

CAR ROUTING TO BE TAKEN UP BY COMMISSION

City and Traction Officials to Meet With Board at Statehouse.

Rerouting of street cars was to be taken up formally by the public service commission at 3 p. m. today.

Meeting with commissioners were to be J. P. Tretton, superintendent of the Indianapolis Street Railway Company, a special committee of city councilmen and John N. Feasey, chairman of the citizens' car service committee.

Robert I. Todd, company president, said full information concerning movement of street cars has been sent to the commission.

John W. McCordie, chairman of the commission, who presided, said it was the intent of the State to push rerouting as fast as possible.

Samuel B. Artman, commissioner, has been appointed by McCordie to aid in the rerouting work.

EMMET F. BRANCH IS MADE GOVERNOR

He went immediately to the Federal Bldg. to see the retiring Governor.

"Governor this is the most regrettable day of my life," was Governor Branch's greeting to McCray as the two met in the marshal's office at the Federal Building.

"They want into the honor," Tuesday morning Governor Branch said. "Well, good-bye Governor, God bless you."

There was no one at the interurban station in Martinsville to see the Governor off. He was accompanied only by his uncle, Minor Branch of Muncie. The car was held two minutes for him as he hurried through a driving rain.

"Open House Held"

Tuesday afternoon and evening the Branch home was "open house" to Martinsville. Friends and neighbors gathered on the veranda and lawn and friendly shouts of "hello, Governor," replaced the long usage of "Hello, Branch."

Branch knew every man, woman and child by his or her first name and many by affectionate nicknames.

James P. Goodrich, former Governor, called in the morning. Tuesday. Both Goodrich and Joseph B. Keating, Republican national committeeman for Indiana, denied their visit had any political significance.

Branch announced Tuesday night that Frank P. Singleton would serve as his secretary temporarily. Singleton is secretary of the Indiana Coolidge committee. He is a life-long friend of the Governor and was formerly in the hotel and newspaper business in Martinsville.

Mrs. Branch, accompanied by her son, James Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Branch, the Governor's brother, and a few intimate friends, arrived in Indianapolis at 9:40.

They went direct to the Statehouse for the ceremony.

Bernard Korby, former Democratic State chairman, and Mrs. Korby, Indianapolis, who are stopping at the Home Lawn Sanitarium across the street from the Branch home in Martinsville, called on the Governor Tuesday and offered congratulations.

Mrs. Branch also was a center of attraction for the moment. She was addressed as "Kate" many times by personal friends. She is a friendly and charming in acknowledging congratulations.

She wore a tan cloche hat, a mink neckpiece, a gray crepe suit and blue cape.

The Governor told reporters he had nothing to say until he had made a survey. He said Frank Singleton, Martinsville, member of the Republican State committee and at present an official at Coolidge Indiana headquarters, would be his secretary.

William H. Pigg, Governor Branch's law partner in Martinsville, bearing a striking resemblance to the Governor, was mistaken for Governor Branch several times and had to decline hundreds of congratulations.

While Governor Branch was exchanging greetings with "Hello, Clyde," and a "Hello there, Joe," Mrs. Branch was the center of a group of warm personal friends, many of them from Martinsville.

Circumstances "Hard"

"We would rather have come under different circumstances," she said. "It's rather hard, you know, to be transplanted so suddenly from a small country town."

"I'll live at the Severin temporarily," said the Governor. "James will finish high school in Martinsville and Mrs. Branch will remain there until later on. She's right in the middle of housecleaning, you know."

Looking around at his desk at the pile of telegrams and notes to "Governor Emmet F. Branch," indicating their congratulatory nature, the Governor said:

"I'll have to get busy here, I guess."

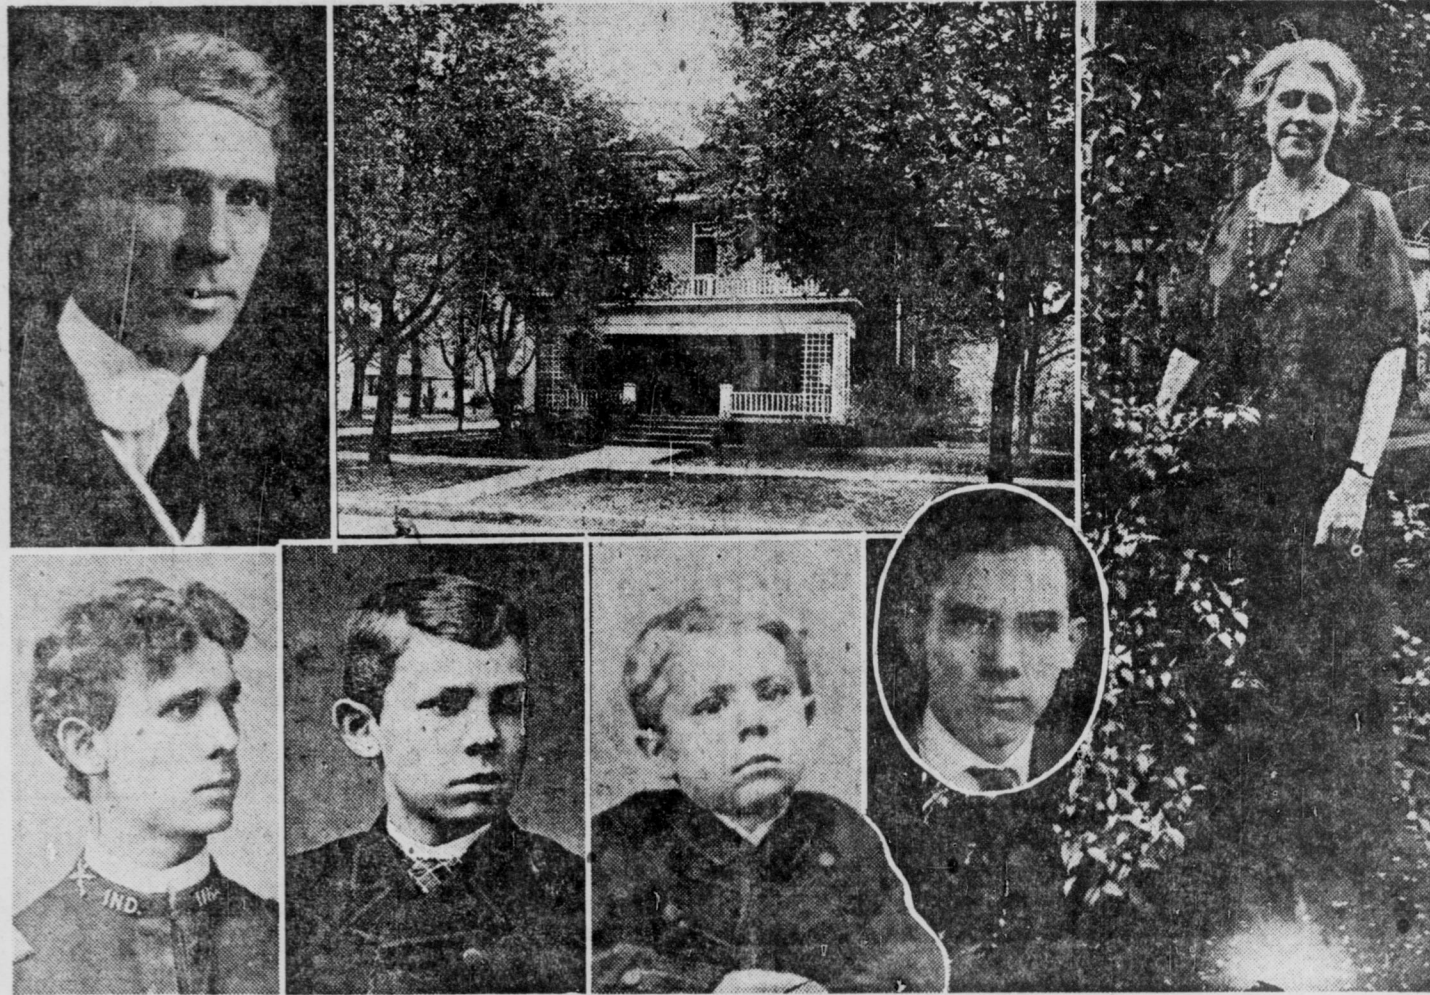

Among the special friends present were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rawlinson, Indianapolis, formerly of Martinsville; Mr. and Mrs. Eph Imman, Indianapolis; M. G. Branch of Muncie, the Governor's uncle, and Mr. and Mrs. Don Alden, Martinsville. Mrs. Alden is Mrs. Branch's sister. Other Martinsville friends were James Burton, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Branch, Judge J. W. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Pigg, Harry Martin, editor of the Martinsville Reporter; Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Grubbs, Mrs. A. M. Bain, Mrs. J. W. Yakey and Miss Dorothy Cunningham.

Down to Work

Clyde Walb, Republican State chairman; Frederick Schortemeier, secretary of the Republican State committee, and ex-Governor James Goodrich also were present.

After nearly an hour of handshaking, the crowds dwindled. State officials then dropped in every few moments to greet the Governor. By 11 a. m. the big office was deserted except for the Governor.

cept for the Governor, Singleton and a few of the close friends.

In an hour Emmet Branch had relinquished the office of Lieutenant Governor of the State of Indiana, had become the State's chief executive and was busily engaged in directing disposition of the correspondence as he opened the many letters on his desk.

Mrs. Branch and her son left the Statehouse with friends, intending to spend the rest of the day in Indianapolis and to return to Martinsville tonight.

MCGRAY IS READY FOR PRISON TRIP

former cashier of the Discount and Deposit State Bank of Kentland, charging them with violation of national banking laws and conspiracy. The usual custom is to dismiss other indictments where a defendant serves a sentence imposed on one.

After sentence, the prisoner was to be turned over to United States Marshal Linus P. Meredith, his guard since Monday night when the jury returned a verdict of guilty after thirteen minutes' deliberation, and immediate preparations for the trip to Atlanta began.

Aroused with other prisoners after another almost sleepless night on his jail cot, McCray, still Governor of Indiana at the time, got up and dressed at 5 a. m. He ate breakfast with Joseph T. Stokes, Indianapolis drug dealer serving a Federal sentence for violating liquor laws. Stokes cooks his own meals. McCray assisted in the preparation, shortly after 9 a. m. Marshal Meredith appeared to escort the prisoner to the Federal Bldg.

Crowds Avoided

"Warren T. McCray, with hat and coat," the turnkey bellowed up the iron stairs to the cell boss. In a moment the iron doors of the Marion County Jail, the first in Indiana to hold a Governor of the State in duress, banged behind him. The trip was made by auto, to avoid curious crowds.

McCray asked for shaving materials and shaved himself in the United States marshal's office. He seemed in excellent spirits.

The biggest crowd since the famous dynamite cases thronged the Federal Bldg. an hour before court opened. The crowds were lined up the entire length of the corridors and a special detail of police kept order.

McCray spent a trying day Tuesday, making a round of the Federal building, the Statehouse and his home, accompanied by Meredith.

After his release from jail at 9:30 Tuesday, by permission of Judge Anderson, McCray spent an hour in the marshal's office conferring with attorneys and friends, among them E. J. Fogarty, warden of the State prison at Michigan City; Fred Robinson, State purchasing agent, and John Moorman, Knox, Ind., his closest friend. The party then drove to the Statehouse, where McCray stayed until 2 p. m., resigning meanwhile.

Meredith, Bernard Griffey, McCray's big brother-in-law, and McCray rode to the State-owned Governor's mansion, at Fall Creek Blvd. and Talbot St., where the prisoner spent an hour and three-quarters in deep privacy with his family.

Car Shades Are Drawn

At 4 p. m. McCray re-entered the car and was taken to the Federal Bldg., the automobile traveling up Talbot and Delaware Sts. The shades on the limousine were closely drawn. At the marshal's office McCray called the reporters in and told them good-bye.

"Good-bye, boys," he said. "You have been fair to me. Only one thing I ask is for you to try to remember the good acts of my administration. I have not had such a bad record as Governor, outside my personal affairs. I will see you all again," he said with a faint smile, glancing about the window at the spring sunshine in University Park.

He then ate supper in a restaurant and went back to jail.

Work has begun on remodeling the old Meyer-Kiser Bank Bldg., 136 E. Washington St., which will be occupied about June 1 by the Gus Habich Company, sporting goods store, now located at 142 E.
