Little Dancer at Club Here

Miss Hannah Leah Miller

Little Miss Hannah Leah Miller was one of the specialty dancers Thursday evening, following the dinner given at the Hoosier Athletic Club for about 150 new members. Miss Jeanne Sherer also gave feature dances. Don Miller was toastmaster at the new members' dinner, and talks were given by Harold J. Hampton, president; George Lipps, physical director, and Ernest Hoelscher, swimming coach.

Because of the crowds attending the open house week dances, every night, it was decided to have dances both in the ballroom and in the gymnasium Friday night, with orchestras in both places.

Martha Lee's Column

Old Boys Need Not Apply

Dear Miss Lee: I am a girl of 18 and have blue eyes and light hair. I am considered good looking and have smiles for every one. But some how my smiles make the old bachelors like me. There are ten or more crazy about me. All the young fellows flirt and go on. How can I get the young boys to call on me and keep the old bachelors away?

Don't give your smiles so readily to the "old boys" if you don't want them around. Don't you know any young people to invite in to an informal little party? Surely some of your girl friends can introduce you to some young men who might interest you and whom you might interest.

Lo, the Poor Handkerchief!

By Madame: Will you kindly write a few words on the use of the handkerchief while at the table? Is it permissible to use a handkerchief at the table? Please explain fully. Do people always use the fingers in eating pickles?

CECELIA.
The handkerchief seems to be necessary evil, and if it is necessary to use a handkerchief at the table I'd much rather use it than not! As to explaining fully, any more than what I've said would be too sufficient! Don't put your handkerchief on the table. Keep it out of sight, and don't use it conspicuously unless need be—but if need be, use it, for goodness sake! Pickle-eating, I believe, is not a social accomplishment. Eat it with your fingers unless it is going to get your fingers soiled and sticky, then eat it with a fork—cutting each bite off separately.

The Over-the-Tea-Cups Club observed president's day Friday with a luncheon at 1 p. m. at the Columbia Club. The new officers are: Mrs. L. W. Bugbee, president; Miss Emma King, vice president; Mrs. C. W. Dicks, secretary; Mrs. J. S. Jencks, treasurer. Mrs. Emma Harman, Mrs. R. J. Batchelder and Mrs. A. B. Milford compose the executive committee.

Mrs. A. A. Stevenson, 340 N. Audubon Rd., entertained the Office Auxiliary to the Public Health Nurses' Association at luncheon Friday. Covers were laid for fifteen. The afternoon was spent in sewing for the association.

The Bel Canto Club will hold its October meeting at 3:30 p. m. Sunday at the home of Miss Gertrude Conte, 250 S. Audubon Rd. The program includes selections by Misses Opal Dawson, Victoria Poggiani, Gertrude and Adelaide Conte, soprano; Thomas Poggiani, violinist, and Mrs. Mildred Smith, pianist.

The TANGLE

I was trembling, Little Marquise. I felt something must be done to counteract the emotionalism of the moment, so, as I slowly drew my hands away from my husband I smiled and said, "Is it as bad as all that, dear?"

"I think it is, Leslie," answered John, still ignoring Syd and Sally. "As usual I've been all kinds of a fool. You see I was much disappointed when Condon came back without Sally and my first impulse was to go over to her house and insist that you both go out to dinner with me. I started to get my hat when I heard Condon talking to some one in the outer office. I opened my door and found that he was talking in a very ugly manner to little Margarita Stimpson.

"Why are you hanging around here so late?" he asked.

"I waited a moment to see what she was going to answer, but presently the girl burst out crying at his threat to discharge her and I thought it was time to interfere.

"I went out and told him to get out. He left without saying a word and I turned to the girl.

"She had raised her little, appealing, tear-stained face up to mine and was asking, trembling, 'Oh, Mr. Prescott, you will not let Mr. Condon discharge me, will you?'"

"Certainly not," I promised decidedly. "He has nothing to do with the young women in my office."

Sally Atherton groaned, but I do not think Jack heard her. He was busy explaining and making his peace with me.

"I thought the girl would go," Jack continued, "when I gave her my assurance that she would hold her job, but she continued to weep. Finally I thought that a ride might quiet her and I asked her if she had had her dinner."

"No, I have eaten nothing since breakfast," she told me. "I have been so nervous knowing Mrs. Atherton was to come back."

"Why should Mrs. Atherton make you nervous, child?" I questioned.

"She is one of the nicest women I know."

Again I heard Sally's soft voice.
