

WEATHER SENDING CLOSED CAR SALE UP AT AUTO SHOW

Buying Public Attending Exhibition With Check Books In Hand.

Even snow fails to keep the crowds from flocking to the Indianapolis Auto Show which is attracting thousands daily in the Manufacturers' building at the fairgrounds. Balmey spring breezes, cold drizzling rains and snow have united this week to prove to the auto fan the advantage of a car in all kinds of weather.

The closed car which proved so popular in winter, but uncomfortable in summer has evolved into a popular car for all seasons. Drop-windows, front and rear, and on the sides have aided in the conversion.

It has been no easy matter to explain the features of the various types of cars, but the demonstration usually wound up with a sale or good prospect. The buying public is attending the show carrying its check books. Every exhibitor has one or more cars tagged "sold."

Over 15,000 paid admissions were received Thursday. The show will end Saturday night.
