

RESS REFORM FOR OFFICERS OF ARMY URGED

High, Stiff Collars Have Been Choking for Thirty Years.

Times Washington Bureau.
1322 New York Avenue.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—For thirty years it has been choking the United States Army. When the world war came along, regular army men and new ones too wanted chuck it! But General Pershing, it is understood, conferred with Walter D. Baker, then Secretary of War, and nipped in the bud any attempts to get rid of it!
What? That high, stiff collar of the regular Army uniform. Neat?
Smart? Sure. But comfort-less? "You ought to try wearing one in hot weather," says the Army.
Now, after thirty years, it appears there is a chance to change to a collar on the order of that worn by the British army.
Arguments being advanced are that it is easier to find a tailor who can make a good-looking roll collar than it is to find one who can make a good-looking roll collar. The roll collar is more apt to give several necks than is the high collar, and men leaving the service go to find someone to buy their uniforms when possible. The army men, however, won't help with the collar and health arguments. The collar may torture, they say, but there are no records to show it caused apoplexy.
However, the Air Service now has a roll collar. This has broken the General C. C. Hammond, chief of the militia bureau of the War Department, is sending out a questionnaire to see how many officers will vote for it. The order is expected to be issued soon.

Baker's and Pershing's war-time reason for enforcing the high collar was to save the vast number of uniforms which had been manufactured on that pattern.
