A girl friend and I were out riding with two other friends the other night. They took us into the country and made us walk back. The next day they called me and asked me whether we would be a date with them and not making your advice.

WORN-OUT SHOES

Your tired feet would answer your question, I should think. You flatter these boys by letting them think you would even consider accepting further attentions from them.

I think you will be more careful, hereafter, about going riding, won't you?

Never Again

Canned Corn

Husk corn and carefully pick out.

Cut corn into a large kettle of boiling water and boil ten minutes. The kettle should be big enough to comfortably contain the corn and allow each ear to be immersed in water. Drain from boiling water and plunge into cold water. Let stand one minute and drain.

This blanching process is not absolutely necessary for corn, but it insures keeping and makes firm individual kernels. Corn that is to be used in made dishes is quite as satisfactory if canned without blanching, and it does save time to eliminate two handlings.

After blanching, cut corn from cob. This must be done carefully that no hard portions of the kernel are scraped out. Cut the tops from the kernels and scrape out the heart with the blunt side of the knife. Pack in jars, add 1 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon sugar to a quart.

If corn is packed tightly, and this saves cans and space, pour boiling water over corn, filling can to within three-quarters of an inch from the top. Half seal and process. Boil three hours in hot water bath, counting from the time the water begins to boil after putting in cans.

The cans will cool the water. The water should cover the cans by at least an inch. Add boilinates as necessary. Keep corn in boiler during processing. Remove from boiler and finish sealing. Cool as quickly as possible, taking care that no draft strikes the cans.

Corn for canning or drying should be full grown but "in the milk." As corn ripens the milk sets and becomes dry and the hulls of the kernels grow hard. Corn in this state is not satisfactory for canning. Immature corn is tasteless and watery.

Dried Corn

Remove husks and silk. Blanch in preceding recipe. Cut from cob, cutting half way to the cob and scraping out hearts with blunt edge of knife. Spread on dryng trays in thin layers and dry in slow oven or on top of cool range.

Drying trays are a good investment.

A bushel and a half or two bushels of corn in the husks will make twenty-four solid packed pints of corn and each pint will serve six persons.

Canned Corn

Husk corn and carefully pick out.

Cut corn into a large kettle of boiling water and boil ten minutes. The kettle should be big enough to comfortably contain the corn and allow each ear to be immersed in water. Drain from boiling water and plunge into cold water. Let stand one minute and drain.

This blanching process is not absolutely necessary for corn, but it insures keeping and makes firm individual kernels. Corn that is to be used in made dishes is quite as satisfactory if canned without blanching, and it does save time to eliminate two handlings.

After blanching, cut corn from cob.

This must be done carefully that no hard portions of the kernel are scraped out. Cut the tops from the kernels and scrape out the heart with the blunt side of the knife. Pack in jars, add 1 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon sugar to a quart.

If corn is packed tightly, and this saves cans and space, pour boiling water over corn, filling can to within three-quarters of an inch from the top. Half seal and process. Boil three hours in hot water bath, counting from the time the water begins to boil after putting in cans.

The cans will cool the water. The water should cover the cans by at least an inch. Add boilinates as necessary. Keep corn in boiler during processing. Remove from boiler and finish sealing. Cool as quickly as possible, taking care that no draft strikes the cans.

Corn for canning or drying should be full grown but "in the milk." As corn ripens the milk sets and becomes dry and the hulls of the kernels grow hard. Corn in this state is not satisfactory for canning. Immature corn is tasteless and watery.

Dried Corn

Remove husks and silk. Blanch in preceding recipe. Cut from cob, cutting half way to the cob and scrap-

Martha Lee Says

Career or Marriage? Cry of 'New' Woman

"I love a man. But if I marry him I must give up my ambition of being a great surgeon. What shall I do?"

That is the gist of a letter from a young woman. Her question is as old as the so-called "emancipation" of women. She alone can answer it.

Some women have had both marriage and a career. Sometimes the career has wrecked the marriage. Again, the combination has proved successful.

That is not possible in this case.

Woman's natural instinct is to build a home. When she patterns her life along other lines usually she must change her character.

Which? Girl Asks

Dear Martha Lee: Do you think a woman's career, or home and family, is most important? I am 22 and graduated from college this June. For several years I have been engaged to a fellow 22. I met him in college.

He left high school at 16. I did not know until afterward that he had been obliged to give up his education to help support his parents. I would have known if he never would marry a woman. It has been my dream to be a surgeon and to "reach the peak" with my education.

The proposed ordinance will require a speed governor sealed by the police department. A speed limit of twenty-five or thirty miles an hour has been suggested. Various regulations of other cities and States are being studied before the local ordinance is drafted, it was said.

GOVERNORS ARE FAVORED

Councilman Wise Preparing Ordinance Requiring Regulators.

An ordinance requiring speed governors on motor trucks and busses is being prepared by Councilman Walter W. Wise for introduction in the city council in September.

Many complaints have been made by residents in outlying districts of excessive speed of trucks and busses, Wise said. Racing and speeding, he said, are endangering the lives of passengers and other motorists.

At the directors' meeting of the State Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, called by the president, Mrs. E. C. Bailey of Franklin, for Sept. 6, details of the convention will be discussed.

Miss Hoagland has been reappointed chairman of the national research committee.

WAGONMEN RESPONSIBLE

Rikhoff Declares Confiscated Liquor Carries Must Check.

Clean Combs.

Wash combs in borax or ammonia water and rinse in cold water and wipe dry. They should not be soaked or left wet.

Bitten by Hogs

By Times Special

WABASH, Ind., Aug. 15.—Phoebe Jane Harvey, 5, daughter of Mrs. Leonie Harvey, is today suffering from lacerations about her face and body after an attack by two sows and fifty hogs on the farm of her grandfather, O. J. Harvey. The child, with two companions, was in wading when the hogs charged her.

Police to Return Fugitive

POLICE from Jeffersonville, Ind., arrived today to return to that city for trial, Roy Straw, 18, now held in the city prison as a fugitive. According to Detective Gaughan, who arrested Straw in the postoffice on a description wired to the local police, the young man is wanted in Jeffersonville for attacking a young girl.

Letter from John Alden Prescott to His Wife, Mrs. Leslie Prescott

I awoke in the night, my darling, and sat upright listening, listening for sounds that it seemed I must hear.

Before I was fairly conscious of really my heart stopped, for I seemed to sense that something was wrong. Oh, Leslie, I wish I could tell you how much you mean to me. When I left you yesterday morning, I did not know that it would be possible for me to have such a void in my heart, such an aching at this slight separation.

I hope I appreciate how good the fates have been to me and if loving you always devotedly will show my appreciation, then you will know how you fill my life, my heart.

Syd joined me here last night and we had a regular old talkfest such as we used to have when we were old. Syd that invites confidence. I really think he knows me better than I know myself. Principally, my dear, because he is