BRITISH LABORITE MINISTRY SEEKS TO SETTLE STRIKE

New Cabinet Members Busy Early, Though Not Formally in Office.

By ED L. KERN, General European Manager, United Press.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The first act of the MacDonald government, even before it was formally in office, was to attempt settlement of the rail strike. MacDonald presided over the first meeting of his cabinet at the historic residence of premiers at No. 10 Downing St. this afternoon.

While the government was passing into the hands of its laboring class every effort was made to end the slowly spreading industrial paralysis of transportation.

Arthur Henderson already has assumed duties as home secretary, although a seat in Commons must be found for him before he can be officially given the seals of office.

It is characteristic of MacDonald he instructed Henderson not to wait, but to "get busy and compose the differences of the engineers and firemen and their employers."

The British spirit of fair play is manifest in the press and public reception to the laborites.

was adopted by a substantial majority. Among the speakers who defended Murray was John Hessler, president of the Indiana miners.

Lewis Report Adopted

The report of International President Lewis was adopted without comment and that of William Green, international secretary, was adopted after a short discussion.

Mayor Shank addressed the convention, declaring he wished every miner belonged to the union.

"The consumer would not kick on the price of coal if he knew the miner got his share," he said.

The hope of miners throughout the world depends upon progress of American miners. John Gay, Albion, Iowa, told the convention in a report of the American delegates to the International Mining Congress, held last August in Frankfurt-on-Main, Germany.

William Mitch, Terre Haute, the second delegate, also read his report.

The scale committee is to meet at 7:30 p. m. at miners' headquarters, Merchants Bank building.

Position Strengthened

The position of John L. Lewis, president of the miners, is materially strengthened with the appointment of Frank Farrington, head of the Illinois district, as chairman of the scales committee.

Reports that the two leaders had smoothed out their long-standing differences apparently were confirmed when Lewis named Farrington chairman of the scales committee, the most important post in the convention.

Farrington, it is understood, is in accord with Lewis' belief that the big fight before the miners is for a long-term contract to stabilize the industry and eliminate unemployment, rather than a battle for a further increase in wages.

Wage Question Avoided

Lewis, in his annual report, avoided the wage question, but brought out the long-term contract proposal as the chief administration plank for the convention to consider.

Hessler, a conservative, was named secretary of the committee.

The scales committee will consider suggestions on wages and working conditions presented by the local unions and individual miners.

Two Candidates Appear

His program, as approved or amended on the floor of the convention, will represent miners' demands at the joint wage conference in Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 11.

Pollock began to simmer with the appearance of two candidates for election to the international conference of miners which will be held at Prague, Czechoslovakia, next June. They are Thomas Kennedy of Hazleton, Pa., and John Brophy of Clearfield, Pa. Brophy is the president of District No. 10.

SCHOOL GIRL NOW BRITAIN'S HOSTESS

Ishbel MacDonald, 20, Daughter of New Premier, Will Preside at No. 10 Downing St.

(Copyright, 1924, by United Press)

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Ishbel MacDonald, the youngest and simplest hostess that ever came to gloomy No. 10 Downing St., is not daunted by responsibilities of entertaining the empire's most famous and titled personages when she presides over the household of her father—Britain's new labor premier.

"It's the funkeys and the big policemen that scare me," she said, flashing her radiant smile that deepens the dimples in her rosy cheeks.

Ishbel—the quaint name is Gaelic for Isabel—is a 20-year-old school girl.

Upon her has fallen the duties of hostess of the prime minister's residence.

Isabel at an early age helped run the household, with the sturdy assistance of a Scottish housekeeper, Miss Bevoets.

"I never really kept house for father," Ishbel explained, "because we always had Miss Bevoets."

In a smartly tailored school girl costume, Ishbel stood smiling on the door step of her new home. She had just been shown through the house by Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, wife of the retiring premier.

The meeting of the two was like mother and daughter. Ishbel explained she had just come from her social science and domestic science class at King's College for Women.

"Mrs. Baldwin showed me the house," she said. "It's complicated, but I suppose I'll get accustomed to it."

to demand their rights. Then he introduced Thomas Myerscough of Pennsylvania. Myerscough has been expelled by the union for his alleged activities and he took the opportunity to tell of his grievances and to demand his reinstatement. He explained in detail the program of what he termed the "left wing" of the union.

Myerscough attacked statements made by Philip Murray, international vice president, in his report in which Murray scored what he termed "pinks" and "reds" in the union.

Bewhiskered Opponents

"Murray says there is too much soap, and too many Gillettes in America for the bewhiskered type of revolution," he said. "The only prominent men I know who wear whiskers are Secretary of State Hughes and Senator Lodge. And they are the ones who are giving us the most hell."

He assured miners present that resolutions embodying the demands of the "left wing" will be presented in the convention.

"Yet, all regrets are vain," said Marshall. "And we shall not be quite worthy of ourselves unless we strive in some fitting way, by some public memorial, to show, although too late to him, that his memory is dear to Hoosiers."

Bush Stands Up for Farmers

Farmers are not getting the consideration they deserve in Indiana, according to Edgar Bush, former Lieutenant Governor. A review of farm conditions was given by Bush at the Gyro Club luncheon at the Lincoln Tuesday.

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat no sweets of any kind for a while, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of Jad Salts occasionally to help keep down uric and toxic acids.

Rheumatism is caused by poison toxins, called uric acids, which are generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this poison, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove body waste also to stimulate the kidneys, thus helping to rid the blood of these rheumatic poisons.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithium, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.—Advertisement.

What's the Reason?

IN thousands of homes where one or more of the family are nervous and irritable, the cause may be hidden—hard to understand. But usually, "There's a Reason."

Doctors and dietitians are very generally agreed that people who are nervous or suffer with digestive disturbances should not drink coffee or tea because these beverages contain a drug, caffeine, and their use tends to increase nervous irritability.

Many of us just drift into wrong habits of eating and drinking, though we usually know better. So if there are nervous ones in your family, suppose you make a change—serve Postum for thirty days.

Postum is a pure cereal beverage. It furnishes all the pleasure of a hot drink—cheery warmth and good flavor. Postum is refreshing, satisfying, healthful; and there's nothing in all the world quite so effective as health to overcome nervousness and make life worth while.
