

"WHERE ARE WE AT?" ASK STATE POLITICIANS IN MUDDLE

Republicans Realize They Never Will Hear Last of McCray, While Democrats Wonder What Effect Klan Will Have.

By FELIX F. BRUNER.

While officials, courts and the public generally are giving much of their attention to the McCray financial imbroglio, politicians are taking stock and attempting to determine "where they are at" in the most serious political muddle encountered in Indiana in years.

The G. O. P., in the first place, realizes it will never hear the last of Governor McCray. He will be thrown into their teeth with demoniac glee by Democrats from now on "until the sands of the desert grow cold."

Therefore, the recent meeting of the Republican State committee in which it was the hope of party leaders that they could "shake McCray." They wished to be relieved of responsibility. But McCray out-generated them at every turn and they retreated in disorder.

Save the Party

Then along came the statement of John Moorman, friend of McCray, to the effect that everybody, in general, including Senator Watson, Postmaster General New, James P. Goodrich, and even President Coolidge himself, were endeavoring to crucify McCray on a cross of ill-gotten gold in order to save the party from the stigma of a great agricultural failure under a G. O. P. administration.

Goodrich came right back, hurling the "short and ugly" word. He hurled more than that in the statement as first written, but on second thought and in response to the pleadings of friends of the Governor, he censured it, blotting out one paragraph full of fire and brimstone.

Then the President of the United States sidestepped, adding to the confusion and the necessity for explanations.

For a few hours things became more or less peaceable.

Goodrich Hurls a Bomb

Then Goodrich hurled a bomb. He went up to Winchester, his home town, and made a speech. In that speech he said a few choice words about Ed Jackson, Secretary of State. He said Jackson had intimated the R. L. Dollings Company, now most utterly defunct. To prove it, Goodrich the problem. They say that with the McCray mess, and the Jackson mess, and the Goodrich mess, and the Coolidge mess, and the Lawrence mess, and the Roy Couch mess, and the public service commission mess, they could win in a walk, if—

And then somebody asks what is going to happen if candidates for the nomination for Governor are asked whether they are pro or anti-Klan. Then they want to know what will happen to a candidate who says he is pro-Klan, or to one who says he is anti-Klan, or to one who stays on the fence.

Nobody knows.

'If Margaret Will Still Have Me I'll Go Back When Out of Prison,'—Wagner

By RUBY WEIL.
FELLOW starts out without half a chance if he doesn't have the love of his mother and father.

Thus expressing the tragedy of thousands of broken homes, Harry Wagner, 23, in county jail, told how he happens to be facing charges of vehicle taking and failure to provide for wife and children, with polygamy charges as a possibility.

"I'm going to play square," said this man, who admits he is the husband of Mrs. Lucille Oberle, 539 Luett Ave., and Mrs. Margaret Wagner, 527 N. Noble St. "If I have to go to prison I'll be as good a prisoner as possible."

"Then, if Margaret will still have me when I get out I'll do anything on earth for her. She's the only one I ever really loved. I know now."

Through With Clara

Wagner denied that he ever knew Miss Jessie Taylor, 18, of 640 Porter St., who made affidavit to detective that she married him in Indianapolis Oct. 17, 1921. He also said that he was "through with Clara" who he admitted had posed as his wife, but to whom he said he had never been married. Detectives have a letter written to Wagner by "Clara" in Grafton, W. Va.

Wagner's trial on a charge of stealing the automobile of Ernest Deppe, 466 Agnes St., will be held in city court Friday. He pleaded not guilty, and said Deppe had given him permission to drive the car to Bowling Green, Ky.

"I went to Bowling Green to bring back my cousin and his family, who were moving to Indianapolis," the prisoner said. "Just as we were ready to start I was arrested."

"My grandmother, Mrs. Isidor Oberle, and her husband, brought me up," continued the prisoner in a low voice. "She was my only friend. My mother, who was divorced and remarried, lived in Indianapolis but never came to visit me. She lives in Florida now. I used her name until I grew up. Then I took my father's name. I never knew him."

Thought He Was Divorced
"I thought I was divorced from Mrs. Oberle. She knew I was in Indiana, for years, but she never brought suit of any sort against me."

Police will doll up Sunday. New winter uniforms arrived today. Lieut. L. Forsythe is in charge of distribution.

Search for Escaped Inmates
Virgil Ross, 10, left the colored orphan's home, Thursday night, according to police today. He was wearing a gray sweater, trousers and cap. George Roigk, 39, inmate of Central Insane Hospital, escaped from the grounds on Oct. 4. Police today were asked to aid in seeking his custody.

Sore Throat or Mouth

You should keep the throat and mouth clean and healthy.
