PARIS COPIES AMERICAN STYLE

Popular Garconne Fashion Created in America, Sent to France and Returned as 'Importation' for Maids of U. S.

TYPICAL GARCONNE FROCKS MADE UP IN THE NEWEST SPRING FABRICS WHICH THESE AMERICAN GIRLS WILL DISPLAY TO THE COUNTRY.

By MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—"Where do fashions originate?"

Nine out of ten women would answer, "In Paris, of course."

When pressed for the reason for their answer, they'd fall back on "Why, everybody always says so."

Well, everybody doesn't. Franklin Simon, president of the National Garment Retailers' Association of America, says some of the best of them originate right here in the good old U. S. A.

You know the garconne type of dress—the simply boyish mode that has taken New York, Paris and Palm Beach by storm. If you weigh under 130 you probably wear it yourself, and if over you wear it in a modified form.

Well, Franklin Simon says that's just the order in which the storm hit—New York, Paris and Palm Beach.

The idea originated where the boyish figures grow—not in France, the land of feminine curves, but in America, where they say it straight from the shoulder on down.

We, fellow citizens, started it—then Paris copied it, adding the name—importers brought it back and we wore it with enthusiasm, thinking it was French!

"The silhouette is essentially American," says Simon, "and was taken up in Paris only after it was established here. Our women wear clothes that are useful because they are the more athletic and know the value of freedom of motion."

"The French woman is by no means the American type. Her figure is curved. Our women have length, slim lines—and they move. The realization of that is the foundation of truly American fashions."

The National Garment Retailers' Association this season is co-operating with the leading fabric manufacturers and garment designers of the country in organizing a national movement to promote distinctly American styles.

The first exhibition will be held in New York and later it will go to the large cities such as Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis and Los Angeles.

It aims not only to feature American fabrics and fashions, but also typical American girls as models. Many of the girls who will wear the garments have been chosen from among famous artists' models of the country, whose faces smile down at the public everywhere from magazine covers and advertising posters.

DEPARTMENT CLUB HEARS PROSECUTOR

Modern Home Given Credit for Increasing Crime Wave.

William Remy, county prosecuting attorney, in his talk on "Some Characteristics of Modern Crime," at the discussion luncheon of the community welfare department of the Woman's Department Club Tuesday noon, laid blame for the increasing crime wave on the modern home. "The average age for criminals in Marion County is from 16 to 25 years," Mr. Remy stated. He showed that an average of 90 per cent of all criminals in the United States were young people, most of them in their twenties. Mr. Remy pointed out that home training is not given to these criminals, and their homes are used only as places to sleep and eat. This is a grave reflection on modern parents. Mr. Remy outlined the types of criminals to be found in the courts and prisons and compared the modern methods of crime with those of the past. Mr. Remy concluded his talk with a general discussion of law enforcement.

Mrs. Edward Franklin White, newly lectured reporter of the Supreme and Appellate courts, spoke in favor of the child labor amendment.

Reservations for eighty were made for the luncheon and the small tables were lighted by yellow candles. A musical program was given by Miss Mildred Bringer, soloist, accompanied by Miss Irma Lyke. Mrs. George A. Van Dyke, chairman, presided.

LETTER FROM ZOE ELLINGTON TO ELIZABETH SWARTZ,
GENEVA, SWITZERLAND.
CONTINUED.

The people with whom I live, my dear Elizabeth, are most interesting. There is Madame Hamilton, recently widowed, who always imbues me with great hope and courage. She does not seem like the old people that you and I know abroad. She does not sit as though her life were over. She is interested in everything that is going on. I already love her. She is bearing the loss of her husband most bravely, and yet Sister Ruth—she says that I must call her sister—told me that Mrs. Hamilton's heart is buried with her husband, that they were the most devoted people she had ever seen.

Mr. Hamilton, in dying, left two daughters, one of whom, although seemingly the happiest of women, having everything that life could bestow, committed suicide the other day. The other one is the Mrs. Prescott, with whom I live. She is married to a wonderful man—big, handsome, jovial, gay, a typical American man of business.

I say this with perfect confidence because his wife's father, Mr. Hamilton, when he died left all his vast fortune in Mr. Prescott's hands, as well as the management of his great steel industry.

Mrs. Prescott has the saddest eyes I have ever seen in human face except those of the Greek Queen Sophia, whom we saw that time, during the war, at Lucerne.

I know that Mrs. Prescott has just passed through great sorrow in the death of her father and sister, but even that could not give to her deep dark eyes that look of lost hope and utter dejection I see in them when she thinks she is not observed.

I am sure there is some misunderstanding between Mr. and Mrs. Prescott, for Mr. Prescott has not been down here since we all came. Of course, there is the universal excuse of the American captain of industry—business—but that would not keep any man from his wife when she is as near to him as Atlantic City is to Pittsburgh, especially when his wife is looking forward to another baby, as Mrs. Prescott is.

Whatever may be Mrs. Prescott's own private and personal trouble, she is certainly wonderful to everybody about her and especially good to me.

Oh, Elizabeth, I know that God has been very good to me in letting by lines fall in such pleasant places.

Of course, your dear mother would say, "Zoe, my dear, are you learning anything? Remember, every day you must unfold something within your mind that will help you to live your life with greater content each year."

You can say to her that already I have confirmed that teaching of our dear Fraulein Sturmer, "Money cannot confer happiness."

Colds
Should Always Be Treated With Vapors

Vicks is "A Vapor Lamp In Salve Form." No Dosing, You Just Rub It Over Throat And Chest.

It has long been recognized that the most effective way to treat colds is to apply the medication directly to the affected parts. This of course can only be done by means of vapors that can be inhaled.

Vicks provides the ideal method of securing medicated vapors. When rubbed over throat and chest the ingredients—Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme, Turpentine—are vaporized by the body heat and inhaled directly into the air passages and lungs.

At the same time, Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster, affording a double action which brings truly remarkable results.

Martha Lee Says

Individuals Blamed for Marriages That Fail

"What is wrong nowadays is, people look on marriage as a contract which can be broken by either party, and both men and women shirk responsibility."

This was the indictment today of a woman expressing her opinion on marriage.

The woman defends the marriage institution, blaming any troubles on the people who take the marriage vows.

"The marriage bond sanctifies the home and safeguards women and children, who otherwise would become dependents of the State," she writes.

Uniquely, the only person in agreement with the Rev. Springer today was a woman. After finding her marriage a failure, she made a "business agreement" with her husband, whereby they live together, but each goes his own way, with no pretense of love in the home. She believes "there is no real love any more, this side of eternity."

Here are a few more letters in the discussion of marriage:

Woman Prests
Dear Martha Lee: Being a married woman for eleven years, I disagree with your statement that marriage is a failure. The marriage bond sanctifies the home and safeguards women and children, who otherwise would become dependents of the State.

What is wrong nowadays is, people look on marriage as a contract which can be broken by either party, and both men and women shirk responsibility. The only happiness in this world is for a man to be surrounded by a loving wife and family. So long as this is the case, let him fight the battles of life.

To let his wife see the line eye on the home and the other on the divorce court, some marriages will fall. I O.

Bitter Experience
Dear Martha Lee: There is no real love any more, this side of eternity! Perhaps that is a broad statement, but it is my honest belief.

I entered into marriage deeply in love with my soldier husband. After one year I saw my marriage eventually would end in the divorce court. So, by mutual agreement, friend hubby decided to go his way, and I mine.

Four years have passed, and not once have I been in public with my husband. We each have our reasons. He loves his children, respect our home and responsibility, and each other. How little this state exists? I do not know. Where is the tenderness that is supposed to last years after the wedding ring is thin?

I can see my husband, help him, be near him, and know he loves me except as a good sport and business partner. Will I be rewarded for keeping our marriage from falling on the rocks, or when I tried to save it by putting it on a business basis did I put it on the rocks?

Had I the whole thing to do over, I would never marry, for now I truly believe the marriage laws corrupt the true love that man holds for woman.

You evolved your "business" scheme to keep your home together for your children's sake, I presume. But is it a home? You and your husband might go into that question, and take into consideration the effect of your present attitude on them.

"During the Change of Life I suffered with my whole right side and could not lie on my left side. I was in bed about two months and could not get up only as my son would lift me.
