

PASTOR TAKES STEPS TO MEET PEOPLE OUTSIDE CHURCH

DIRECTOR OF GOOD WILL INDUSTRIES TO PREACH HERE

Dr. Scully to Be Guest of Woman's Home Missionary Society.

R. RICHARD E. SCULLY, director of the Good Will Industries of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Cincinnati, Ohio, will address the congregation of the North Methodist Church, Thirty-Eighth and Meridian Sts., on Sunday morning on the subject of "Christ in the City."

Dr. Scully is coming to North Church under auspices of the Woman's Home Missionary Society. The program for Sunday morning will be in charge of Mrs. Ralph Brady.

Mrs. Lois Rosetter is president of the society. Mrs. Leo Ennis, a member of the society, will sing "If I Could But Tell All the Glory." Special missionary music will be given by the North Church quartet.

Dues Good Work

The Good Will Industries is a work that has as its motto, "Not Charity, But a Chance." The work was started some twenty-five years ago in Boston, where an institution worth more than half a million dollars has gradually been built up through the efforts of Dr. C. E. Helm.

Wagons are sent out over the city to collect old furniture, shoes, clothing and hats for the needy. People who are unable to secure employment in the normal industries in the city are welcomed to the Good Will Industries. If they are sick, a doctor is provided. If they are hungry, they are fed. If they are in need of clothing, warm clothing is provided.

They are given the privilege to worship in the chapel that is always connected with the industries and may have the spiritual advice of men who are trained to give it.

The Industries are now established in eighteen cities in the United States. Rev. Scully was trained at DePauw University, Boston School of Theology and received his Ph. D. degree from Boston University.

MEMBERS of the Evangelical Young People's League Federation of Indianapolis will give a sacred concert Sunday at 4 o'clock at the Zion Evangelical Church, North and New Jersey Sts. Hilda Frohne, Alto Frohne, Alma Frohne and Lenora Frohne, daughters of the Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Frohne of St. Paul's Evangelical Church, will take part. Others will be Fred Iske, Martha Brebner, Emma Krich, Bertha Schlesinger, Marie Ziegler, Alma Rahe, Fred Hamp, Louis Landgrae, Otto Mahrer and Herbert McLeod. Another concert will be given on Thursday night, Jan. 29.

THE REV. CHARLES H. GUNNOLUS, spiritualist lecturer, will preach Sunday night at the American Spiritualist Church on "The Higher Worlds and Spheres."

THE CHRISTIAN ARMY has reorganized and is now located at 612 E. Georgia St. A revival will start Sunday. General William H. Waymire is in charge of the State work.

HANSEN ARRANGES MUSICAL SERVICE

Charles F. Hansen has arranged a semi-popular sacred musical program for the vesper service of the Second Presbyterian Church, Sunday.

Rev. Hartman Undertakes Interesting Experiment to Talk to the Unchurched—Will Hold Wednesday Night Informal Forums as Part of New Programs.

By THE VISITOR

Men and women who are not church members will have a chance to discuss their differences with the Rev. Guy V. Hartman, pastor of the Hall Place M. E. Church.

The pastor will not wait for people outside of his congregation to come to church, but will meet them at the home of friends on Wednesday night.

At these meetings the Rev. Hartman will discuss any questions of doubt along philosophical lines.

He also will attempt to discuss and "iron out" any difference of opinion regarding personal relations to the church which might have resulted in not attending church. The Rev. Hartman will be glad to make the place of meeting to those desiring to attend these meetings.

By going into various homes and discussing the problems before a small group, the Rev. Hartman believes that he will be able to meet face to face the problems and misunderstandings which prevent people from attending church.

He will try out this experiment and if results are obtained and enough interest develop, the Rev. Hartman will continue along these lines.

The Pastor's Wife

When a church engages a minister the congregation generally gets the services of two for the price of one.

Meaning that the wife of the pastor has as much to do as her husband. Her success depends a great deal upon the congregation as well as upon the pastor.

The Hartmans have been at Hall Place for more than a year and a half. The membership is now 300, sixty being added in the last two weeks through a revival.

Mrs. Hartman is the mother of two children, Martha Jean, 8, and Gerald—Vincent, 5. Miss Martha goes in for music while Gerald is the constant companion of his father. While I was visiting them at "Spiritual Meat and Drink," and at night, "Faithing."

HOMER DALE, pastor of the Hillsdale Christian Church, will preach Sunday morning on "Not Ashamed of the Gospel." His evening theme will be "Thirty Pieces of Silver."

MRS. GUY V. HARTMAN AND REV. HARTMAN.

Although Rev. Hartman, pastor Hall Place M. E. Church, and his wife have been identified with church work in this city less than two years, they have been honored with many appointments of trust.

Rev. Hartman is financial secretary of the City Council of Church Extension and has been president of the Methodist Ministers' Association.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Savior Comforts His Disciples in Time of Trouble

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Jan. 25. How Jesus Comforts His Disciples.—John 14:1-17. By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.

Editor of The Congregationalist

HOW true it is in life that it is the great burden-bearers and those whose sorrows have been the heaviest who are the greatest ministers of comfort to other people!

During the Great War an active labor leader, who was a member of the congregation to which I was then ministering, and who was also one of my most intimate personal friends, enlisted as an engineer and went overseas.

He hated war as intensely as I did, and he had gone forth with a holy purpose. He knew the circumstances that had prevented my going with him, and he knew all the burden that I was carrying in upholding faith and righteousness and love in a world that seemed all adrift from its moorings, and in ministering help to homes in which the war had brought doubt and despair, tragedy and death.

From the farthest war-front, when this man was engaged daily in service out between the lines, in places in comparison with which the trenches were relatively safe, came letters to me which suggested that he had taken it upon himself as a chief duty to comfort me, and help to keep my faith clear and strong.

Savior Who Suffers

That seems amazing, but it is a symbol of what has been ever happening in the world.

It is the Savior who suffers, and who yields His own life, who gives life and peace to others. It is the mother who bears the heaviest burdens in the home, to whom everybody in the home looks for help and sympathy. And how seldom has any body in the home looked to mother in vain!

So here in our lesson, it is Jesus facing the cross, who bids others not to be troubled. He who needs comfort, and who feels His loneliness so acutely, "What! could ye not watch with me one hour?"—finds His strength in comforting others.

Yet this is not strange. For most of us life's burdens and sorrows are crushing because our strength is small and our vision limited, but it is the quality of great souls that they rise to larger vision, and see a meaning in life that is denied to those who are earth-bound and sense-bound.

Jesus always brought men the comfort of helping them to see things for themselves.

He comforts the disciples by assuring them that there are things they may take for granted, "If it were not so I would have told you."

Men must find the larger faith and trust by faith and trust in that Christ reveals the Father.

The Solution

If we would know God let us commune with godly men; if we would know Christ let us live among the Christ-like.

Too often we seek help and comfort through reasoning about things when contact with men of godly faith and godly experience would do more for us.

To know a good man is anchorage in the stress and strain of life; and to rest assured that goodness in men is the surest proof of God is the way of conviction and faith in times when the soul needs vision.
