STATE UTILITY BODY DEFENDED BY RATTS

Restraint Needed to Curb Local Abuse, Member Declares

Justification of the State public service commission as the one force restraining public utilities from regulating communities, politically and financially, was expressed by Oscar Ratts, member of the commission, in an address Wednesday evening before the Meridian Heights Civic Club, at the Meridian Heights Presbyterian Church, Park Ave. and Forty-Seventh St.

"Should the commission listen to popular appeal?" Ratts asked. "Or should it comply with the oath of office its members take?"

Ratts held the commission is not at fault when its decisions are challenged in Federal Court, but when the court reverses the commission's decision, he said, it is a determination that the commission has failed to do its duty.

Can't Stop Joint-Ease

"You can't stop people from buying Joint-Ease for sore throat and cold in chest," writes one of our druggist friends. "They say it's the best ever."

We know that, of course, but please remember that Joint-Ease is for stiff, swollen, painful joints, whether rheumatic or not, and its tremendous sale for that purpose proves that it is the one joint remedy that gets the most satisfying results.

A tube costs 60 cents at Hook Drug Company and druggists everywhere. Just rub it on and in a few seconds it disappears completely under the skin, and relief follows instantly.—Advertisement.

City Advantages and Country Independence Are Combined in Suburban Home of Mr. and Mrs. Noble

The ideal home of today is one that combines the advantages of the large city with the beauty and independence afforded by a home in the country. The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Noble, Keystone road and Kessler Blvd., is a charming example of this ideal combination, as it is far enough from town to have grassy fields and forest trees for a background and yet so built as to include every modern advantage.

The house fronts north, facing Kessler Blvd. A broad porch with upper deck extends along the entire length of the east end of the house, which fronts Keystone road. A note of interest in the architectural plan is achieved in the broad chimney that is centered in the east end of the house.

From the porch two sets of French doors, one at either end, open into the long living room which extends across the house. This room, beautifully furnished, is as comfortable as it is attractive. The glass curtains on the east end of the room, which color predominates in the rugs and overstuffed furniture.

The large fireplace of dull red brick provides comfort and cheer. From the living room one enters the entrance hall. The porch is typically Dutch Colonial, as is the whole house, built of wide white siding.

From the entrance hall, a graceful stairway leads to the second floor, the plan of which includes three bedrooms, a bath and study. The dining room is immediately on the right of the lower hall. This room is well lighted with unusually large windows on two sides. A blue rug and blue draperies give a richness of color to the room. To the south of the dining room is the kitchen, a room very complete in detail of planning. The woodwork of the room is French gray. Built-in cabinets, ice chest, ironing board and other conveniences add much to its comfort.

Upstairs Very Commodious
A center hall serves as an unifying feature of the upstairs plan. To the left of the hall is the bathroom and one bedroom with adjoining room used by Mr. Noble as an office. This room is one of the most convenient features of the whole house. A large desk, typewriter, swinging table and other office equipment make it a perfect workroom. It is very well lighted and plain, well placed electric fixtures and reading lamp afford plenty of artificial light. Between this office and the bathroom is a connecting closet.

PERMANENT HOMES GROW IN NUMBER

More and more people are building homes of permanent character—using materials in construction that will last for generations. Most favored of all such materials is face brick. Truly it has been unquestionably proved that "cheapness is extravagance," at least when the word "cheapness" refers to quality. The cheapest home to own is the home that will cost the least for upkeep and maintenance.

When a house is built of brick it requires less fuel, it calls for less repair because it is not weakened by the inroads of changing weather, the cost of painting is very small and finally the insurance rates are much lower.

The average person is very fortunate if able to build one house during his life and should do everything to make this house of enduring character.

"This," said Nelson Adams of the James B. Adams & Son, Inc., "is why so many are building of brick. They realize they have a home that will stand the acid test of time." This company has a very interesting exhibit of the variations obtainable in brick by combinations of mortars. There is infinite variety in color and in finish in the bricks and they furnish a material that seems to form a perfect combination of the practical with the artistic.
