THE FLAPPER WIFE

Gloria Confesses to Dick That She Has Been Seeing Wayburn.

THE STORY SO FAR:
GLORIA GORDON, beautiful flapper, married DICK GREGORY, a struggling lawyer. Her life of pleasure is fun and fine clothes . . . but no work of children.
She refuses to cook or keep house and hires RANGHILD SWANSON to do it for her. Although Dick says they can't afford a maid, and she swamps Dick with double for her clothes and a new automobile.
Gloria becomes infatuated with STANLEY WAYBURN, an out-of-work actor. Her "jazz" friend, MAY SEYMOUR, wife of DR. JOSE SEYMOUR, warns her not to be seen with Wayburn. She tells Gloria how she herself has been snubbed because of a foolish love affair with TIM CAREY.
Dick becomes seriously ill with pneumonia. During the days of his slow recovery, Gloria sees Wayburn constantly. He tells her he is going to New York to get a job. He needs money. Gloria borrows $200 of Dick's money from his secretary, MISS BRIGGS, who tells Miss Briggs she wants the money to improve the house and . . .
Gloria and Wayburn go driving and the car overturns. Wayburn disappears and Gloria, badly hurt, is taken to the hospital. When she has been in the hospital two weeks and is better, Dick comes to see her. He accuses her of having seen out, joy-riding with Wayburn and shows her the actor's cigarette case, found under the wrecked car.

By Beatrice Burton
CHAPTER XXXVIII
LORD took Wayburn's cigarette case from Dick.
Wondering, she turned it over and over in her slim hands.
"Where in the world did you get this thing?" she asked puzzled. The last time she had seen it, it had been lying in the wet yellow mud beside the wreck of her car. And she was quite sure that she hadn't picked it up.
"The nurse in the office downstairs just gave it to me, along with the jewelry you had on when you came into the hospital," Dick answered. His voice sounded tired and flat.
He took a little handful of jewelry from his pocket and tossed it down on the bed. Gloria picked up her rings and put them on. She said her wrist watch under her pillow.
Then she looked up at Dick. There was scorn written in the lovely depths of her eyes.
"So you knew when you came into this room that I'd been with Stan the day of the wreck?" she said.
"And you set a trap for me!"
"Of course I knew. The minute I saw his initials on the cigarette case I knew," Dick answered grimly. "I wish I had the fellow by the throat this minute!" He made a twisting movement with his hands.
"Dick stared out of the window at the houseposts across the street. He jerked his head toward them.
"I wonder if any of the men who live in those houses have wives like you, Gloria," he said. "I wonder if their wives are the kind who refuse to have children, who go tearing around with other men, who never stay at home, who don't even know how to make a home."
"Well, it's their own fault if they have!" Gloria cried shrilly. "It's their own fault!"
Dick turned toward her.
"How do you mean, it's their own fault?" he asked sharply. "I suppose you mean it's my fault that you've been stepping out with this Wayburn? Because you have, of course!"
"Yes," Gloria answered boldly. "I have. And I'll tell you why I have, if you want to know . . . because he knows how to be a pal to me, and you don't!"

DICK said nothing. There was a white line under his lips. And a fine sweat came out on his forehead.
"No, you don't!" Gloria repeated as if she were arguing with him. "You think that because you've given me a roof over my head and paid the bills you've done your husbandly duty."
She paused for breath.
"Well, you've kept me pretty busy paying your bills," Dick said. "Although I wouldn't mention the fact if you hadn't brought it up."
Gloria flushed.
"You kick every time I ask you to take me out to a dance or to a picture show," she went on. "You're the end of a perfect day is to go to sleep over the newspaper every night! And I can just sit there and twiddle my thumbs. I suppose? . . . Well, I'm not going to! Not if I see myself first!"
"If I go to sleep over the newspaper I'm because I'm doctored after my day's work," Dick answered. "And if you did your housework, as you should, instead of lying in bed till noon every day, you'd be pretty tired yourself at night. Other women don't want to be gadding every night in the week, I notice."
Gloria pulled her blue silk bed-

Woman Weak and Nervous
From the Green Mountain State of Vermont, Mrs. L. A. Gunman of Union Village writes: "I was weak, nervous, all run-down, and could not walk across the floor without resting, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored my health so I am now working nine hours a day. I wish all sick and suffering women would try it." After three generations of marvelous success Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is considered the most dependable remedy for female ills.—Advertisement.

Other women don't want to be gadding every night in the week, I notice."
Gloria pulled her blue silk bed-

LORD widened her eyes at him, like an innocent child. Just waking up from a nap.
"He was trying to make love to me the day I wrecked the car," she said. "I hit him. I forgot all about driving. And the next thing I knew I was lying under the car half dead."
She began to cry weakly.
Dick put his arms around her very gently.
"He could feel the beating of her heart. It fluttered like a frightened bird's. It seemed to him.
"And then you talk to me as if I was a bad woman!" she sobbed. "Just because I want to jazz around and have a little fun."
Dick patted her round shoulder. When he spoke his voice was harsh. His eyes were filled with passion and tenderness.
"Poor little kiddie!" he said. "I'm sorry."
It was not until he was half way home . . . away from the warmth and perfume of her . . . that he began to doubt what Gloria had told him. She had lied to him so often!

THAT night Gloria lay in bed thinking over what she had told Dick about Wayburn. She had told him the truth. But not the whole truth! Far from it! She had not told him that Wayburn had kissed her dozens of times. She had not told him that the

By peeping through the glass door a movie fan could see the books lying on the director's desk. She was told by a stenographer that they would be released soon, in pictorial form. So she went to the book store to buy the books.
What are the titles of the books she asked for?
Last puzzle answer:
The baby swimmer is 4 years old; Marion is three times as old, or 12 years; Gertrude is one and one-half times as old as Marion, or 18 years old; and Gertrude is only three-fifths as old as Lillian, who is 30 years old. Four plus 12 plus 18 plus 30 equals 64 years, the given total.

and hospitals this month that we won't have much left to go gadding around the country. I guess. Your bill at the hospital was $225. I just paid it."
"Oh sure, tell me what my bill was!" Rub it in!" Gloria cried. "Why don't you talk about the money you paid Mrs. O'Hara and Doc Seymour for your own sickness! I get tired of hearing about all my expenses!"
Again the sickening thought came to her that Dick would soon find out about the $200 she had borrowed from him . . . through Miss Briggs.
"Haven't the gardener started work on the back yard?" she asked in surprise as they drove into the garage.
"No. He came here with a whole raft of rose bushes that you'd ordered," Dick answered. "But I sent him away. We can't afford to fix up the yard just now."
He helped her out of the little car. It was sunset. The long shadows of the new-leaved trees lay across the grass. The lilacs of the valley were in bloom along the fence.
A delicious odor of broiling steak came from the open door of the kitchen where Ranghild was getting supper.
"Home's pretty nice, isn't it?" Dick asked. "It's a pretty good place to be after all. Isn't it, Littlest?" Gloria raised her eyebrows.
"I guess so," she said shortly. They went in.

RANGHILD opened the door for them. There was a broad smile on her fresh-cheeked face.

Everything was quite as usual. After dinner Dick picked up the paper and sat down in his armchair to read. In a few minutes he was sound asleep.
The clock in the hall ticked off the leaden minutes.
Eight o'clock! . . . The end of the day for the Gregorys.
For some people it was the peak of all the twenty-four hours!
For some people 8 o'clock meant brilliant restaurants, streets filled with rushing taxicabs and cheerful crowds, theaters with their doors wide . . .
The thought of them brought Stanley Wayburn into Gloria's mind. Where had he gone?
Where was he now . . . at this very minute?
Suddenly Gloria put her head down on the table before her and cried as if her heart would break. Dick stirred, woke, lifted his head. (To Be Continued)
