

RAISTONS AGAIN NEAR CONVENTION NEWS BY RADIO

Senator's Wife Becomes Expert at 'Tuning In' on New York.

After his wife had hooked up on the instruments and tuned in on New York, United States Senator Ma Furguson today again was interested listener to progress of the Democratic national convention in New York. He made no comment on results of the sixteenth ballot, the first ballot taken today. Early this morning, Ralston was met by his secretary, Richard Buchanan.

Mrs. Ralston is becoming a radio expert.

Mrs. Julian D. Hogate of Danville, sister of Mrs. Ralston, spent the day with the Ralstons. Her husband's son are at the convention. Delegation from the Indiana Society of Chicago called on Ralston last night. In the delegation were Wilbur Nesbit, E. M. Holloway, V. Rice. The Senator accepted an invitation to address the city Dec. 15.

A large American flag was unfurled in the yard of "Hoosier" this morning.

Farm Duties

Senator spent Monday at "Hoosier" listening in on the radio and reading in his study. Visitors included friends from the Senator's home in Lebanon.

In the afternoon Ralston directed putting up of his alfalfa hay in the barn.

"Whoa, Fay, who there now?" Senator called to his brown mare the animal became uneasy while she was plowing hay from the barn into the barn. Old Bob, the year-old family horse, was used to hold the large forks of hay into the loft.

Two Votes Gained

"I gave old Bob away once," Ralston said, "and then bought him back."

Down in the woods a young colored man and his wife sat on the bank fishing in the creek that runs through the farm.

Newspaper men walked back through the woods.

"Is the Senate home?" the fisherman asked. "He sho' is a fine man and I know of two votes he gwina get if those fellas puts him over a Yaw. Jes leave it Mista Hogate."

Neighbors Interested

Both Senator and Mrs. Ralston gain obligingly posed for movie men in the afternoon.

It was necessary for newspaper men to scour the neighborhood looking for a phone, as the recent storm cut several of the lines out of commission.

In every case the neighbors asked about the Ralstons and about the convention news.

Because He Can't Run for Governor Himself Pa Furguson Gets Folks to Vote for Ma Furguson

By NEA Service
T. WORTH, Texas, July 1.—"Farmer Jim" Furguson can't run for Governor, so his wife is running for him.

James E. Furguson, once Governor, resigned in the face of impeachment proceedings several years ago.

Whether or not he can run this year is a legal problem that can't be settled by the courts in time to get his name on the ballot.

So Miriam A. Furguson is running in his stead.

The Fergusons were worth a million dollars in 1914 when the husband entered politics. He has made the money himself. His first office was Governor.

In 1917 impeachment proceedings were brought, charging that he had accepted loans of $150,000 from brewery interests, that he placed $100,000 in State funds in his bank without interest, and that he appropriated $5,000 for his private use.

Furguson denied the charges but resigned to escape certain impeachment.

His vindication, he believed, could only come from the hands of the voters. Yet, when he left the chair he was almost broke. He had no money to make a fight.

In spite of that he has planned his campaign.

While Mrs. Furguson runs the modest butcher shop in Temple and campaigns within the county, where he was once a financial power, "Farmer Jim" is stumping the State.

He is an unusual orator, and his plea to "vote for Ma Furguson for my sake" often moves his audience to tears.

MISBRANDING CHARGED

Violation of Mattress Laws Is Alleged by Worley.

C. F. Edwards, Detroit, Mich., owner of the Indiana Mattress Company, 866 N. Senate Ave., and P. D. Fowers, manager, today were charged with violation of the mattress laws in affidavits filed in Criminal Court by Investigator Claude M. Worley. The Better Business Bureau instigated the charges, Worley said. It is charged mattresses were misbranded as to material.

Among thirteen other affidavits were two charging Val Alexander, 1225 Alford St., colored constable, with embezzlement and larceny. Alexander represented to the mother of Charles Edward Henry, colored, charged with murder of Patrolman Jesse Louden, that he would use $25 to get bond for the son, it is alleged.

BRACKEN BALKS AT HIRING NEW STATEHOUSE MEN

Charges Employes Being Re-named for Political Reasons.

State Auditor Robert Bracken, as a member of the State buildings and grounds committee, today refused to approve new appointments made by Henry Roberts, Statehouse custodian, declaring they were filling places of men removed for factional and political reasons. The appointments were approved by Governor Emmett F. Branch and Ed Jackson, secretary of State, other members of the committee.

Bracken said a number of colored men who had been working in the Statehouse as janitors for years were "let out" and other men put in their places. The new names on the payroll are Harry Bryant, white policeman, Sherman T. Davis, janitor, Robert Bailey, white, elevator man, and Bruce Oaks, janitor. Bailey, a Statehouse employee for years had been ill since March. A relative of Roberts' took his place. It is understood Roberts was not going to re-employ Bailey at first, but pressure was brought to bear upon him and Bailey was finally retained.

The men who were "let out" were James Kurtz, Clark Coleman and J. P. Stanton, janitors and William Ash, policeman.

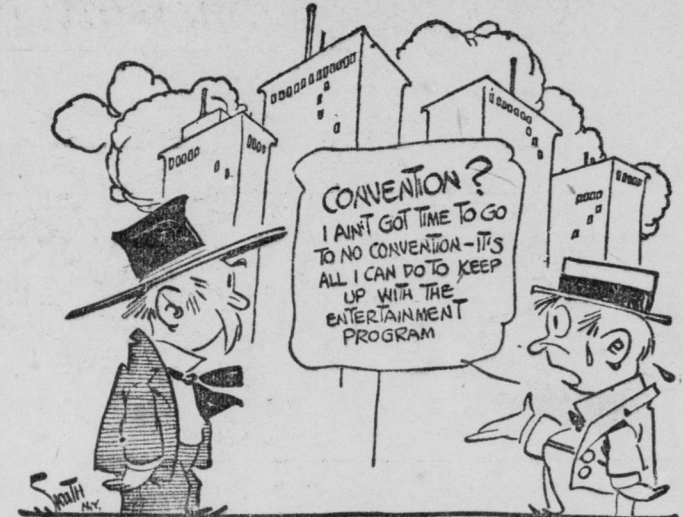

Bracken's statement: "The auditor objects to the removal of capable janitors for factional and political reasons and the employment of new men in their stead. The auditor refuses to approve the new appointments."

The matter has been brought to the attention of Governor Branch. His signature on the appointment sheet and pay roll is usually a mere formality proceeding. Branch, it is said, may rescind his approval in the face of Bracken's action.

Witnesses said the girl hopped off an ice wagon and ran in front of White's car. White was charged with assault and battery.

Motor Policemen Heller and Seifert took the girl to the city hospital.

They're Convention Beauty Nominees

Here are the beauty candidates of the Democratic national convention. Their campaign slogan was: "The best flit win. They have adopted as a platform, protective tariff for powder puffs and lipsticks; Government control of the chocolate fudge industry; more and better marcel waves; but they were hopelessly deadlocked on the one-step. # Golfers Now Tell Fish Stories to Greens Committee Chairman

"If you don't keep those sunfish out of the cups and those carp and pike and bass off the greens we are going to resign," shouted a bunch of indignant golfers at the chairman of the greens committee of the Maxinkuckee Country Club on Lake Maxinkuckee, Ind., one day last week. About half the club members are from Indianapolis.

"This thing of having the cups used for diving lessons for minnows and the greens and fairways for swimming races of the big fish has got to stop."

"I busted my pet niblick chasing a fifteen-pound carp off the green," one aggrieved club member wailed.

"Yes, and look at this brassie where a gar bit it," wailed another.

"Two turtles laid me a styvie!" was the kick of a third grouchy member.

Meantime the chairman of the greens committee is up against the real thing. He insists it is not his fault that the highest water in the lake's history let in a flock of the finny proletariat on his greens. He tries to pass the buck to the link architects who put some of the holes in low ground.

But the club members insist it is all his fault and that the least he can do is to post signs along the lake front warning the fish to keep off the links.

69 ALIENS DEPART

Certificates to Clear Ports Increase Over June, 1923.

Sixty-nine certificates were granted to resident aliens in Indiana during June allowing them to clear United States ports to visit foreign lands, according to report today by M. Bert Thurman, internal revenue collector. Thirteen applicants were from Indianapolis.

The total leaving Indiana is an increase of twelve over June last year and of seven over May, 1924.

Destinations of the aliens were Belgium, eighteen; Great Britain, fourteen; Italy, five; Switzerland, four; France and Spain, three each; Syria, Roumania, Scotland, Poland, Macedonia, Sweden, two each and one each to Finland, Bolivia, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia, China, Hungary, Lithuania, Bulgaria, Holland and Germany.

Explorer's Gold Sought Again

By Times Special

REDKEY, Ind., July 1.—The search is on again in Jay County for the hidden "pot of gold."

Years ago, the story goes, a party of explorers passing through this section, were attacked by Indians and a band of robbers. They had a large amount of gold with them and buried it in a secret place.

The treasure never was recovered, although tradition has it that it is buried somewhere along the old "Godfrey Trail" on lands that later became the old Allen Brooks farm in Greene Township.

For many years searches have been made on the farm. "Water witches," "ore finders" and other devices have been employed.

Last year John DeMoss and Floyd Brooks came across information that led them to dig a large excavation on the farm. They encountered water and gave up the search.

Now Henry Head, former resident of Redkey and Dunkirk, has moved on the Burk farm and is starting excavation in a new location.

The "Godfrey Trail" which was used in pioneer days, is still noticeable, although it was abandoned years ago.

POOR FISH SAVE PEARL BUTTON INDUSTRY IN U.S.

Hatcheries Established Inoculated With Mussel Spawn.

By Times Special
WASHINGTON, July 1.—It is one told you fish were responsible for most of the pearl button manufactured in the United States, and first thought you probably would think they had been affected by the heat.

Nevertheless it's a fact and Uncle Sam is spending thousands of dollars a year on fish to preserve the button industry with its annual payroll to workers of more than $500,000.

Practically all the pearl button manufactured in this country come from mussels or clams gathered in the Mississippi River or its tributaries. The mussels grow from spawn known as mussel glochidia, and their spreading is dependent on the migration of fish.

Are Little Parasites

The glochidia, which in reality are little parasites, fasten themselves onto the gills of fish and remain for about three weeks until they are developed sufficiently to drop off and grow into large clams.

Recently such incursions have been made on both the supply of fish and mussels that the button manufacturers appealed to the Government for assistance. They stated unless some way was found to replenish the supply of mussels we would soon be forced to depend for pearl buttons on the Japanese.

Numerous experiments were immediately conducted by the Bureau of Fisheries resulting in the discovery that game fish raised in Government hatcheries could be inoculated with the glochidia simply by placing them in a tub containing mussel spawn.

Hatcheries Established

So one hatchery has been established at Lake Peppen where the mussel spawn is raised and sent to various Government hatcheries where "fish rescue" crews operate.

The Government now has seven such crews working along the Mississippi. In 1923 more than 600,000 bass, pike, perch, muskellunge, and other game fish were treated.

The result has been to increase supply of mussels so materially that the danger of the pearl button industry closing down has been averted.

SCHOOL DAYS RECALLED

Nicholas Murray Butler Tells of Corporal Punishment.

PATERSON, N. J., July 1.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University and graduate of the Paterson High School, class of 1875, met twelve of his former classmates today when he laid the cornerstone of the Paterson High School in Park Ave. After greeting his former companions, the head of Columbia gave a reminiscent speech in which he told something of the days when he was a school boy.

In those days corporal punishment was inflicted. He doubted whether young men now in school could hit the callous spots on their hands such as he had in his school days.

He instances how one principal could raise a blister with the flat blow of the ruler and then break with the second blow.
