

KNOWLEDGE SEEN AS FOE OF WAR

Mrs. Hibbard Urges Nations 'Get Acquainted.'

"The principal cure for war seems to me to be a matter of getting acquainted," Mrs. William G. Hibbard, of Winnetka, Ill., fourth regional director of the National League of Women Voters, said Monday afternoon, in a talk on "Foreign Relations" at the Indianapolis League's luncheon at the Woman's Department Club. "The people in California are almost as far away as those across the water, yet we know them."

Mrs. Hibbard said she feels the League of Nations is the first step toward ending wars, outlawing of war is the second and the third is education of children to knowledge and understanding of other countries as well as of their own.

Mrs. Paul Rittenhouse, of Chicago, fourth regional secretary, who will spend the week in Indianapolis in work for the Indianapolis League, spoke briefly. Greetings were given by Mrs. W. T. Barnes, Indiana League president and Miss Alma Sickler, Indianapolis, vice president.

It was decided to hold meetings at the Chamber of Commerce, the next to be Feb. 6.

Sister Mary's Kitchen

Breakfast—Halves of grapefruit, soft-cooked eggs, cornmeal waffles, sirup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Ragout of celery, whole wheat and peanut butter sandwiches, pineapple and rice pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner—Lamb stew, baked sweet potatoes, molded spinach, fig custard, bran fluff, milk, coffee.

Cooked cereal should always be served to children for breakfast. If the grownups refuse it, other dishes will have to be planned for them.

The breakfast suggested is planned for grownups.

Cornmeal Waffles

One cup boiling water, 1/4 cup yellow cornmeal, 1 cup milk, 2 cups white flour, 8 tablespoons sugar, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon butter.

Cook cornmeal in boiling water for fifteen minutes, stirring constantly. Stir in milk. Mix and sift flour, salt, sugar and baking powder and stir into first mixture. Mix until perfectly smooth. Add yolks of eggs beaten until thick and lemon-colored. Mix well and add butter melted. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Cook on a well-greased waffle iron.

Ragout of Celery

Two heads of celery, 2 cups white stock, 1 cup milk, 1 Spanish onion, 24 button onions, 1 dessertspoon minced parsley, 3 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, salt and pepper.

Wash and trim celery and cut each stalk into two-inch pieces. Cover with cold water and bring to the boiling point. Drain. Mince the Spanish onion and add with the celery to the stock. Season with salt and pepper and simmer for half an hour. Skin button onions and parboil for twenty minutes. Drain from water and cook in butter until tender. Simmer over a low fire to prevent browning. Skin out onions and keep hot. Stir flour into butter in which onions were cooked. When blended and perfectly smooth, slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Strain stock from celery and add to sauce. Cook, stirring to make smooth, until boiling. Season with salt and pepper and add half the parsley. Arrange a border of triangles of toast on a hot platter. Put celery on toast and pile onions in center. Pour the sauce over the celery and toast and sprinkle onions with remaining parsley.

Pineapple and Rice Pudding

One cup cold cooked rice, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup grated or shredded pineapple, 1 cup whipping cream, few grains salt, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar.

Combine rice, sugar and pineapple. Mix thoroughly. Whip cream until stiff. Season with powdered sugar and vanilla. Fold into first mixture and turn into a mold. Let stand until very cold, and serve. (Copyright, 1925, NEA Service, Inc.)

Martha Lee Says

Habit of Ages Makes Little Things Count

Divorce lawyers would starve if they had to depend on making their bread and butter off families in which the husband never neglected to give his wife a kiss—not a bored peck—before he left each morning and when he returned each evening.

For no matter how loudly women may declare their "independence," nor how certain they may be that their marriages are based on bigger emotions, it is such little things as the good morning kiss, the occasional gift and the thoughtfulness they imply that keep marriages off the rocks.

A wife's life, even in this enlightened age, is made up of little things. Not so with a man. Occasionally he may notice the many small attentions that make life run smoothly. But, ordinarily he will take them for granted.

This is the result of the custom of centuries when man was served as master and woman's every thought was for his comfort and pleasure. It takes a long time to overcome the habit of ages.

Forgotten Kiss

Dear Miss Lee: I am a married woman not 25 years old. I am a girl that wants to love and to be loved. My husband and I have been married for a year and now he doesn't kiss me. Sometimes I think if I can't get any loving from my husband I could get it some where else.

When I get to thinking of some of these women that run around with other men I just wonder whether they have husbands like mine. If they have you can't blame them much.

What could I do or say that will make him pay more attention to me? LONELY MAMA BLUES.

Your husband evidently is one of the men who takes it for granted their wives know they love them. They figure that the fact that they support them well is evidence enough, and fall to realize that women would rather starve for food than for kisses.

Instead of looking as if you had cried all day, greet your husband with your prettiest manners. Flirt with him as you did before you accepted him. Make him realize, too, that if he doesn't give you the love you want, there are others who will offer it, at least.

But, my dear, don't yield to the temptation to take it where you can.

ROAD BUDGET ADJUSTED

Gilliom's Deviation Causes Change in Highway Funds.

The State highway commission today began readjustment of its budget requests as a result of Attorney General Arthur Gilliom's opinion that the commission's chief source of revenue, the gasoline tax, can be placed in the general fund and the commission's operating funds appropriated therefrom.

The budget advisory committee was attempting to wind up its recommendations on requests of all State department and institutions, to get them to Governor Jackson late today or Wednesday. Secretary of State Frederick E. Schortemeier, H. D. McClelland, manager of the State auto license department, and H. M. Gray, administrator of the securities commission, appeared before the committee to explain their requests.

Jewelry Auctions

Persons patronizing jewelry auctions should exercise extreme caution in making purchases, especially of diamonds and personal jewelry.

Few persons are competent judges of the quality and value of diamonds.

Here are a few things to watch for:

Cappers or by-bidders in the employ of the owners of the stock who may run up the bid on you.

Running up of the bid by the auctioneer through pretense of having received bids from the audience.

Switching of the article sold and substitution of an article of less value.

Misrepresentation of the auctioneer as to quality and value.

A purchaser should always have one or more witnesses along to take careful note of the auctioneer's statements that this evidence may be used in court in case of fraud.

Watch especially for representations as to the weight or size of diamonds and whether represented to be "blue white," "perfect," "perfectly cut," etc.

If a watch is being sold, make note relative to representations as to make, such as "Waltham," "Elgin," "Hamilton," "Hampden," etc., the quality of the case, such as "solid gold," "gold filled," "twenty-year case," "twenty-five-year case," etc., and especially as to the number of jewels. Be sure that a watch represented as 17 jewels does not have 7 jewels only. It is very easy for the auctioneer to say 17 jewels, and when confronted with the watch of 7 jewels to claim that he said 7 jewels.

Watch for representations of value. The tags on articles may be marked to represent a fictitious price. Thus a watch chain may be marked $6.00 and look like a $6.00 chain and only be worth about one dollar.

FREQUENT ATTACKS OF BILIOUSNESS

From Which Kentucky Man Suffered Two or Three Times a Month. Relieved by Black-Draught.

Mr. J. P. Nevins, Lawrenceburg, Ky., a local coal dealer and farmer, about two years ago learned of the value of Theodor's Black-Draught liver medicine, and now he says:

"Until then I suffered with severe bilious attacks that came on two or three times each month. I would get nauseated. I would have dizziness and couldn't work. I would take pills until I was worn out with them. I didn't seem to get relief. After taking the pills my bowels would act a couple or three times, then I would be very constipated."

"A neighbor told me of Black-Draught and I began its use. I never have found so much relief as it gave me. I would not be without it for anything."

"It seemed to cleanse my whole system and made me feel like new. I would take a few doses—get rid of the bile and have my usual clear head, feel full of 'pep' and could do twice the work."

"Bilious attacks are 'seasonal' with many people, especially in the spring and early summer. Millions have taken this purely vegetable Black-Draught liver medicine to ward off such attacks, and the good results they have reported should encourage you to try it. Get a pack today."
