

FLAPPER BANDIT- ADMITS CRIME WAS FRAME-UP

Names Attendant in Plot— Other Girl Is Innocent.

A defected figure with her blonde bobbed tresses away after a night in the city prison, Indianapolis' "flapper bandit" in the person of Mrs. Jvannetta Freels, 23, of 854 W. New York St., greeted early morning visitors in the matron's office at police headquarters today.

Mrs. Freels and James Noonan, 31, of 1515 N. Capitol Ave., filling station attendant at the Great Western Oil station at Twenty-Ninth St. and Northwestern Ave., who reported to police he was held up and robbed of $14 by two bobbed-hair girls in a coupe Sunday, were arrested Tuesday by Detectives Harris and Kurasch on charges of conspiracy to commit a felony and vagrancy, after obtaining a statement from the couple the robbery had been framed.

"I don't know why I did it," the "bandit" said as she asked the matron for a comb. "I drove up to the filling station and Noonan handed me about $11 and I drove away." It was all over before I knew it."

Noonan and Mrs. Freels were bound over to grand jury under $3,000 bond.

Bootlegging Broached

The confessions in the hands of the detectives state Noonan and Mrs. Freels were riding Saturday when the subject of bootlegging was broached. Noonan said illicit liquor dealing was not as lucrative as the robbing of filling stations. Noonan, according to the statement told the girl to come to the filling station Sunday afternoon and he would stage the fake hold-up. Losing her nerve Mrs. Freels did not appear until after dark. Using a machine borrowed from Paul Marlow, 1034 Congress Ave., Mrs. Freels drove to the filling station with a girl who she said she did not know by name. According to the confession Noonan came up to the machine and gave the girl between $11 and $12 after he had filled the tank with gas. Noonan in his statement said the girl had a revolver, but Mrs. Freels denied this.

Cartridges Are Clew

The apprehending of the couple was due to the fact detectives Harris and Kurasch were suspicious when Noonan gave them two 45-caliber cartridges which he said the bandits dropped from the automatic gun they were carrying. It was pointed out cartridges cannot be removed from an automatic revolver without removing the clip or discharging the weapon. Noonan told police the bandits did neither. Noonan was called to police headquarters Friday to identify some pictures in the Bertillon gallery and during the questioning he confessed, implicating Mrs. Freels. She was arrested at her home and brought to headquarters where she corroborated Noonan's statement excepting a few minor details.

N. Y. ON TAXICAB SPREE

Decreased Rates Sends City on Great Joy Ride.

By Times Special NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—New York, with a tax rate in existence that is within reach of almost every one's pocketbook, is now doing more taxi riding than ever before in its history. The town is on a taxi spree.

The slashing of rates that made the once lowly dime a factor in taxi-transportation has resulted also in a vast increase in the number of taxi users and an increase in the earnings of the drivers. But whether the cab owners can survive under present conditions is a question in the minds of many persons associated with the taxi industry.

Kenyon Engaged by Ince

Doris Kenyon comes from New York to play the principal feminine role in Thomas H. Ince's production of "Doctor X" for First National Pictures, under the direction of Lambert Hillyer. Percy Marshall is cast for the title role of the Joseph C. Lincoln novel, others in the cast being Malcolm McGregor, Lucille Ricksen, Claude Gillingwater, Dan Mason, Vivian Ogden and Ruby Lafayette, who unblushingly admits that she is over 80 and is said to be the oldest actress on the screen. To date no one has contested this distinction.

AWARD ON CITY LOAN IS HELD UP

Chicago Bank Must Guarantee Immediate Money.

Although the Harris Savings and Trust Company of Chicago was the best bidder on the $500,000 temporary loan of Indianapolis today, Joseph L. Hogue, city controller withheld the award until the city could be guaranteed immediate receipt of the money.

The Chicago bank offered to loan the city the money at an interest rate of 2.89 per cent, but the representative insisted that transcript of the loan be sent to Chicago for legal examination. Local bankers objected to this, but Hogue granted an extension until late today.

The Union Trust Company of Indianapolis offered the city the money at interest of 3.15 per cent; the Fletcher Savings and Trust Company at 3.25 per cent and the Merchants National Bank and Indiana Trust Company on a joint bid of 3.59 per cent.

Law Steps Between Woman, 42, Blind, Deaf-Mute She Would Wed

KIEVE KAPLAN AND MINNIE YUDA.

BY HAROLD MATSON NEA Service Writer.

BOSTON, Aug. 27.—The city of Boston doesn't want to let Minnie Yuda marry Kieve Kaplan.

Minnie is a waitress, 42-years-old. She is a big, strong woman of Russian peasant stock. Somehow romance escaped her in her youth. She has always worked, serving meals in restaurants where tired laborers eat. Hers has been a lonely life.

And now that Minnie has found one she loves the law, which she does not understand, says that it cannot be.

When she first applied for a license she was given an application blank to fill out, and after the name, Kieve Kaplan, she wrote the age, 21.

The clerk balked. She would have to bring the groom, if he was that much younger than she.

"But he can not come," she cried. Minnie's tears and pleas left the clerk unyielding.

Next day she appeared again, followed by three husky men who were carrying a fourth. The fourth was Kieve Kaplan, Minnie's prospective groom.

"He'll have to sign the application," said the clerk.

"He can not see," explained Minnie.

"Do you want to marry Minnie Yuda?" the clerk asked of Kieve.

Kieve stood limp, supported by the men.

"He can not hear—he is deaf," Minnie said impatiently.

"Make him speak, then, so that we know that he knows what he is doing."

"He can not speak—he is dumb," said Minnie.

"He is deaf, dumb, blind and crippled! Why do you want to marry him?"

"Because I love him," explained Minnie.

But the love of Minnie Yuda for Kieve Kaplan is not enough to convince the city of Boston that the two should marry.

Kieve, likely unaware of his presence or his fate at the marriage counter, was carried much like a corpse back to his place in the shade of the railroad bridge near Castle St. There he sits from early morning until late night.

Stacks of newspapers, boxes of chewing gum, rolls of shoelaces are piled about him. Passersby take of these and leave pennies in the little wooden box.

"I love him. I want to care for him, to stand by his side," Minnie answers your question.

She goes to visit Kieve, standing by him silently, and there is more tragedy in her seeing eyes and her voice that speaks than in the face of Kieve, the mute, resigned, expressionless.

PEAT FOUND IN MASS.

Shifting Sands Uncover Bed Near Cape Cod.

By Times Special EASTHAM, Mass., Aug. 27.—Peat beds uncovered at Nauset Beach, near this town, by the shifting of sand dunes may prove a boon to Cape Cod people troubled by the fuel problem. The peat can be made easily into dried briquettes for cooking and heating.

Capt. Abbott Walker of the Eastham Coast Guard station discovered the peat a few weeks ago when a rounded knoll of black soil was laid bare as the wind lashed the sand away. For several centuries, according to geologists familiar with the shifting and rebuilding of Cape Cod, the winds over the sea have been working to uncover an ancient deposit of leaf mold and fallen timber from what once was a great cedar forest.

FRATS' BIRTHDAY PARTY BEGINS

Carnival Features Night's Doings.

The Beta Phi Sigma convention waxing more and more enthusiastic as the temperature and the numbers rise bids fair to do justice to its twenty-fifth birthday party.

With a register showing 250 names this morning, the first day of registration, and "the boys" still coming in for the carnival dance tonight, which will be a gay affair. Booths will be arranged around the roof garden of the Severin with every possible form of fun there to be bought with real Beta Phi Sigma money (bought as you go in).

This afternoon an informal tea dance in the roof garden was held. The business sessions were opened this morning with welcoming addresses from Mayor Lewis Shank and Col. John B. Reynolds of the Chamber of Commerce. A smoker for the early arrivals Tuesday night gave the needed zest to local committees for their weeks of work. They include Hollis Ferris, local president; Edward Fullan, Kennard Davidson, Walter R. Bonnell, Carl Craig and Albert T. Hart of Peoria, Ill., grand president.

$500 CASH FOR TEXT.

London Vicar Believes Sunday Recreation O. K.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—The Rev. Arthur Gould, vicar of Huttoft, Lancashire, offers $500 reward to any one who can produce a single text in the Bible prohibiting Sunday games.

He advocates that the village war memorial should be a club where tennis, croquet and billiards can be played, and that it should be open on Sundays.

King's Granddaughter Gets Human Touch in Dirty Workroom of Chicago Leather Shop

NEA Service Writer.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—The royal road to learning, Countess Elsa Bernadotte discovered, is the same road of sweat and struggle which the lowliest plebeian must tread.

The road for the Countess has led through a leather shop—grimy, hot, dusty, noisy and full. To the hard eyes of a shop foreman, the king's granddaughter and Judy O'Grady are sisters, not only under their skins, but on the outside.

But the Countess Elsa's road to learning is a self-chosen path, not an enforced exile. And she has thriven on the journey.
