MISS RUTH LYNCH

MISS MARIE RIKHOFF

RS. T. C. HOOD, 124 E. Thirty-second St., entertained Friday afternoon with a beautifully appointed candlelight tea in honor of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Stanley Hood, who was Miss Helen Conway of Boston, Mass., before her recent marriage.

Guests were members of the group of younger people and assisting were Mrs. Henry Thornton and Mrs. H. H. Thornton, Mrs. Robert Morse, Mrs. Henry Rigney, Mrs. Louis Hearle and Miss Edna Levy and Miss Margaret Pantzer.

Mrs. Dwight E. Aultman of Ft. Benjamin Harrison gave a luncheon-bridge of six tables Friday afternoon honoring Mrs. Emmett F. Branch. Guests were served at small tables lighted with red tapers in silver holders and the rooms were arranged with bowls of red roses.

Mrs. McDonald Nixon, 3860 N. Meridian St., and Mrs. Percival O. Powers, 2046 N. Alabama St., entertained Friday afternoon with a beautiful luncheon bridge of twenty-four tables at the Propylaeum, 1410 N. Delaware St.

Luncheon was served at small tables which were decorated with bowls of spring flowers and about the rooms were baskets of pink roses.

Among the guests were Mrs. Edmund Cook of Brooklyn, N. Y., who is visiting Mrs. Henry B. Milliken and Mrs. R. V. Lynch of Newcastle. Assisting the hostesses were Mesdames I. C. De Haven, Will McMasars, Roy E. Adams, Clinton D. Lashier, John T. Todd and Jewett V. Reed.

The Friday Afternoon Reading Club met Friday with Mrs. C. J. Murphy, 3555 N. New Jersey St. The program included a paper by Mrs. W. W. Case on "Women of the Line."

Miss Margaret Shipp read a paper on her trip to Europe Friday afternoon at a meeting of the Over-the-Sea-Cups Club at the home of Mrs. C. W. Dicks, 1609 N. Meridian St.

Mrs. Benjamin Abbott Dickson, 222 E. Fifteenth St., entertained Friday afternoon with an informal tea from 3-5 in honor of her mother, Mrs. Jacqueline S. Holliday. Miss Lucy Holliday and Mrs. W. J. Holliday assisted the hostess.

Miss Geraldine Hanks, 2235 N. Alabama St., whose marriage to Marion Oldham will take place Jan. 31, was the honor guest Wednesday afternoon at a kitchen shower given by Mrs. Amin L. Doerscher, 1401 N. Pennsylvania St.

Covers for fifteen were laid at a dinner given Thursday night by Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Mayer, 2036 N. Using a megaphone on the corner of Washington and Meridian Sts. wouldn't be a whisper beside the audience you can reach with a 3-line Times Want Ad 3 days for 90c.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT—NEVER MAILED.

I am lonely tonight, Jack, my husband—a little bit more lonely than I have ever been before in my life. My heart hurts with longing for you. I want to feel your arms about me. I want to look into your dear eyes and see that crooked little smile that makes your mouth tell tales even before you speak.

Most of all, dear, I want you to make me know, dear, that you love me.

You did such an unkind thing to me when Alice died and it seemed to me that my heart was broken but tonight I am sending my very soul out to you with the words, you do love me, don't you?

Don't laugh at me, dear heart, and say of course I do. Just take me in your arms and hold me close to your heart and tell it to me with that little catch in your voice that it had when you said to me only a little while ago "Whatever happens, dear, remember I love you and have loved you always."

Well, something did happen, Jack, and for a little while, Jack, it looked out those words and now I am trying to remember them but my heart grows cold with apprehension and I grow terror-stricken. My breath comes cold across my lips. My heart stops beating. Something claps my throat. I strangle and gasp at the thought. I dare not ask, "Do you love me?" for I seem to see that indifference in your eyes that you gave me to understand was yours when you did not come to me in my great trouble.

What do women do, dear, when they see indifference in the eyes of those they love. It seems to me that I would rather see hate for I feel that love cannot be buried so deeply under hate as under indifference.

Hate is something tangible, something with which you can battle and perhaps overcome, but indifference is so cold, so calm, so pitiless. God, Jack, have you reached the point where anything that I shall do or say means nothing to you one way or the other?

I know I am silly, dear, to harrow up my emotions in this way, but I don't want to grow calm and cold and indifferent. I want to love you—love you. I want to still thrill when your hand touches mine. I want to still tremble when you are cross. I want to weep when you are sad. I want all the joy, for I am having all the terror of loving but above all else I want the bliss of being loved.

Do other women write letters like this to their husbands? Do husbands want their wives to pour out their hearts to them in this way?

I do not know and you will never know for I shall never send you this letter. But my heart was so filled with loneliness and longing for you that in some way I had to pour out all that was in my soul. (Copyright, 1925, NEA Service, Inc.)

CITY WORKS DESCRIBED

Delegates to the continental Congress at Washington, D. C., will be named at the February meeting of the Caroline Scott Harrison chapter of D. A. R. It was announced at a meeting Thursday at the chapter house, 824 N. Pennsylvania St. Fae Patrick, city deputy prosecutor, talked on the workings of the city government.

Mrs. E. H. Darach, regent, refuted rumor that the chapter house is for sale.

Words of Love Mean Little Without Proof

A young girl writes: "He says he loves me; but he won't go to work."

A poor sort of love, that. The kind, it is, that makes women grow old before their time, slaving for men who make love divinely, but who never get to the point of providing well for their families.

These men will look into a woman's eyes and tell her how beautiful she is, so she forgets their worthlessness. But this glances cannot go on forever. Some day the woman awakens to a realization that there is more than words to love, that unselfishness is vital to it, and that the man who tells her he loves her, but who doesn't work for her, knows nothing of unselfishness.

The man who shows his love only by working hard to make a home for his wife and family misses the tenderness of love. But he is far, far, more deserving of appreciation than the one who tells of his love, but never proves it.

He Won't Work

Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been going with a fellow for nearly a year. He says he loves me, but he will not work. I have thought of having a cottage to myself, but he won't work. I love him better than my life. Both of us are 17. He is a nice, respectable fellow. Father likes him very much. He is trying to be a preacher, but he is not strong enough.

A BROKEN GIRL. This boy may be respectable, but he is not self-respecting. Evidently he is even weaker in character than in body.

But he is only 19, so you need not despair. Tell him that if he really loves you he must prove it by going to work and sticking to his job.

Quite 'Old-Fashioned'

Dear Mrs. Lee: We are two girls 17 years old. Both of us go with boys we don't care much about them. Some say we are old-fashioned because we don't use rouge and lipstick and don't wear bobbed hair. When we meet boys, if they seem to like us we don't care much about them. We won't like these fellows that teach you to drive their cars and then tell you you owe them a kiss.

Do you think we will be old maids because they haven't a car. We would rather go to a movie with a nice boy than to go riding with a jerk. Please tell us what the trouble is. Don't boys like old-fashioned girls?

KENTUCKY PALM. No, girls, I don't think you need fear that you will be old maids. You just haven't happened to run across the "old-fashioned" boys. There are some, but it is true they are rather in the background, and so they may not know of you. But they'll find you, or you'll find them, some time. In the meantime stick it out.

TOOTS: You asked for a personal reply, but neglected to send your name or address. If you will forward these to me, repeating your story and questions, I shall be glad to advise you.

'Hookey' Proof

By Times Special. LA PORTE, Ind., Jan. 9.—Here's a boy that is "hookey proof."

He is Ralph R. Travis, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Travis of Kingsbury, and he has never missed a day of school nor been tardy during the ten years of his school life.

He is now a pupil in the La Porte High School and declared a model student by W. M. Stafford, principal.

Ralph has maintained his attendance record despite the fact that on many occasions he has had to battle snow drifts and bitter cold in his long walk from Kingsbury.

He started to school when 4 years old.

ALUMNI ELECT OFFICERS

Wisconsin Association Prepares For Haresfoot Play.

New officers of the Wisconsin Alumni Association are William Flores, president; Mrs. C. E. Scheuring, vice-president; Edwin Camp, treasurer, and Miss Florence Soder, secretary.

Plans for presentation of the Haresfoot Club play in April were discussed at the election meeting. A Founder's Day banquet in February was announced.

Members will meet for luncheon every Wednesday at noon, in Ayres' team room.
