

ASSEMBLY HALL WILL BE ERECTED AT G. A. R. HOME

Federated Patriotic Societies
Plan Campaign to Raise Fund.

A new assembly hall in rear of Grand Army of the Republic home, 512 N. Illinois St., is planned by Federated Patriotic Societies of which Mrs. Edna Pauley is president. The hall, accommodating 400 persons, will cost about $6,000. With $2,000 in the treasury, the remainder is expected to be raised in September by selling 10,000 tickets for 50 cents each, the cost of a brick. Several lawn fetes have been given for the fund.

Dr. Sol Reynolds gave the home to the veterans. It opens at 8 a. m. daily. Once a month a dinner is given for the veterans.

The thirty-ninth annual reunion of the Persimmon Brigade will be held at the home, Sept. 3. Dinner will be served by Anderson Women's Relief Corps No. 44. The brigade, composed of four Indiana regiments, reposed its name while in Tennessee, where the soldiers lived on persimmons for several days.

Three candidates were initiated Thursday afternoon by Alvin P. Hovey, Woman's Relief Corps No. 196, of which Mrs. M. L. Vanderhoff is president.

A Dumb-Bell Wife Makes Man Lord and Ruler of His Domain

But He'll Have to Find His 'Inspiration' Elsewhere.

By MRS. WALTER FERGUSON
A minister in Kansas is advising the young men of his congregation to marry girls who have domestic rather than intellectual tendencies. He says they will make the best wives.

This is no discovery. To some men, dumb-bells have always made the best wives. Dumb-bells are the kind that you can get easily and train without trouble. They have the doornat complex, and are easy to manage. They are gullible and unsuspecting and humble; they weep easily, but never answer back.

The wife who lacks intelligence and never reads the papers and isn't interested in politics, and would not recognize an idea if she met it in the road, generally does wonderful, crochets and wouldn't cross her husband for the world.

The dumb-bell thinks that the man she has married is the nation's matrimonial prize and hangs on his words as if he were an oracle. She never questions his decisions and harbors no opinion that does not agree with his. She loves cooking for him and meets him each night at the front door with his slippers and puts out his clothes every morning and gets his bath ready. She is the ideal wife for the man who wants a housekeeper, cook, valet and audience in one, for a spouse.

And she surely makes a grand mate for the dumb-bell man, but woe to the other kind who fails for her domesticity.

For there are some things no man can expect from a stupid wife.

She can never give her husband any intellectual assistance; she will never act as a spur to his ambitions; she will never help him along socially; she will never be a political confidante and companion, and she will never be able to give him brilliant sons and talented daughters.

If you men really want a dumb-bell in the house, go out and hire her; but think well before you decide to marry one.

Good Lines

It is indeed uncommon for such graceful and elegant lines to be found on so utilitarian a garment as a flannel coat dress, but here they are. The cape is detachable and may be left at home whenever desired. The collar may be worn closed at the neck as in the photograph or opened in a V. The waistline in front occurs at the junction of the first tier of the skirt, but in the back it is only suggested by the tie belt. This outfit is very practical for fall and lends itself gracefully to the addition of a fur neck-piece or a colored scarf.

FABLES ON HEALTH

Buttermilk Beneficial

WITH the coming of hot days, Mr. Mann of Anytown was wont to visit soda fountains and ask for buttermilk.

Few people know how important a part the use of sour milk, in any of its forms—whether buttermilk or one of the many especially prepared concoctions—plays in fighting intestinal poisonings.

Lactic acid, which is the acid contained in sour milk, is a medium in which putrefactive germs cannot thrive. So, if one can keep some milk germs in the intestinal tract manufacturing their belligerent lactic germs a constant enemy of intestinal poisons will be on hand.

This does not mean that the mere swallowing of a little sour milk will do the work. The good germs must be kept alive and to do this we must feed them.

The foods which best aid in the propagation of these good germs include a rather free usage of milk, some cereal such as oatmeal, cooked for but ten minutes, or a slight amount of raw starch.

What If Wives Struck for Evidence of Love?

Just what would happen, I wonder, if, some day, the many wives who have become hardly more than housekeepers to their husbands, would rise up in revolt and would proclaim:

The Tangle

But there's some more mixup about it that I don't just understand, and his highness, Gentleman Jack, imagines he has been very much abused. He's such a boy, Bee, that I can't help liking him, although all the while I feel like boxing his ears. He ought to have a woman like me to tell him where he would get off. I rather imagine that friend of his, who was here at the wedding, Sydney Carton, does this very often.

By the way, Mr. Sydney didn't care for me a bit. He seemed to feel that I was vamping poor little Jackie boy. Oh, well, one more person who doesn't care for me doesn't matter much. I presume I am a woman with the greatest number of haters in her train that any one knows, and I rather like them. They amuse me.

"We are the women who married. We still want to be loved, and flattered and admired. If we have changed, if some of the charm that made you fall in love with us is gone, it is because you have crushed it out by indifference.

"Day after day we care for your house and your children. We see that you have what you desire. We drudge, drudge, drudge.

"Then you come, 'worn out' by your day's labor. Still we work for you. When you feel the need of recreation you take it.

"But what about us? We must await your pleasure. You are the ones who work, whose wishes must be consulted.

"Think you that we do not work, that we are not tired, that we need no recreation?

"We work, too. Our 'pay' must come from love, and tenderness and thoughtfulness.

"For years we have gone unpaid. Now we strike. When our pay is forthcoming we shall return to our duties.

"Those are our terms."

What would happen, I wonder.

One of Them.

My Dear Martha Lee: I am 27. My husband is 35. We have been married about 15 years and have a darling boy 4 years old.

My husband and I spend almost every evening at home. Lots of times I would like to go places, but he says so many times that when he works eight hours a day he wants to stay home. But he always is ready to go to the ball game or poolroom or fishing, on Saturday afternoon or Sunday.

He never stops to realize I have worked for him and the boy all week. If I go to school or to church, he says I go because I seek a change, because my husband fails to give me any attention.

What do you think of a man who has no desire to go to church? Before we were married, he always went with me.

Sometimes I think I am happy; I try to hard to be. But my conscience keeps telling me my child and I are neglected. That my child deserves the right teaching and inspiration from his daddy.

I feel as if all he cares for me is just to keep house for him. All I want is for him to consider my feelings and help me teach and set the right example before our boy.

A DISCOURAGED WIFE.
If your husband were dissatisfied with working conditions, probably he would strike. Why should you not do the same thing, if you are dissatisfied?

Let him get his own meals, mend his own shirts, darn his own stockings for a while. Tell him that you are willing to do your part to make your home happy, but that you expect him to do his, as well. His part means more than just providing the necessities, just as yours means more than keeping house.

Let him have his ball games and pool games. But make it a "fifty-fifty" proposition, so that he takes you out occasionally, too.

Not Flirting

Dear Miss Lee: While on a camping trip, we have not asked us for any dates since. We had been in the habit of going to a nearby shore. Now these boys are coming there. If we continue to go, to this show, do you think they will think we are flirting after them? We only go there for the pictures, and not to flirt and have dates with them. Will it be all right if we continue to go, although the boys are there?

TROUBLED THO.
If you conduct yourselves as you should, I don't know why these boys should suspect you of "flirting" with them, or why you should change your plans just because they happen to attend the same show.

Household Suggestions

Red Popular
If you don't wear red you aren't fashionable these days. Entire gowns of red are even more popular than trimmings of red on black or white.

Ottoman
Silk ottoman is used to make very lovely coats for fall that are banded with luxurious furs.

Chiffon
Embroidered chiffon is used to trim cloth and silk dresses and to give just enough decoration.

Colored Hats
Brilliantly colored hats with shiny fruit are very much liked to give pop to black or dark blue hats.

Lip Rouge
The latest report from Paris is that women are abandoning all make-up except brilliant rouge for the lips.

Floppy Hats
The very large droopy, floppy hat is very smart in Paris as well as in New York and is usually worn with the very short frock.

Cape Backs
Cape backs and tier panels feature the new fur coats that are ready for the August sales.

GOOD MANNERS Godparents For Child

BEFORE setting the date for the christening, the godmothers (two for a girl and one for a boy) and the godfathers (two for a boy and one for a girl) have, of course, already been chosen.

Fall Suits
Three-piece suits for fall have very long coats that may be worn a separate coat as well.

Cleaning Reed
Clean reed and willow baskets by rubbing with a stiff brush.

At the first sign of skin trouble apply Resinol

That patch of eruption is not necessarily a serious matter! Even in severe, well-established cases of eczema, ringworm or similar affections, Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap usually relieve the itching at once and quickly overcome the trouble completely. How much more, then, can this simple, inexpensive treatment be relied on to dispel skin troubles in their earlier stages.

Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment are sold by all druggists. For samples of each, free, write to Dept. J. R., Resinol, Baltimore, Md.
