

NO HOLD-UPS ENTER AND ROB FILLING STATION

Police Investigate Rifling of East Side Drug Store—
Loot Cash Register.

A filling station and a drug store were held up late Friday night. Raymond C. Linn, 707 E. Twenty-second St., attendant at the Sinclair Company filling station, La Salle and E. Washington Sts., told police men came into the station and explained of car trouble and inquired as to a certain grade of oil. Linn said he reached for a sample when he faced the man he saw was looking into the barrel of a revolver. Linn said the man ordered him to get into the next room and then took $25 from the register. Linn called L. J. Drew, superintendent, and police. They could find no trace of the bandit.

Drug Store Entered

"Lay down behind that counter or I will blow you up," Herman McLeay, druggist, at 3302 E. New York St., said two men entered the store with revolvers drawn. McLeay said he complied with the request and one of the men took $51 from the cash register. While the bandits were in the store, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ogbon, 47 Brookville road, and Miss Lucille Williams, 1429 Bellefontaine St., entered and saw the bandits run out. They told Sgt. Dean that the men got into a touring car and drove north on La Salle St. A woman was sitting in the rear seat, they told police. One of the men is thought to be the man who held up the filling station an hour later, police say.

Pay Telephone Opened

A young man broke open a pay telephone at the Washington Ball Park Friday during the ball game and capped with the contents. Charles Kettell, 2757 Baltimore Ave., reports his candy store at that address was entered by breaking a lock and candy valued at $3 taken. Thomas Mitchell, 540 N. Warman Ave., reports two auto tires and fruit valued at $50 were taken from his home at 526 Centennial St. Police are asked in a wire from Sheriff Taylor, Franklin, Ind., to catch for a man and a woman who entered a house there Friday.

NEW INVENTIONS FOR RADIO FAIR

World's Exhibition to Be Held in New York.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Inventors are getting ready to send heretofore unheard of ideas and apparatus for exhibition at the first radio world's fair, which will be held here Sept. 20 to 23.

The promise of new inventions is great that Managers U. J. Herrmann and James F. Kerr have been compelled to enlarge the "New Inventions Section" for the exhibition to 100 devices.

Among the noteworthy American discoveries to be shown will be at least three different methods for transmitting photographs by radio. Europe also will be well represented.

The first program of radio motion pictures may come from this fair. Herrmann and Kerr hope to be able to broadcast the first radio movie now on the opening night of the exposition.

AUTOS MEET HEAD-ON

Both Motorists Slated on Charges of Driving Car While Drunk.

L. A. Dugan, 516 Minerva St., and W. Youngman, 20 W. Pratt St., were under arrest today on charges of driving a car while intoxicated, and driving on the left side of the street, following a head-on collision at Eleventh St. and Capitol Ave.

The men attempted to pass cars at the same time and crashed into the center of the street, police said.

Manly Art Has Part in Boys' Camp Program

Here are Louis and Harry Kollinger, the popular twins attending the camp maintained by the Indianapolis Boys' Club Association, three and one-half miles northwest of Noblesville, Ind. They not only look alike but swim, play, eat and partake in all activities alike, said Will Wertz, superintendent. "Because these boys are twins they are wherever you want 'em," said Wertz. Sammie Cohen is showing Neson Yosha how easy it would be to hit him squarely on the jaw. Friendly tilts in boxing and wrestling are eagerly engaged in by the boys under efficient supervision. About forty-five boys will attend the camp next week, Wertz said. From reveille at 6:30 a. m. to taps at 9 p. m., the campers engage in a daily instructive and recreational program. The camp at the fork of Henkle and Cicero creeks is a model of cleanliness. Each boy has his individual duties which help to make the camp one of the most ideal for boys in the State. It is maintained especially for boys whose families cannot afford to give them an outing.

EVANGELIST ON SUNDAY PROGRAM

Rev. D. E. Boatwright to Speak at Cadle Tabernacle.

The Rev. D. E. Boatwright, evangelist of Des Moines, Iowa, who has just closed a revival at Danville, Ill., will preach Sunday at Cadle Tabernacle under auspices of the Christian laymen's committee.

BOATWRIGHT

Rev. Boatwright has positive views upon questions of the day. He is quoted as holding that the world is not growing better, that the average religion of the time has little effect, that he does not favor the evolution theory, but believes man has fallen from a higher realm, and that so long as selfishness is the predominant note in human relations, world peace cannot be accomplished.

WAIVES EXAMINATION

Alleged Thief Admits He Has Two Wives.

Seyboard Ensminger, 19, of 615 Birch Ave., is held today in the Marion County jail under $4,000 bond awaiting trial by the grand jury, after waiving examination in city court Friday on charges of burglary and grand larceny.

According to police Ensminger, who confessed to stealing $60, after entering the grocery of Joseph Pickens, also admitted he had two wives.

According to Ensminger's confession he married Marie Lehman, 531 Virginia Ave., in Franklin, Ind., on July 15. He has a wife and a seven-month-old daughter living at the Birch Ave. address.

Clem Shaver, New Head of Democratic National Committee, Is 'Pussyfoot' to Home Town Folks

By Times Special
LANCOST, W. Va., July 25.—He is Clem L. Shaver outside his home town. But here, where he has spent the best years of his life, he's just plain "Pussyfoot."

He doesn't make much noise, you see, slipping around from place to place in his political campaigns. And he creeps up on the opposition in much the same manner as a cat slips up on a bird or mouse.

THE new chairman of the Democratic national committee, however, hasn't always caught his political prey. But neither has he always failed. He is an organizer far above the average. Back in 1911, when the West Virginia Legislature elected C. W. Watson to fill an unexpired term in the United States Senate, a man back in the country wrote his Representative to know who were the men who put Watson over.

The legislator wrote back: "They were Clem Shaver."

SHAYER and John W. Davis, the Democratic presidential nominee, whose campaign Clem will direct, are old friends. They first met when Shaver was Democratic committee chairman of Marion County and Davis was Democratic chairman in the adjoining county of Harrison.

At the 1911 State convention at Wheeling, Shaver engineered the nomination of Davis for Congress, then talked him into accepting it against his will.

The situation at the recent New York convention was almost parallel.

"Quit picking on me, Clem," said Davis one day. "What are you going to do to me, anyhow?" "No more than I did at Wheeling," Shaver replied. And that precisely is what he did.

THEY say Shaver began figuring out the Davis presidential campaign three years ago. As the date of the convention approached, Shaver's plans became more and more detailed.

So complete were they that C. E. Smith, one of "Pussyfoot's" aids, ordered reservations in New York before leaving here for the exact number of days the convention was in session.

SHAYER is reticent and unassuming. He says little. He dislikes to pose for pictures. There are few photographs of him in existence.

When the accompanying pictures were snapped he said: "I hate this. But I guess it is the penalty for getting into the limelight."

FISHING AND HUNTING, though, are about the only subjects on which get Clem Shaver to talk on. They and his foxhounds and his horses and his cows are his hobbies.

He has fishing camps on the south branch of the Potomac and on the Capon River.

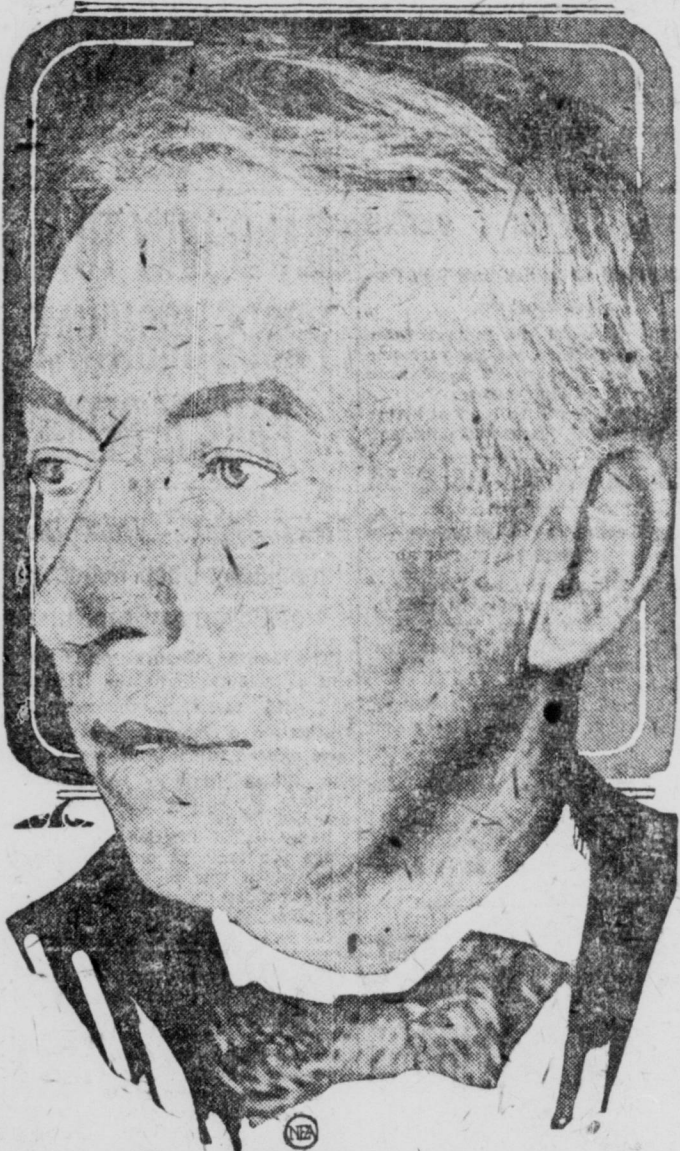

When he wants to hunt, he does not have to go off his "reservation"—his farm six miles from here.

He and his friends can find all the foxes they want on Shaver's place and neighboring farms.

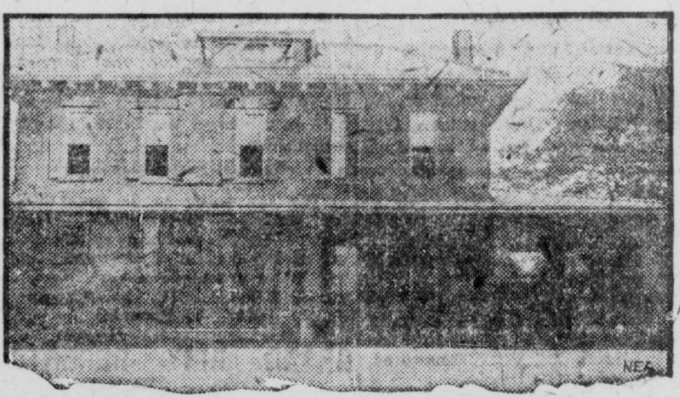

Nearly everybody in this county has a Shaver foxhound—or a near-Shaver hound.

Clem has been raising them for years. And they've taken the blue ribbons in scores of shows.

So have his cows, his horses and his chickens.

A Story Without Words

BROTHER CHARLIE DOES NOT APPEAR IN 'WHO'S WHO'

Rise in Politics Began in 1915, When He Was Elected Mayor.

By Times Special
LINCOLN, Neb., July 25.—If you want to know anything about Charles Wayland Bryan of Nebraska, Democratic nominee for Vice President, don't look in your "Who's Who."

Bryan, W. J., is there. So is Mrs. W. J., and there is a Bryan, Charles Paul, diplomat, listed on those exclusive pages. But there is no Bryan, Charles W., Governor of Nebraska.

This doesn't seem to worry C. W. Bryan in the least. His main worry is "those newspaper men," who have been on his trail ever since he was nominated in New York.

The Governor is a big, brown-eyed middle westerner. He is the easiest person in the world to meet. National politics doesn't look awesome to him. But if you get him on the subject of his brother, "W. J.," his brown eyes light up and he speaks with great respect of the "Great Communicator" and the famous speech about the "crown of thorns and the cross of gold."

C. W. Bryan never appeared in the spotlight until 1915. He had come to Nebraska along about 1890. A young man then, in his early twenties, he wondered what he ought to do, and finally opened a cigar store on a side street in Omaha. A little later he went on the road as a traveling salesman for a firm in Lincoln manufacturing cooking extracts.

Then dawned the famous year of 1896 when W. J. jumped with both feet into the nomination for the presidency. C. W. became his secretary. For eight years he kept at it, for W. J. made another try in 1900. In 1901 Bryan's defeat caused him to start his paper, The Communicator. C. W. was business manager. In 1908 W. J. made another try for the presidency, and lost again. By this time C. W. had every Democrat in the country card catalogued. He knew the "inside game."

C. W. Bryan's first fling in politics was of a more modest nature than anything taken by his brother. He was elected mayor of Lincoln in 1915. In this job he fought high prices of ice, coal and gas successfully. In 1921, when the voters wanted Bryan again as mayor, the city commissioners elected another man to that position, which they were empowered to do, and gave Bryan the lowest office on the commission—street commissioner.

This action so aroused popular indignation that Bryan was swept into office as Governor in 1922 by a 75,000 majority, though he was a Democrat and 1922 was a Republican year in Nebraska. Senator Howell, Republican, was elected to the United States Senate that year, defeating Senator Hitchcock, Democrat.

FIRE AT LUMBER PLANT WILL BE PROBED BY CHIEF

O'Brien to Investigate Cause
Water Pressure and Delay of Alarms.

Thorough investigation into the work of the fire department and the alleged poor water pressure at the Dymes-Pohlman Lumber Company $100,000 fire early Friday morning at the plant, Twenty-Eighth St. and the Monon railroad was begun by Fire Chief John J. O'Brien today.

O'Brien said he had requested detailed reports from Police Lieut. O. D. Thomas and Patrolman Musgrove. Musgrove turned in the alarm when he saw a shed ablaze in the rear of the home of William Patton, 2849 McPherson St. He said he ran to the box at Thirtieth and McPherson Sts., and records at the electrical department show the alarm came in at 2:51 a. m. Battalion Chief Voshell was the first to arrive, O'Brien said, and records show he did not sound the second alarm for thirteen minutes, at 3:04 a. m., and then Acting Chief Harry Johnson arrived. The third alarm, Musgrove said, did not sound until 3:15, fourteen minutes later.

O'Brien said he had not had time to question these men due to the fact that they had worked hard at the fire and Friday was their day off. He planned to question them today.

Lieutenant Thomas said that he arrived after 3 a. m. and at that time persons along McPherson St. attempted to put water on their roofs with garden hose but the pressure was such that they could not. He said this was at 3:30 a. m.

O'Brien said he answered the third alarm from his home on Orange St., and that when he arrived the pressure was fair and that he called the water company and it immediately came on strong.

O'Brien stated he planned to visit the scene of the fire today and test the mains about the lumber yard to get the pressure under natural conditions and that he was also going to hold an interview with the water company officials at which time he was going to check the pump gauges that show the pressure that was on at the time of the fire.
