CLASSES IN HOME ARTS ARRANGED FOR GIRLS AT Y. W.

Experimental Courses Offered for Young Women and Mothers.

When a girl wants a hat she wants it at once. To meet this need the Young Women's Christian Association has arranged intensive courses in hat making, in which a girl may make her own hat in two weeks in four lessons for a fee of $3. Or she may take a four weeks' course for $4.50 and come twice a week, on Monday and Wednesday evenings, if she is employed.

Second class term work done by the educational department will be marked by experiments in the home arts departments.

The ideal of this department is to serve the practical purposes of all young women in the city. Classes have been offered for different types of students.

To meet the wardrobe needs of the employed girl and to help her remodel and to make quickly just the dress or blouse she needs, a short course, meeting Tuesday and Friday nights for three weeks is offered, costing $3 for tuition. If she wishes to come only once a week for six weeks at the same price, she may do so or she may extend the time to twelve weeks, whatever arrangement may meet her needs best. Sewing will be arranged for the Federation girls from 8 to 10 on Wednesday evening on the same terms.

Another group of women will be served by a class in children's clothing. Class meets Wednesday afternoon from 2:30 to 4:30 and is either a six or twelve weeks course. In addition to the general spring sewing offered on Tuesday afternoon, women may "make a day of it" by taking pattern drafting, fitting and designing on Tuesday morning at 10:30.

In all other courses classes will be continued in French, Spanish, modern drama, business English, self expression, basketry and china painting. Additional courses will be arranged for in Italian, dramatic art, beauty culture and high school courses. Education department will arrange tutoring in either grade or high school subjects.

Registrations will open Friday. Class work begins Jan. 12.

Love Still Chief Basis of American Marriage

The criticism that Americans are materialists may be just. Nevertheless, marriages for money, position, or anything besides love are comparatively few in America. Love still runs far ahead of other reasons for marrying in this our country.

But occasionally, patterning after the Europeans, a girl will marry without love. Across the seas, that is called a "marriage of convenience," the convenience usually being money, and it usually is arranged by the parents.

Such marriages have been known to turn out well. Sometimes love does come. But sometimes, too often, it comes in the wrong way, from some other man.

That is the danger of the "marriage of convenience." Europe gets around it in a sordid way. America chooses divorce, also sordid. Neither solves the problem. The only way to solve it is to eliminate it.

Golden Tempter

Dear Miss Lee: I am a girl 20 years old. I have been going with a man fifteen years older than me and he wants me to marry him. He has lots of money and he says "I want you."

Miss Lee, I like this man a lot and I would like to marry him and not have to do work. But I don't love him and I want to know whether you think I ought to go to love him if I married him. He says I would. Should I marry him?

HAZEL.

Think into the future a bit, Hazel. You are only 20. This man is 35. Your tastes naturally differ. You have not had much opportunity to know love. That is still to come. Yes, you may fall in love after you are married, but the chances are it will not be with your husband. Is it not better to work for a few years longer, and even then, perhaps, to marry some one who can give you "everything you want," than to marry now and get everything you want save that one thing that cannot be bought—happiness? You will find it so, I am sure.
