L. G. BUDDENBAUM (AT PONY'S HEAD), E. J. GAUSEPOHL AND MRS. BUDDENBAUM.

Embryo Shriners, Shriners' wives, Shriners' sweethearts and Shriners themselves today are ready for next year's picnic. Most of all of them will have recuperated by then, anyway. Much recuperation was needed by the majority of picnicers who romped at Broad Ripple Park Friday at the annual Shrine outing.

Four who had plenty of fun at the picnic, but who were pretty well worn out after the strenuous exercise, were the illustrious Potentate, Louis G. Buddenbaum, Mrs. Potentate, the general chairman of the picnic committee, E. J. Gausepohl—and the poor beast of burden who had to carry them around!

Little Girls' Race

The fifty yard race for the little girls brought forth mirth and tears. Some of the little tots didn't seem to be able to stand up and make time, too. Hence the tears. But mother's watchful care, and daddy Shriners' sympathetic "you're all right" soon sent the girls into the next race happy.

The boy's sack race was a close second in provoking mirth from the ruthless sideliners. Funny how

The resolution was in answer to a proposed plan to change the control of the child nutrition classes from the school board to the board of public health.

CLEAN-UP RESULTS IN CITY MARKET CLEAR OF REFUSE

Indiana Fruit Rivals Foreign Products on Stands
Today.

No old tomatoes were around inviting the unwary foot to step in them at the city market today. The freshness of the vegetables and fruits was more noticeable because it did not have to counteract the tepidness of refuse.

The streets about the market were clean following Mayor Shank's threat of arrests for offending standholders.

Indiana is supplying her share of edibles. Maiden blush apples at two pounds for a quarter, fancy orange melons at 35 cents and Tip-Top melons at 15 to 25 cents, all Indiana grown, were on market stands today.

California provides Bartlett pears at 15 cents a pound or two pounds for a quarter. Last Tuesday they sold at 10 cents straight. The Golden State also sends 45 and 50-cent oranges, and seedless grapes at 15 cents a pound or two for 25 cents.

Michigan sends huckleberries at 20 cents a pint. Georgia provides peaches at 10 cents a pound and New Orleans bananas at 25 cents a dozen.

Bananas usually are delicious when bought here, because they are picked green and allowed to ripen in the cars.

Eggs were three cents dearer wholesale, today, varying from 26 to 28 cents a dozen. Retail price remained the same, 30 cents a dozen. The increase is accounted for in the decrease of production.

at a picnic of employees of the Peoples' Outfitting Company. Her father is connected with the company. "Even though I'm not a very good swimmer I'm not the kind that just parades up and down the beaches," said Miss Seigle.

MRS. HARDING OUT OF WHITE HOUSE

Personal Effects Moved and New First Lady Ready to Move Into Executive Mansion.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Life in the White House, the pleasures and responsibilities of being first lady of the land, are but memories today to Florence Kling-Harding.

She has left the mansion of the Presidents and taken up a temporary residence at Friendship, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean. It stands on an eminence, and from her window Mrs. Harding can look out over the city, where she spent the happiest and most desolate hours of her life.

It was with dry eyes and firm tread that she departed from the house out of which her husband a little while ago was carried on his journey to the grave.

Shortly before Mrs. Harding left the White House, Mrs. Coolidge, the new first lady, came to the executive mansion to give any aid she could in the departure.

Leaving, the widow was accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge and George Christian, secretary to the late President. But Mrs. Harding, a little proudly it seemed, walked across the White House portico without assistance.

She was dressed in mourning, but did not wear the heavy black veil with which she has hidden her features since her husband's death. Mrs. Coolidge and Christian accompanied Mrs. Harding to the McLean home in a White House car.

All the personal effects of the Harding's now have been moved from the White House, and it awaits the family of the new President.

Following circulation of reports that "flogging parties" would be staged throughout the state in retaliation for the governor's declaration of martial law, the military rule was extended to eight other towns around Tulsa.

Recent whippings at Macon and other towns occupied the attention of Georgia authorities. Five were under arrest at Newnan, charged with kidnapping and murdering Millard Troutman, whose mutilated body was found in a creek.

realm. Ask Hughie Gartland, Firpo's manager, he has the contract. Quoth Gartland:

"Sure, we're trying to get the rest of the money, but between us, I doubt if we do. You know contracts are like pie crust. They are sometimes made to be broken."

Talked It Over.

"At about 5 in the afternoon we talked to Druley. He said the sheriff said we had to give up big gloves. He said we had to give up half the money and Firpo and what's his name fighting four rounds. We thought half a loaf was better than none and we said all right."

"Then when the crowd raised a row about four rounds, the sheriff said we had to give up half the money and Firpo and what's his name fighting four rounds. We thought half a loaf was better than none and we said all right."

"We didn't have to fight at all. Our contract was to give up half the money and we didn't get it. But we wanted to please the crowd and we fought ten rounds."

"The whole thing was political horse play."

How About Joe?

Neither did Downey get all of his money. He only got $800 and had been promised $1,000. But nobody seems to be worrying about Downey right now.

At the hospital they say they have instructions to give out information about his condition. They won't even explain why the secret. Through a representative of the sheriff's office it was learned he has regained consciousness and that he is not suffering from a concussion.

In connection with the affair Sheriff Snider wants to clear up a little error made in reports of the fight. His deputies didn't accompany Druley to the city with the money, as was reported, he said.

"There was a row at the gate and I sent three men over to stop it," he said. "Then Druley left. The deputies did not leave with him."

Anyway, it was some affair. The thousands of "gate-crashers" who got in without paying admission, will say so.
