

RESEARCH FOR EDUCATION IS GIVEN STRESS

General Session of N. E. A. Members Held at Tabernacle.

The need of centralized research and experiment in education, to establish a standard for teaching, was pointed out by Miss Mary McKimmon of Brookline, Mass., candidate for president of the National Education Association, at a general session of association members this morning at Cadle Tabernacle.

Comparing the efficiency with which discoveries in medicine are promulgated, to the lack of system in the teaching world, Miss McKimmon said: "We waste our time and fritter away the few years children have because we try a play here, then a plan there."

Technical Problems

The morning was devoted to discussion of technical problems. A definite program of work for teachers' organizations was urged by Miss Mary F. Mooney, of San Francisco, Cal., vice president of the association. Miss Julia Spooner, Portland, Ore., discussed proportioning of activities of teachers' associations.

The power of educational papers was brought out by Joy Elmer Morgan, editor of the Journal of the National Education Association, Washington, D. C.

Gains Described

Material and spiritual gains by teachers' organizations in Philadelphia and Pennsylvania were described by Miss Jessie Gray, of Philadelphia, president of the Pennsylvania State Education Association.

Closing the discussion, Miss Olive M. Jones, New York City, who presided, declared she would "ride her hobby of organizing teachers, until they were organized fully for the fulfillment of the teachers' mission—preparation for citizenship in an ideal democracy."

VETERAN COLLEGE HEAD LAUDS YOUTH

President Thompson of Ohio Expresses Faith in Students.

"Put a town of ten thousand persons down by a college of ten thousand students, and I am willing to wager the average of conduct in the college would be better than that in the town."

Thus did Dr. William O. Thompson, president of Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio, here for the National Education Association convention, express the faith gained in years of close association with college students.

On his seventieth birthday, next Nov. 5, Dr. Thompson will retire as president of Ohio State University, after twenty-six years in office. He will become president emeritus.

College Like Towns

"College boys and girls are not so different from other people," Dr. Thompson continued in explanation of his attitude. "We have the problems a town has—drinking and 'petting' parties, etc. But you must remember that, whereas years ago a college was composed of perhaps 200 or 300 students of high grade, now 'the streets have gone to college,' as some one has said."

In his own regime at Ohio, Dr. Thompson has seen the enrollment increase from 1,100 to 11,500.

College women as mothers receive their share of commendation. "I have a daughter," he said. "She and her husband are both graduates of Ohio. In my daughter's sorority, the girls, now married, average about three and a half babies each. These girls and their husbands make as good parents, or better, than I made."

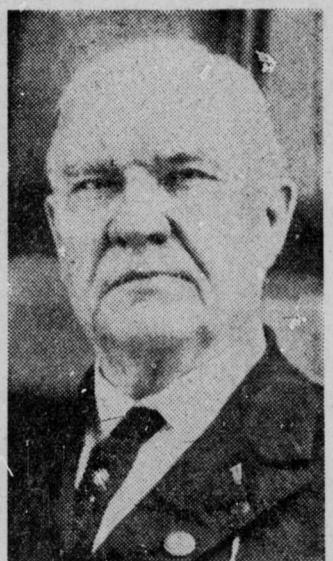

College athletics, too, found a staunch defender in Dr. Thompson. "I wouldn't give three whoops for a college without athletics," he asserted. "We are a playing Nation. Sports and recreation are essential. Of course, it is overdone at times, just as everything else is."

BUSSES CALLED EXPERIMENT BY CAR ATTORNEY

If the Indianapolis actually needs motorized transportation, the Indianapolis Street Railway Company stands ready and willing to offer it, declared Will H. Latta, chief counsel for the company, arguing before the public service commission against granting certificates to the People's Motor Coach Company to operate a group of city bus lines.

He branded bus company transportation program an experiment for which the public would be invited to support at an additional cost of $2,000,000 a year, and at the risk of destroying $20,000,000 worth of existing property.

"The whole public is not demanding bus service," he said.

James W. Noel, attorney for the People's Motor Coach Company, answered Latta's arguments in detail.

Adolphe Menjou has an Army record that most men would envy. He enlisted as a private, but even before he went overseas he was promoted to a captaincy. Menjou's latest picture role is in William W. Miller's Paramount offering, "Lost—A Wife."

WORKS BOARD WILL GET NEW TRAFFIC PLAN

No Turns on Washington St. Proposed by City Commission.

Mayor Shank said today he would refer the traffic changes proposed by the city plan commission, whereby turns off Washington St. between Capitol Ave. and Delaware St., would be prohibited and street car lines regrouped to prevent their turning into that thoroughfare, to the board of works for consideration.

"It sounds good, but is it practical?" Shank asked.

Macklin Mack, engineer of the city plan commission, was to confer with James P. Trotter, superintendent of the Indianapolis Street Railway Company, today with regard to consolidation of street car lines to prevent turning into Washington St.

The proposed plan of the city plan commission was submitted to the board of safety some time, statement of Ernest L. Kingston, president said. He said he had not had time to give sufficient consideration to the latest plan to discuss it.

Police Chief Herman Rikhoff, received a telegram which contained marks of identification that checked when the body was viewed at the Royster & Askin morgue. Following the accident the young man was taken to the city hospital where he died without regaining consciousness. Names in small diary led to identification.

CLASSIC GROUP OPENS ANNUAL MEETING HERE

Evans Woollen Stresses Value of Liberal Education.

Disciples of teaching Latin and Greek met today in the Claypool Hotel in the sixth annual meeting of the American Classical League. The meeting is held annually in connection with the national convention of the National Educational Association, in session here.

Ex-Senator Albert J. Beveridge welcomed the members, and Evans Woollen, president of the Fletcher Savings and Trust Company, spoke on "Why I Believe in Classical Education."

"I believe in the fundamentals of a classic course," said Woollen. "In business affairs I find that the young men who have been grounded in classical courses at college have better trained minds than those who specialized in technical courses."

"The last time I interfered with the employment manager was to say I wanted a position for a youth whom I had learned was one of three in a large class who had avoided business courses and chosen Greek. I do not know why the old-fashioned education does the work, but I am sure it does."

Andrew F. West, Princeton University, president of the league, submitted his annual report. Other speeches were delivered on the value of archeology, ancient languages, living foreign languages and history as superior education.

West was re-elected president for the coming year. Other officers elected: P. J. Miller, University of Chicago, first vice president; John Scott, Northwestern University, second vice president; Alfred A. Shear, third vice president; Anna P. McVay, fourth vice president; and Shirley H. Weber, secretary treasurer.

FIFTY PER CENT TAX CUT SEEN

Fiscal Year Closes With Huge Surplus on Hand.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, July 1.—The United States Government—the biggest business in the world—closed its books today for the fiscal year 1925 with a surplus of about $260,000,000.

This unexpected profit means that more than $600,000,000 may be available for the new tax reduction scheme to be worked out by the winter congress.

Only $300,000,000 was available last year when congress slashed 25 per cent of the bill. The new figures for this fiscal year and estimates for the one ending next June indicated that twice that amount will be available for the new cut.

If the ordinary policy of permitting all the surplus to be used for tax reduction is followed the present bill of the tax power would be cut down about fifty per cent.

DOHENY ALIBIS LEASE SECRECY

Oil Man's Version Contains Startling Charge.

By United Press
NEW YORK, July 1.—An assertion that the Washington limitation of arms conference in 1921 was to prevent hostilities in the Pacific which had badly frightened naval authorities, was made today in an interview with E. L. Doheny, wealthy oil man, published in and copyrighted by the New York Times.

The interview was published as Doheny's story of event leading up to the lease to him of Elk Hills, Cal., naval oil reserve.

Doheny was quoted by the Times as saying the work done under the lease was surrounded with secrecy to prevent foreign delegations to the conference learning that ever at the moment the United States was engaged in war-like preparation.

There will be a shortage of 500,000,000 bushels in winter wheat crop as compared with last year," Ewing declared. "Prospects are favorable for nearly 150,000 bushels. Such prospects are favorable for probably will decrease approaches."

"We would not be surprised to see wheat before crop is all sold," Ewing said.
