

EXIT CATCHES UP WITH KICKS ON CITY SERVICE

reet Hole, Weed and Lighting Complaints Receive Attention.

MR. FIXIT, city hall "go-between," is still on the job. He has finally caught up with complaints of Times readers, and is ready to act immediately as a shock absorber between the public and the city administration. Send him any troubles you have with city departments. Today's mail:

DEAR MR. FIXIT—There is a hole in the street at Chadwick and Henry Sts. It is dangerous for trees and automobiles. Neighbors Henry St.

Frank Reid of the street commissioner's office will see that the hole is filled immediately.

MR. FIXIT—Why did the city clerk cut off its weeds on both sides of Sanders St. on south side of city? Can't there be some money for dirt washing on sidewalk every time it rains? It looks like a cornfield. Harry A. Richwine, Sanders St.

John F. Walker, superintendent of street cleaning, reports the weeds you refer to are on ground controlled by the sanitary board, and will take the matter up with the board. He also will investigate dirt washing over the sidewalks.

MR. FIXIT—There are not half enough lights under the elevation Merrill St. between Pennsylvania and Delaware Sts., when they are running. Now only half of these are working. Also the dirt and mud under this elevation is the worst in Indianapolis. A. J. Smith, 610 S. Pennsylvania St.

Lights out of order under the elevation will be repaired, H. G. Gray, track elevation engineer, said. John F. Walker, superintendent of street cleaning, will see that dirt under the elevation is removed.

Whiten Skin New Safe Way—Free If Not Satisfied

This remarkable new discovery will actively clear and whiten your skin—most overnight! And unless you are amazed and delighted with the result it cost you absolutely nothing—your money will be gladly refunded. Sallowiness, redness, tan, freckles, redness, roughness, pimples and blackheads all vanish. Make this test tonight. Right before bed—smoothen some of this cool, fragrant cream on your skin. Tomorrow morning, notice how mudiness and sallowness have already started to give way. Ask your druggist for a jar of Golden Peacock Bleach Cream (concentrated)—the amazing new harmless discovery of science. At all good drug and department stores.

Asks Divorce

Mrs. Otto H. Lehman, wife of one of the owners of one of Chicago's biggest department stores, has filed suit for divorce. She charges her husband with cruelty. Mrs. Lehman, prominent equestrian and exhibitor of blue-blooded horses, married Lehman after his first wife had divorced him in 1915.

Martha Lee's Column

Reason for Suspicion

Dear Miss Lee: I am 18 and have been married just a year. I don't love my husband, but he seems to be tiring of me. I feel that he loves a girl who pretends to be my friend. They work downtown and are together every evening. When I go to the store, I always meet them walking together.

When she comes to see me, if my husband happens to be out, she waits until he returns. It usually is late and he takes her home. They never speak to me and when I suggest going he tells me it is too far for me. She lives only seven squares away. He never returns for two or three hours.

Should I forbid her coming to my house and his seeing her? Or should I ignore it and wait until he asks for his freedom?

To forbid her your home would only make them more determined than ever to see each other, in all probability. I'd suggest one of two courses. Which would be better in this instance I leave to your judgment, because you know all those concerned:

1. Have the girl over frequently, but have another man in the party. The other man, ostensibly selected as an escort for the unmarried girl, would arouse your husband's jealousy and love, for either you or the other girl, as the case might be. At any rate, your husband would "show his hand" by his actions.

2. Tell your husband that you see that he is losing interest in you, and order him his freedom if he wishes it. Give him time to decide, and in that time play your charms to their fullest, at the same time avoiding any evidence of jealousy.

Calling Cards

Editor, Martha Lee Column: Please advise me in calling cards. I am present, and whether it is proper to add the "Miss" when all you have on the card is your name.

The firm through which you order your cards could tell you of any fads. The regulation plain card, miss' size, engraved in old English block type or script, with the "Miss" prefix, always is in good taste.

Three's a Crowd

Dear Miss Lee: I have been going with a boy two months and have learned to love him, and he for me. There is a married woman that interferes all the time. Every place we go she is right there. We never pay any attention to her, yet she follows. If we go for a walk, she is right there. She plays the role of friend and then she talks about you. Please advise me what to do. R. F. T.

Evidently this self-established chaperon is not to be insulted. Avoid her when possible, if she is obnoxious, and don't give her food for gossip.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

ANNOUNCEMENT of the engagement of Miss Margaret Shouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Shouse, 3225 N. New Jersey St., to Charles R. Farmer, of Franklin, Ind., was made Thursday at a beautifully appointed luncheon and bridge of seven tables

McTangle

LETTER FROM MRS. MARY ALDEN PRESCOTT TO MRS. JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT.

I'm greatly surprised that you have not come home before this. I thought, of course, the moment your father was out of danger you would hurry back to your husband and son. Surely you know that when a woman marries her place is with her husband, especially when her child is also there.

I cannot hold with these new-fashioned ideas which allow a mother to leave and go gallivanting all over the country. Of course I know when you are with your father you have no responsibilities whatever, but you certainly have already had a good rest, and I think you should be here.

John is evidently very much worked. He looks worried. He has not been home to dinner for at least a week. He tells me he works every evening and it would be foolish for him to come home just to eat. He told me this over the phone from his office where I called him up yesterday. I had not seen him for over a week and he had no time to talk to me from his office.

Sarah, too, seems very peculiar about little Jack. She will not let him come to my apartment unless she comes with him. I insist that he shall come here at least once a day, but Sarah is very arbitrary. She hangs around all the time. She will not even let him have a cookie when he comes to grandma's. I told her when Jack's father was little there was a cookie jar just behind the door and all the children in the neighborhood were privileged to go to it whenever they felt like eating. We made cookies every day in the week.

By the way, your cook has left. Dear Priscilla Bradford is making my coffee for me in the morning, and we are going out to our lunches and dinners. Just because dear Priscilla offered to make some Boston baked beans and brown bread, which I have not had since I came to be with you, your cook got very angry. She said she wasn't going to have any one poking around her kitchen.

Priscilla said she thought it was a good thing the cook left, as she never had seen such disorder and extravagance in her life. Why, she said you had three different packages of sugar in your store closet. She spoke of this to the cook, and she was very impudent to dear Priscilla—told her that she had no business to come poking around your place. She hurt Priscilla's feelings to such an extent that the brown bread was not a success. We could not eat it and the beans were burned. Priscilla said it was all on account of the cook making her so unhappy that she could not think of anything except the servant's impudence.

When all this happened called up John at his office and he told me until Priscilla had left. Of course, this put me in a terrible position, as I could not pointedly ask her to go, and she had said nothing about it.

Miss Anderson, too, has been acting very strangely lately. She is not her sunny self at all. In fact, she told me yesterday that she was worn out and would probably have to take a vacation as soon as you return.

You can see you are needed here much more than in your father's house, where you have probably every luxury.

Your loving mother, MARY ALDEN PRESCOTT. (Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

NEXT: Letter From Karl Whitney to Leslie Prescott.

That Kidney Trouble, Take It in Time!

"I have been taking Dr. Pierce's Anuric (anti-uric-acid) Tablets and think they are the greatest medicine in the world for kidney trouble and backache. I have no pains at all any more. I believe I would be dead by now if I had not taken Anuric."

Realizing the great need for an effective home remedy to correct kidney troubles in their early stages, Dr. Pierce put his staff of physicians and chemists at the Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., to work on the problem. In time they worked out this ideal formula, which is called "Anuric" because by strengthening the eliminative action of the kidneys, it works to free the sufferer from the evil effects of uric acid.

Buy Anuric of your neighborhood druggist, or send 10 cents to Dr. Pierce's Invalids Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for trial package—Advertise meat.

DEMOCRATS AFTER JOBS IN CONGRESS

Drive for Majority Plan of Leaders.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Scenting a break in Republican congressional ranks, Democratic leaders have decided to throw every available resource to the aid of their candidates for the Senate and the House in the next few weeks.

The Democrats believe that success of their presidential ticket will prove a hollow victory unless they can control Congress. Many frankly are more confident they can break the Republican majority, particularly in the Senate, than that they can elect John W. Davis.

An army of speakers will be unleashed within a few days under direction of Senator A. A. Jones, chairman of the Senatorial campaign committee.

Farm Financiers Depart
Delegates to the sixth annual meeting of presidents and secretaries of Indiana National Farm Loan Association were en route home today after a discussion of Federal farm loan work at Indianapolis Athletic Club Wednesday.
