of change and the auto key and drove on toward this city.
 Mayor Shank is preparing to press his proposal to employ fifty more patrolmen to fight the crime wave. But success of his move is in doubt. "Hire fifty coppers! What about?" Joseph L. Hogue, city controller, asked today. "We have no money now to pay current expenses. State and alley improvements have been halted because there is no money in the city engineer's budget to pay inspectors legally required."
 Hogue said there is a possibility that thirty or thirty-five police might be added, but that there will be no funds during the present administration to employ fifty.

Hope Based on Taxes
 Finances would not permit addition of men to the force before Aug. 1, Hogue declared.

Hope of the advocates of a larger police force is based on returns from city taxes, due June 30. If the amount paid is sufficient, the money will be available.

If it is found there are funds available, the next battle will be to obtain passage by city council of an ordinance appropriating funds to pay the additional officers.

City council has shown a tendency to disregard the requests of Mayor Shank when appropriations were involved and there is said to be considerable opposition to the request of Chief Rikhoff for a bigger force.

Attempt by Hogue to transfer $13,274.90 unexpended balance from bond sales in 1922, to the general fund, which would have furthered the movement to employ more police, failed today when James M. Ogden, corporation counsel, ruled the money must be placed in the sinking fund.

Capt. Roy A. Pope, head of the emergency force of thirty-eight police stationed in the banks and rounding up know criminals and suspicious characters, said his men had taken to their task with avidity. "I made the rounds of half of the twenty-six banks Friday," Pope declared. "As I entered the doorways, I saw the men give me the once-over from head to foot and observed that their automatic rifles were in their hands ready to be brought into action in the twinkling of an eye."

Police continued their round-up of suspicious persons. Twenty were slated Friday night. Nine were arrested in poolroom raids. Two men were charged with carrying concealed weapons and will be grilled concerning hold-ups.

H. Fout, grocer at 1804 Montcalm St., told police four men in a large auto drove up in front of his store early today and took a case of milk.

Indiscriminate Arrests Assailed in Letter.

Protest against indiscriminate arrests in the police campaign against bandits is made by C. August Schrader, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, in a letter to Police Chief Herman F. Rikhoff. Schrader relates the case of a 17-year-old boy who he alleged was arrested by Lieutenant Hudson in St. Clair Park at noon time and placed under $100 bond on a vagrancy charge, without questioning. Schrader, after unwinding "red tape" had the youth released on his own recognizance by Judge Delbert O. Wilmett, he said.
