

MILITIA COLONEL, UNDER FIRE, SAYS MAJOR TO BLAME

U. S. Sends Officer to Quiz
Charges Hurlled in Guard Row.

Blaming the present disruption of the Indiana National Guard on Maj. Louis L. Roberts of Evansville, 139th Infantry, Col. John S. Fishback of Indianapolis, commanding officer of the 139th, today declared Roberts, who has been recommended for promotion to a lieutenant-colonelcy "devoted the greater part of his time to criticism of the regimental commander."

The guard situation has become particularly acute during the last week, since it has been learned that Adj. Gen. Harry B. Smith has requested Col. Fishback's resignation, and has asked the War Department to recall Maj. R. W. Barker, Regular Army officer, assigned to the outfit as instructor.

"Would Handicap Efficiency"

In a statement issued today Colonel Fishback said that if Major Barker is taken away from the regiment "it will greatly handicap the efficiency of the organization and will be against the wishes of practically all of the officers."

Colonel Fishback said General Smith, at one time, showed an inclination to dismiss Major Roberts for statements he was alleged to have made. General Smith also said then that an investigation would be made, Fishback charged. On his next visit to General Smith's office, the general told him he had promised Major Roberts the lieutenant colonelcy of the regiment in June 1922, Fishback said. That was five months before Roberts became a member of the outfit, he said.

U. S. Officer to Probe Charges

That General Smith used a "picked" officer's examining board in order to promote Major Roberts, is another charge by the outfit commander. Col. Fishback said numerous officers in the 139th regiment sought to resign when it was learned Roberts' promotion was assured. He denied that Major Barker influenced the resigning of the resignations. Col. Fishback said he deplored the publicity attached to the flare-up in guard circles, saying, "It has always been my belief that a National Guard regiment, to be efficient, should be kept entirely out of politics and that no publicity should be given its internal troubles."

In connection with the foursome guard dispute, it was learned today that the War Department has dispatched an inspecting officer to Indianapolis to investigate the affair.

industries that cannot be operated without coöperation should not be maintained by the American people," declared the speaker.

In reply to a newspaper attack on a previous speech by Ryan in which it was inferred that there is a labor shortage in Indianapolis, he said, "I do not say that there is widespread unemployment in America, but I do say that in certain sections foreign labor is crowding our own citizens out of work."

One-Half Not Citizens

"Since immigration 3,000,000 foreign born, a number equal to the hosts of vandals that destroyed the Roman empire, have come through Ellis Island," said Ryan. "Almost one-half of these have not accepted the duties of American citizenship. Unless action is taken to check this influx of the worst element of Europe and Asia the civilization of America cannot be maintained."

C. L. Lambert, Kansas City, Mo., outlined the problems of street lighting and pointed out the best methods to obtain results.

William F. Hodges, Gary Mayor, ex-president of the league, outlined the Indiana status in street lighting and explained amendments passed by the last legislature.

State Legislatures were assailed for interference in local government by Dr. A. R. Hutton of Western Reserve University following the annual banquet of the league Thursday night at the Severin.

"Our Legislatures are declining in esteem because they devote about one-third of their time to local matters," said Dr. Hutton. "The question should be how little the State must interfere with cities, not how much."

Municipal Ownership Urged

Dr. Hutton urged municipal ownership of public utilities, and said the constitution of a State should delegate every power possible to local government, which he termed "the saving factor" in the United States.

Senator James E. Watson supported the local government theory and said Congress continually refused to legislate for certain sections of the country.

Watson begged to be excused when he saw Mayors Davis of Terre Haute and Shank in the room.

"There are two candidates for Governor, and both eager for a chance to speak," said Watson.

"Well, you're running for president, what are you doing here?" shouted Shank.

Delay of Justice Scored

Shank said the Indiana Legislature had gradually "worked out" every city department until the mayor and council were practically helpless. He renewed his fight on utility corporations.

Prof. Frank G. Bates of Indiana University, reviewed the work of the Municipal League and outlined future plans.

Policemen and law enforcement came under fire of Dan Pyle, member of the South Bend board of safety. He scored the delay in administering Times Paraphraser at World Series Games Spends More Money Accidentally Than on Purpose.

By TOM SIMS.

POLO GROUNDS, Oct. 12.—I wrote the second world series game on an adding machine. Couldn't see Babe Ruth defeat the Giants for figuring out mournful news for the boss.

You spend more money in this New York accidentally than you do in other towns on purpose.

Expenses to date are: Six five-dollar world series tickets, $30; for thinking Babe Ruth wouldn't knock two home runs in second game, $10; nickel dropped in phone by mistake to get wrong number 10 cents; six pencils, 30 cents; craters, $2; cigars, 20 cents. All these cigars broke on subway.

More cigars, twenty cents. Second six cigars broken at Polo grounds.

Pipe and smoking tobacco, $1.10. Stem chewed off pipe as Babe made second home run.

Chewing tobacco, ten cents. Spitting on subway, $5. Total $6.50.

First payment on Brooklyn bribe, $10.

Money to sheriff to get this ten back $20. Total $30.

Taking one little drink of this New York stuff at Polo grounds, fifty cents. Honest, just one little drink.

Bromo Seltzer, four dollars.

Having overcoat pressed, $1. Straw hat cleaned, $1.

For eating in hotel, $2; for sitting next to and talking to Brooklyn girl while eating $2. Last item worth $3. Total, $1.

For catching wrong subway to Yankee stadium, 5 cents. Taxi fare back from wrong subway ride, $4.

Nothing for telling a crowd of newspaper men I make $1,000 a day.

Total borrowed from me by different members of this crowd, $5.

I don't know who will win the series unless it is Wall Street.

Fireman Who Started Job at $15 Per Week, Retires With $200,000 in Cash

Has Pension of $1,280
Yearly Besides Annual Income of $9,000.

By JOSEPHINE VAN DE GRIFT

HITESTONE, N. Y., Oct. 12. You'll never get rich by saving. So says William J. Wiesener, Queens (N. Y.) fireman, who retired from service the other day worth more than $200,000.

Yet he never received a salary of more than $50 a week! And when he began he received just $15 weekly!

But Wiesener didn't get that way by taking $2 out of his weekly pay envelope and poking it through the wicket at a courteous bank clerk. No, m'am! When he wasn't rescuing lovely blondes from burning third-story windows and carrying kittens down from telegraph poles, he was putting in time turning over little odd jobs of real estate.

That's the reason that in addition to the $1,280 yearly pension which he will draw hereafter for his twenty years of service in the fire department, he will have an annual income of $9,000 from his $200,000 investments. He owns a twenty-three-family apartment dwelling, numerous small houses and 350 lots.

The neighbors in this little town where he lives say they wouldn't be surprised if in another five years Bill turned out to be a millionaire. Right now he's only 45.

I went over to call on Bill to ask him what he intended doing with all that money. Bill himself came out on the porch to greet me. He had on a blue sweater and I could see he was getting a little bald.

"I suppose," I said, "that you're going to do quite a little fixin' up with that $200,000?"

"Not at all," said Bill. "We've been livin' the same way for twenty years and we don't intend to change now. Hey, Kate, put on another pork chop! There's company come to dinner."

HERE, according to Bill, was the way it happened: He'd always wanted a little place in the country with chickens and so on, and one day, twenty years ago, he sold out his grocery store, paid up his debts, pocketed the $200 that remained and started looking around.

The place, when he found it, consisted of four and a half acres and two houses and the owner wanted $5,500 for it. Bill borrowed the money somehow, got a job in the fire department, moved into one of the houses and the next month sold the other house for $500 profit.

He's been selling things at profit ever since. Along about 1916 Bill got an idea that there weren't enough three and four-room apartments for young married people and old couples. All the bankers laughed at him, so Bill had to go out of town to get the money. But the day those apartments were finished there were fifty families on the waiting list.

"I suppose," I said to Bill, "that if you don't intend to move into a new house or anything, maybe you'll put your money in a swell new motor car?"

"Nope," said Bill. "Same old bus, 1915 model."

PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

All known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to serious complications.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Advertise-ment.
