

PRIESTS' LEAGUE CALLS MEETING

Catholic Dignitaries to Go to St. Mary's School.

The regional convention of the Priests' Eucharistic League will be held at St. Mary's-of-the-Woods, near Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 10-11. Archbishops, bishops and representatives from every Roman Catholic diocese in the Middle West are expected to attend. Cardinal George Mundelein of Chicago may appear at the convention.

The gathering will initiate plans for the international eucharistic congress, to be held in Chicago, in 1926. The league, established in 1894 at St. Meinrad's abbey at St. Meinrad, Ind., now has more than 12,000 members.

Among other Catholic celebrities to attend the two-day meetings are the Most Rev. Henry Moeller, D. D., archbishop of Cincinnati; the Rt. Rev. Joseph Schomburg, bishop of Cleveland, Ohio; the Rt. Rev. Joseph Chartrand, bishop of St. Paul; Father Vincent Wagner, O. S. B., of St. Meinrad's abbey; and the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Gilbert P. Jennings, L.L.D., of Cleveland, Ohio.

INDIANA INVITES COUNCIL

Oklahoma Forced to Withdraw Invitation for 1925 Meeting.

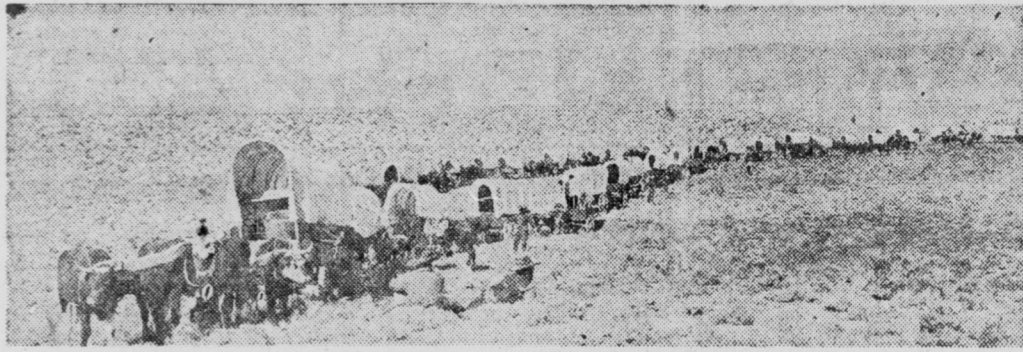

The 1925 council meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs may be held at West Baden, Ind. An invitation from the Indiana Federation to meet there has been extended following a necessary recall from Oklahoma City whose invitation had been accepted by the General Federation board. Failure of a proposed auditorium sufficient to house the council to be built was the cause of Oklahoma's recall.

Indiana's invitation will be submitted to the executive committee this month, for recommendation and to the board for final vote in January.

West Baden is one of the country's famous resorts and has adequate hotel and convention facilities, it is announced.

Here Is a Chance to See 'Covered Wagon' at Ohio

HERE IS A BUNCH OF COVERED WAGONS FROM "THE COVERED WAGON," OPENING SUNDAY AT THE OHIO.

You've heard of "The Covered Wagon."

It is coming next week to the Ohio Theater. There's at least 100 kiddies in Indianapolis who aren't going to miss it this time. The Indianapolis Times is going to see to that. And it's not going to cost them a red cent. It's the Indianapolis Times' treat.

But you must earn it in a very pleasant way. And before you go any further no one over 18 years old will be eligible to compete. What the Indianapolis Times is going to ask you to do is to draw a picture. You've seen covered wagons and heard of them; those old prairie schooners that roamed the plains in the gold rush days of '49.

Take a pen, pencil, crayon or whatever you choose to draw with, conceive in your mind just what a real covered wagon looks like and draw it. And don't forget, there must also be the team of oxen or horses.

The fifty drawings which are adjudged the best will win a pair of tickets to see the Paramount Picture, "The Covered Wagon," at the Ohio.

In addition, the one drawing which is considered the best will win a copy of the book, personally autographed by J. Warren Kerrigan, Lois Wilson, Ernest Torrence and Tully Marshall, stars of the picture, and James Cruze, the man who made the picture.

Above, you will see a picture of "The Covered Wagon." Don't let originality will count heavily in making the awards. And, again, draw only one wagon, with its team of horses or oxen. This drawing contest starts now.

It will close at midnight on Wednesday, Sept. 10. And don't forget, neatness will count almost as much as originality.

With your drawing, which must be mailed to "The Covered Wagon Editor of The Times," you must send your name, address and age. Remember, all three. If not they'll be left out when the judges award the prizes. You have from now until reasonable mailing time before Sept. 10 to complete your drawing. You've heard about the early bird. Don't be a stranger. Be among the first.

The Times will select three prominent citizens to act as judges of the drawings.

LETTER FROM KARL WHITNEY TO LESLIE PRESCOTT.

DEAR LESLIE:

I have been wanting Alice to write you ever since our marriage. She has promised to do this from day to day, but she has become very much interested in some lessons in dramatics and dancing, and hardly gets time to eat properly, let alone to attend to any of her other duties. I have come to the conclusion if any explanation is ever made to you, I shall have to make it.

Now I want to apologize for her act in writing that letter to your husband. I do not think, Leslie, that Alice really realized what she was doing. Surely she would not do it because of those trumpery pearl beads. I have come to the conclusion, however, that in her great love of dramatizing herself she wrote this letter to your husband for the adventure in it.

On the day after her hysterical outburst before your mother and myself, I found her in the summer house crying as though her heart would break. She had a viral mark on her mouth. I snatched it from her just in time. She told me that in a spirit of fun more than anything else, she wrote your husband the letter telling him to ask you about the necklace.

She said she had no idea that John would be so silly as to take the letter seriously. I tried to get her to tell me just exactly what she wrote in the letter, but she had already forgotten. Her whole explanation was incoherent in the extreme, for she was sobbing hysterically all the time. At last I succeeded in calming her, but she seemed to think she could not stay in her father's house any longer.

"Take me away, Karl, take me away," she pleaded. "I don't want to stay here. I want to be alone with you. For some reason my family don't understand me, no one loves me but you. Even my own mother takes Leslie's part all the time." Of course I knew that she did not understand what she was saying, so I promised to take her away immediately.

She was a pitiful little creature, Leslie, and would not be parted otherwise. I told her we would be married immediately. Poor child! I am very sorry for her. She has such an imagination, and she plans not only her own life but every one else's out completely and then she is very disappointed and unhappy when it does not turn out just the way she thought it would.

She tells me she is sure you will never forgive her, but she loves you greatly, and it is breaking her heart. I wish you would write her, Leslie, and tell her that you forgive her. I know that you are even big enough to do that.

I think she should be back where her mother can talk to her. I never realized before what a strange disposition my wife Alice has. She now has the peculiar idea that she wants to go on the stage—says she must have something to do when I get tired of her. With her temperament, I cannot allow her to do that. I shall rely upon your father and mother to talk her out of it.

I hope by this time that you have explained the whole thing to your husband, and are happy and contented again. I expect you will never wear the pearls again, but I would like to have you keep them and give them to your little daughter, if you should have one; if not, to your son's wife.

If you wish me to write to Mr. Prescott, I will do so with pleasure. Let me hear from you soon.

Sincerely,

KARL

Peeling the Skin Is Better Than Bleaching

Ever since the discovery that ordinary mercurized wax would absorb and repel discoloration or blemished complexion, its use by ladies as a substitute for bleaching creams has grown rapidly. A perfect complexion can be maintained indefinitely if this remarkable substance is used. Its beneficent action, clearing away all impurities, is quickly apparent, and ladies who have been paying high prices for "special blends" from beauty specialists, soon recognize that mercurized wax out-ranks them all. It can be obtained at all druggists, or by mail in the original, one-ounce package. The favorite way of using is to apply it like cold cream, before retiring, washing it off in the morning.—Advertisement.

Elaborate

THIS gown is elaborate in effect but very simple as to cut. A wide border of beading outlines the neck and forms the sleeves and the pockets and bands of velvet trim the overskirt and form the under tunic. The material is white crepe Elizabeth, the velvet bands are black and the beading is done in bright red beads.

W. F. VOGEL APPOINTED

Succeeds O. H. Williams as State Teacher Training Head.

William F. Vogel, Boonville, superintendent of schools, will succeed Oscar H. Williams as State supervisor of teacher training, according to an announcement of Benjamin J. Burris, State superintendent of public instruction. Williams resigned recently to become a member of the faculty of De Pauw University.

Vogel is a graduate of Indiana University and later took a degree of Master of Arts at Columbia University. He has been superintendent of Boonville schools for six years.

Martha Lee Says—

It's Lovely in Movies, but Dangerous in Life

When the sweet young thing turns her melting eyes on the charming man-about-town (in the movies, of course) and wonders how he, accustomed to such beautiful, worldly women, can love her, he tells her he loves her because she is different from the others.

He is weary of the cigarette-smoking, blase women with whom he has been associated. He basks in the innocent simplicity of his new love.

Sometimes it happens so in real life, too. And sometimes the man believes that he will continue to be satisfied never to return to his worldly ways and companions.

Whether or not he really will be satisfied frequently can be determined by the way he takes this love. If he changes his mode of living to conform with that of the "sweet young thing," indications are that he really is in love.

But if he shows her off before his old friends as if she were a new toy to be handled with care, chances are that the time would come when he either would want to paint the toy to look like his other plaything, or neglect it for the old ones to which he had become accustomed.

She's 'Different'

Dear Miss Lee: I am 18 years old and deeply in love with a young man six years older. Our love is mutual, but I am wondering whether he loves me as much as he thinks he does. The girls he has been going with are different from me. I go to church and they do not believe in it. Neither does Jack.

He declares he loves me because I am different. Do you think that will make any difference after we are married? I would hate to lose his love.

BETTY LOU.

Yes, it will make a difference. Before marriage, a man and girl may love each other for the very differences that after marriage become bones of contention. This man may admire you for going to church now, but it is not improbable that, after a few years of marriage, he would complain about the late Sunday noon dinners necessitated by your church-going.

Either you or the man will have to change your habits, if you marry and are to be happy. He says he loves you because you are different from the others. Unless he shows a desire to be like you and different from the others, too, you have reason to be skeptical.

After all, you are only 18 and so will have plenty of time to study this man and find out whether his love seems to be lasting or is only a passing fancy, before thinking of marriage.

PRINTING IS EXHIBITED

Fall Term at Art School to Open
Sept. 15.

A resume of American printing is on display at the John Herron Art Institute, corner of Sixteenth and N. Pennsylvania. Sts. The exhibition will be held during the first two weeks of September, under the auspices of the American Institute of Graphic Arts of New York City and includes over 200 examples of printing from all parts of the country.

Sept. 8 at 8 p. m. an illustrated lecture for persons interested in printing and allied trades will be given at the institute.

The fall term of the school will open Sept. 15. The summer term at Lake Winona closed last week. Plans are being made for a similar session next year.

Lemon Juice Whitens Skin

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.—Advertisement.
