Lemons Tighten Wrinkled Skin

Squeeze the juice of two lemons in a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which is a very mild skin cream. Shake well and you have the very mildest anti-wrinkle lotion to tighten relaxed skin, erase fine lines and eradicate crows-feet. Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon skin into the skin at night. By morning most of the tell-tale wrinkles, tired lines and crows-feet are smoothed out, giving a more youthful contour to cheeks, chin, throat. It leaves the skin velvety soft, clear and beautiful.

Beauty experts use this astringent lotion for enlarged pores, also to bleach and whiten yellow, tanned skin. Mix this harmless lotion yourself since it acts best immediately after preparation.

I arrived at the station, Little Marquise, just in time. The train was coming in as I reached the platform. I saw Jimmie waiting to meet Sally and I hurried toward him.

"Oh, I'm so glad you came, Mrs. Prescott," he said, his face lighting up. "I thought something had happened to you. Sally will surely be happy to have you come. She sets great store by you, Mrs. Prescott. She told me she thought you were one of the sweetest women she had ever known. I think she likes you better than she does Mr. Prescott," he added shyly.

"Maybe that's not the best thing for her to do, Jimmie," I answered. "One ought to admire and respect and regard one's boss, you know."

"Well, you know, Mrs. Prescott, Sally isn't the woman to admire and respect and regard any man. Both Sam, her husband, and I think she respects him, and I think it will be a long time before she trusts any other man. I'd rather die than disappoint her again. She was a brick to me, you know."

"Yes, I think she was, Jimmie." "The boss said I was to bring Sally right to the office if she would come. He said he was going to wait for her here. Between you and me, I think he wants to see her after hours, when that young chit that's in his office is gone."

"How you dislike her, Jimmie." "Of course I dislike her. I can't bear any woman that thinks she can hold her job by trying to be flirtatious with—oh, oh! I didn't mean to say that, Mrs. Prescott."

"Don't you worry about that, Jimmie. There have been lots of girls who have tried to hold their jobs by being flirtatious with Mr. Prescott, and there will probably be lots more. That doesn't worry me very much. The only thing that worries me is that this young woman will make trouble both for Mr. Prescott and for Sally when she finds she is out in the cold."

"Oh, I wouldn't worry about that. I'll tell her what I know about her, and tell her what you think about her."

Privately I made up my mind to tell Sally of the impudent manner in which I was answered over the telephone before she got back to Jack. I hate subterfuges, Little Marquise. I would much rather have gone to Jack with the whole thing, but I early found I had to beat around the bush with him. It always seemed to me that I could not approach him directly. He would not listen to a plain proposition until I had led up to it from all the different angles, and prepared him for it. In other words, I have to make John Prescott think that any idea I want to put over comes from himself. These tactics are much against my idea of the way to get something I want, but I presume many other women before me have also found out that no man wants to take the suggestion of a woman. He wants to think that a woman is still a clinging vine that winds herself about him and lets him uphold her even while she is stifling the best and freest life out of him as well as making herself a parasite. INTERESTING ITEMS FROM BUTLER CAMPUS

By James Carvin
Two intrepid sophomores scaled the tower of the administration building in the wee small hours one night this week and securely nailed a crimson sophomore flag to the roof, where it is flaunting in the breeze. The main topic of discussion on the campus at present is speculation as to how long the banner will remain in its position.

Announcement of the appointment of Caroline Godley and Albert Bloemker as associate editors of the Collegian, the university daily, was made by Prof. H. S. Birdson, head of the Journalism department. Dorothy Stephenson and J. Douglas Perry are the other editors of the paper. Eugene Clifford is editor-in-chief of the publication. Each editor supervises one edition a week.

Students in the Commerce Club will have an opportunity to see many of the major industries in the United States in moving pictures, according to Rollin Davis, president of the student division of the club. An open meeting for members and prospective members will be held at 8 p. m. Monday at the office of the club.

On being reminded that bulldogs do not howl, the name of the "Howling Hundred," an organization to intensify the cheering at athletic contests, has been changed to the "Fighting Bulldogs," according to Thomas Smith, cheer leader.

Work has begun on the 1926 Drift, annual publication of the junior class in honor of the graduating class. Wilson Dalley will edit next class. The first pictures will be taken next Monday.

Only five students have registered in the prescribed manner with the college authorities for the Magnum Cum Laude degree. Those registered are: Paul M. Ross, history; Edna Mae Thomas, history; Thomas Jaleski, chemistry; Florence Everett Hooper, botany and Shaler L. Bass, chemistry.

Eighteen candidates attended the first meeting of the mens' debating squad in the chapel Wednesday. The next meeting will be held at 3:30 o'clock Monday afternoon in the chapel.

Recently announcement figures by the registrar put the total enrollment for this semester at 1,483. This is an increase of more than 35 per cent in the last ten years.

The sum of $2,200.82 was raised by the Student Budget committee in its recent drive. The goal for the drive had been set at $2,090.

Delta Delta Delta sorority announces the pledging of Eleanor Gibson.

Ruby Gibson, Ruth Emingholz, Helen Howard, Katherine Rubush, Ada Rubush, Elizabeth Kitzinger and Dorothy Duesenberg were initiated into Delta Zeta sorority.

Chi Rho Zeta initiated Laurence Vollrath of Indianapolis and Maurice Davis of Brownsburg last week. A formal banquet was held in honor of the new members.

—Martha Lee Says—

MANY OLD JOKES HIT HOME WITH MEANING

If you ask what old joke draws more laughs regularly than any other, the answer would undoubtedly be that ancient crack: "Who was that lady I saw you with last night?" "That was no lady, that was my wife."

Hackneyed as that is, it serves after a fashion to remind us of one of the strangest phenomena of life: The lack of respect, tact and consideration habitually shown toward one another by a huge percentage of all the husbands and wives in America.

And why? Why is it that in the close association of marriage, a joyous romance is turned into a humdrum, tiresome partnership in which each party barely tolerates the other? I think it is because the husband reaches a stage where he thinks because no one is about but his wife that he can sit around half dressed, unshaven, uncouth and take no interest in the job of interesting his wife, and the wife rises to meet the new day and her husband each morning, in a soiled kimono, her hair straggling about her face, without even the common pleasantries of a "good morning" or the observance of any of those little acts of kindness and consideration which endeared her to her husband during the days of their courtship.

Disillusioned

Dear Martha Lee: I have been married six years and have three children. I was married at 19. My husband always gave me a great deal of attention at first, now he seldom ever kisses me or makes love to me. I seem to be starving for love. It is right for me to go to him and make love to him or should I let him make the first attempt? We live with my mother, and when I suggest getting to ourselves, he talks as though he is as much as I take but he never makes an effort. He keeps me guessing whether he loves me or not. I give him no money or anything. I can't dress nice and he says I am always quarreling with him and the children. He doesn't give up his love to me. I can understand that a man might want to wander away from a fire that was not his own, and children and wife who were not attractive in dress and manner. He owes it to you to see that you have the best money can buy, and you owe it to him to be the best investment he could make. You have a right to a home of your own, and the longer you let him sponge on your mother the harder it will be to pull him away. You doubtless know his income. Find a place that would be suitable for you at the price you can afford to pay, tell him you are going to move there, and ask him either to budget his income so that the whole family can be properly provided for, or else let you do it. If he had a home, whether it was two rooms or five, he would probably take an interest in staying home to look after it. Don't become careless in the little pleasantries of life that you practiced on him before marriage. A man doesn't have much temptation to kiss a woman whose sour lips are about to burst open with cross words and nagging. Nor does his paternal instinct survive children who whimper and are ungoverned. Play your part carefully, and he'll doubtless come around.

Green-Eyed Monster
Dear Martha Lee: I have been engaged to a very jealous young man for about five months. The reason he is so jealous is that my people are always saying cutting things of him and telling him about other fellows. After our last quarrel my folks tried to get me to break the engagement. He has tried to rid himself of this green-eyed monster.

MYERS ASSAILS GRAFT

Democratic Candidate Applauded at Open Air Meeting.

An enthusiastic crowd applauded Walter Myers, Democratic candidate for mayor, at an open air meeting at Washington St. and State Ave., Thursday night. Myers spoke on the issues of the coming election.

"The mere putting of grafters down is not enough," he declared. "They must be kept down." Myers said the grafters will be turned out when public patience is exhausted.
