

Building Arranged to Be Most Convenient for Patrons

Fireproof Addition Triples Space Facilities for the Fair Store

In a physical plant combining the beauty of exterior with the artistry of interior arrangement that ranks with the leading stores of the whole of Indiana, The Fair will be formally opened Tuesday to its many friends who will have an opportunity to see one of the most modernly built and completely equipped of all ready-to-wear stores.

This well-planned apparel store will be a revelation to the people who will crowd the wide spacious aisles interested not only in the physical aspects of the store, but eager to see the new merchandise that is everywhere attractively displayed.

First Consideration Is Service To Customer.

The space has been planned with the idea of rendering the most service to the customer in the least possible time. The floors have been so arranged that the customer can find without delay the department he wishes to visit.

The new arrangement of The Fair provides three times as much space as the store occupied before its enlargement—57,125 square feet of floor space now being available.

The Natural Light Is Abundant.

One outstanding feature of the building is the abundance of natural light which is made possible by windows across the front, the back, and the entire east length. This is a great asset in that the customer is able to select clothing without the aid of artificial light and for this reason a much more satisfactory choice may be made.

Another remarkable feature of the store that is apparent when one first enters is the spaciousness of it all—the wide aisles permit the customer to see the goods to the very best advantage. This roominess is conducive to a freedom in selecting goods as well as creating a more spirited atmosphere in the sales force.

Of particular interest is the location of all of the departments that make The Fair such a completely stocked ready-to-wear store for all members of the family. Rapid and efficient elevators are conveniently located at the center of the store on each side. A modernly equipped rest room on the second floor provides comfort for the woman shopper.

Model Display Windows

Beauty of design and efficiency in planning the arrangement has been incorporated in the spacious and artistic windows. Parquet patterned hardwood floors make a splendid setting for the displays as does the soft French gray background. The lighting arrangement has been very well worked out and the arcade effect achieved in arrangement makes it possible for the interested customer and passerby to see in full detail the window displays. The ceiling of the arcade has been effectively decorated and entirely comparable with the best stores in the whole state of Indiana are the display windows of The Fair.

Attractive indeed is the whole exterior of the building of white tile treatment, the columns, reminiscent of the beauty and artistry of the Roman empire, stretching up to the top of the third floor is contrasted by the copper frame work of the windows.

The Women's Department

Of deep interest to the woman shopper is the wonderful department devoted to the ready-to-wear which occupies a large part of the second floor. Ten fitting and alteration rooms afford plenty of space for alterations, which in keeping with the old policy of the store, are still made free of all charge. Individual display cases for figures and flat displays, form an interesting note of the new arrangement. Numerous well-placed mirrors provide Miss lady with a chance to see the prospective purchase in all its beauty. The stock in this department has been very carefully selected and the policy of the store of buying for cash has made it possible to sell this merchandise to the purchaser at a lower figure.

Psychology Enters Into Arrangement.

The millinery department, one of the largest in Indianapolis, occupies the rear of the second floor. Mahogany is used in the finishing of this department as well as in all of the second floor. Fitting and alteration rooms afford plenty of space for alterations, which in keeping with the old policy of the store, are still made free of all charge. ### Putting the men's ready-to-wear and furnishings on the first floor to the front, for it has been recognized that men wish to go into a store, make their purchases and leave the store soon as possible, and for this reason all possible has been done to expedite the service in this department. Men dislike riding in elevators and especially being thrown into contact with women while they are on a buying tour, so the men's department has been placed in easy access and away from the other departments.

Everything possible has been done in arranging the departments so that the customer, whether man, woman, or child, may shop in a position that would be his natural choice, for The Fair recognizes that it is the buying public that has made possible the great expansion in the store and the management intends that the customers of the store shall help to reap the rewards of success.
