Three Doners Appear in the "Dancing Girl"

Among the featured players in "The Dancing Girl," the New York Winter Garden's latest extravaganza, which will be the attraction at the Murat all of State Fair week, opening Monday matinee, Sept. 3—other matinees Wednesday and Saturday, are Kitty, Rose and Ted Doner, the children of that famous dancing couple of a generation ago, Joe and Nellie Doner.

This is the first time that the three have been together in musical comedy, though they have toured the vaudeville circuits for a year and a half.

Rose and Ted are making their first appearance in a Winter Garden production, Kitty played in "Sinbad," some seasons ago. Rose is the youngest and it is with her that this story is chiefly concerned. Rose is not quite eighteen years old. She has been dancing since she was eight, under the guidance of her father and mother and later under her sister, Kitty.

"Eight is the proper age to begin," she said lately, "according to mother and father. After school, in the barn attached to our home in New Rochelle, the family would gather and the sessions would begin, father instructing me in all kinds of steps and mother teaching me ballet and grace and deportment. And in the evening, when lessons had been prepared, she and father would take me aside and teach me how to smile. Knowing how to smile and when to smile is one of the most difficult arts associated with dancing."

"One must not smile too much, otherwise the appeal of coquetry and winsomeness is lost. The smile must not be forced, nor must it appear too self-conscious. Mental alertness and co-ordination are so essential to successful stage dancing. You have to keep your mind not only on your dances, but you must listen intently to the music, to the words of a song, if perchance a song accompanies the dance, and be able to smile effectively," she claims.

On View at Local Theaters Thursday

Among the attractions on view today in local theaters are: "Jonathan Makes a Wish," with Stuart Walker, at the Murat; Lottie Mayer and her diving girls, at the Lyric; "The Birth of a Nation," at the Rialto; "The Man From Hell's River," at Mister Smith's; Kara and a feature movie, at the Ohio; "Human Wreckage," with Mrs. Wallace Reid, at the Apollo; "The Spoilers," with Milton Sills, at the Circle, and Gladys Walton in "Crossed Wires," a comedy drama, at the Isis.

A complete new change of bill takes place today at the Palace for the remainder of the week.

A committee of the league will meet with sanitary commissioners and engineers Friday.

Slight Illness Does Not Hamper Wizard.

By United Press
ISHPEMING, Mich., Aug. 23.—The vacation tour of Thomas A. Edison, Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone went ahead in upper Michigan today, the trio invading L'Anse, site of the Ford model timber mills.

Edison's slight cold and sore finger were declared only "incidental" to such a vacation trip, and the "electrical wizard" was declared in the best physical condition. Members of the party denied rumors he was "ill," and asserted that he is "absolutely O. K."

After camping at L'Anse for a day or two the party probably will board Ford's new and palatial 300-foot yacht, which arrived at L'Anse Monday. A trip on the boat through the copper country is contemplated.

Retired Drummer Compliments Local Postoffice Officials

Courtesy in the Indianapolis postoffice is of a much higher caliber than in any other postoffice for a city of this size, according to Henry Schwartz, the "novelty king" of New York. Postmaster Robert H. Artyson received a letter from Schwartz today complimenting him on his excellent services and insistence on politeness. Schwartz has been "on the road" for thirty-seven years. In that time he has been in Indianapolis seventy-four times and has stayed two weeks on each trip. Now that he has made his last trip he sent this letter of commendation:

"The women or men in your general delivery window are always ready to give you a helping hand and show you all the courtesy they can. In your money order window the man will help you make out an order; in the stamp window there is always a traveling men in the United States held the same regard for the Indianapolis postoffice as he did.
