Souvenir Hunters Flock to
Scene of Tragedy.

By United Press
LOGANSPORT, Ind., Jan. 2.—A guard stood watch over the Bassler murder house near here to prevent morbid souvenir hunters from literally tearing it down in the quest for mementos of the gruesome crime.

Hundreds of persons braved the cold of New Year's day to drive to the Bassler farm, but they were kept from carrying away souvenirs by the guard, which is maintained day and night.

Bodies of the four victims, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bassler, John Bassler and Viola Hobough, were buried in adjoining graves in the cemetery at the Matea Baptist Church Thursday afternoon. More than a thousand persons attended.

The Rev. H. D. Trickey prayed for forgiveness for Mrs. Emma Hobough, who confessed the killings. "She knew not what she did," the Rev. Trickey said.

Mrs. Hobough is now confined in the Northern Hospital for the insane and next week the Case County grand jury will begin an investigation of the killings.

By United Press
MARION, Ind., Jan. 2.—Jasper Roberts, a farmer living near Marion, was rushed to a hospital here for an operation. The case was diagnosed as appendicitis.

Surgeons found the appendix in healthy condition and then discovered a toothpick protruding from the larger intestine.

Roberts remembered that he lay down for a nap one afternoon last fall with a toothpick in his mouth.

A Small Payment Holds Any Article for Future Delivery

Here is a furniture sale of real significance—not a limited assortment of old merchandise or a special collection of cheap furniture bought to sell at a price—but our regular stock—ALL OF IT—sacrificed to make way for spring merchandise. You can walk up to any piece of furniture, rug or furnishings in the store and know in advance that the regular price has been cut anywhere from TWENTY to FIFTY PER CENT.

Prospective spring brides who expect to furnish homes shortly will save from ONE-FIFTH to ONE-HALF the cost by making their selections now, and having the furniture delivered later.

Old established families that have found the annual spring housecleaning time a costly event will do well to anticipate their needs.

Remember, everything in the house is reduced at least 20%—odd pieces, discontinued lines and other miscellaneous items as much as 50%.
