

McCRAY CREDITORS CONSIDER PLAN OF TRUST AGREEMENT

Two-Year Extension for Indebtedness Asked by Governor.

Investigation of the plan proposed by Governor Warren T. McCray for turning over practically all his property to his creditors under a trust agreement was begun today by a committee of five named at a creditors' meeting at the Severin Thursday.

Committee: Elmer E. Stout, Indianapolis, president of the Fletcher American National Bank; W. H. Arnold, president of the American Trust Company of Kokomo; Linton A. Cox, lawyer, of Indianapolis; F. H. Cuthall, vice president of the Old National Bank of Ft. Wayne, and Charles Hubbard, president of the Citizens' National Bank of Martinsville.

The committee will report its findings and recommendations next Friday.

McCray Reads Statement

The meeting was attended by about 150 representatives of creditor banks. Governor McCray read a brief statement and then retired to a room on the ninth floor of the Severin, where he remained until the conclusion of the meeting.

He plainly was affected by the strain he had been under. After he had gone to his room, he stated: "This was the most humiliating thing I ever have done."

"It took more nerve to do what I have done than to take a gun and end it all."

The statement read by the Governor was substantially the same as the one given to the press Thursday except that he suggested an extension of his indebtedness for two years.

By that time, he said, conditions in the agricultural industry would be greatly improved. The Governor stated that he owned more than 15,000 acres of land and a herd of high grade Hereford cattle 600 to 800 in number. He admitted that many of the outstanding obligations were in excess of notes executed under the name of subsidiary concerns, which in reality were his own paper.

"Many of the notes bear the farm name and that of the resident manager and are endorsed by myself in order that the notes would be in better bankable form," McCray explained.

Creditors' Committee Suggested

He suggested appointment of a creditors' committee to take over his property under a trust agreement.

"If this should not be in accord with your best judgment, I know of no other way open except one which I would seriously deplore to take—

County commissioners Friday were informed by County Attorney Emsley W. Johnson that they could not sue Fesler as he "acted in good faith."

FAIRGROUND GATE TO OPEN ON GROUP OF SHOWS MONDAY

Exhibitors Flock to Enter in Race for Increased Cash Prizes.

There will be no lack of variety when officials in charge of the Indiana State Fair open the gates Monday for the five-day exposition. With the increase of the total awards to $111,500, $36,500 greater than in 1922, more exhibitors than ever before have been attracted. It is believed by officials that the attendance will exceed the figure of 1919, when approximately 200,000 were in attendance.

The automobile show will be one of the principal attractions this year. The board of agriculture has taken over complete charge of the automobile show, and with practically unlimited space available in the manufacturing building, Indianapolis and the State will be given an opportunity to show to the world their respective importance as automobile manufacturing centers. The latest creations of motordom, from the finest of limousines to the rakish four-wheel-brake designs of sportsters, which incidentally originated locally, will be on exhibition. A band will provide music in the afternoon and evenings during the week and attendance will be free.

Horse Races

The speed track will show what Indiana's horses are able to do. Racing will be the principal attraction at every afternoon session of the week. Several thousands of dollars will be distributed in awards to winners. Separate showings of horses produced in the State will be made throughout the week at the pavilion. During the racing program each day spectators, between heats, will watch professional acrobats.

In the different pavilions will be found exhibits of the many breeds of blooded cattle, hogs and sheep, together with poultry and domestic animals. The awards for each class of exhibits have been increased considerably. Much attention will be paid to the swine show this year, because of the completion of the new $162,000 pavilion. Heretofore, the swine exhibitors have been seriously handicapped by the small space allowed.

Highlight Exhibit

Hoosierdom's best in the way of flowers, fruit and grains will be exhibited daily in the agricultural building. It is predicted this exhibit will be one of the highlights of the State fair. Products of every county of the State have been entered.

Interest displayed in the State horse shoe pitching contest of last year will be doubled this year. Probably fifty

Steps will be taken to establish a public playground on the site under discussion.

R. Walter Jarvis, superintendent of the public parks, was praised for helping acquire the land for park purposes. Mayor Shank was lauded by William T. Bailey, city attorney, for his interest in civic and charitable affairs. He said that out of the mayor's charity fund, 1,339 families had been given relief.

Twenty-seven speeders taken on country roads on the four Sundays were all fined in justice of peace courts. Eighteen drivers arrested for not having license were turned over to city court. Forty-six parking parties were warned and one was taken into juvenile court. One still raided, one murderer arrested and one runaway boy returned, completed the sheriff's activities.

Judgment Withheld

George Tippy, 441 N. Meridian St., "Fiery Cross" salesman, who was arrested in July with four other salesmen on a charge of violating a city ordinance prohibiting sale of papers by outry and other personal means, vagrancy, and selling by a station, was dismissed on the last two charges and judgment withheld on the first charge in city court Friday.
