

SPEED IN COURT APPEALS URGED IN SENATE BILL

Only Eleven Measures Introduced—One Revamps Election Laws.

Back to work after a holiday since Friday noon, the Indiana Senate received only eleven new bills.

Hodges, Gary, Republican, introduced a measure which would require appeals in criminal convictions to be taken within thirty days after the motion for new trial is filed. It also provides that the Supreme or Appellate Courts must render a decision within a month after receiving the transcript, or the lower court's decision will be considered affirmed.

Senator Quillen, Indianapolis, introduced a bill revamping the general election laws. The secretary of State would replace the Governor on the State election board, under the bill. The bill also limits the number of voters in precincts using voting machines to 500, and to 500 in precincts where Australian ballots are used.
