

DECISION UPON ARCHITECTS IS EXPECTED SOON

Complainants Finish Testimony Before Board in Plaza Case.

A decision on whether or not to revoke licenses of Frank R. Walker and Harry E. Weeks, members of the firm of Walker & Weeks, Cleveland architects and designers of the World War Memorial plaza, to practice engineering in the State, probably will be made in a few days.

A majority of the members of the State board of examiners of engineers and land surveyors, which is hearing charges of alleged unethical practices by the architects, today said they were in favor of deciding as soon as possible after the hearing is completed.

The complainants completed their testimony this forenoon and one witness was called by the defendants. Evans Woolen, president of the Fletcher Savings and Trust Company, and member of the board of trustees of the plaza, was the last witness called by the complainants. Under cross examination, Woolen declared he did not believe the archiitects in making the specifications for the plaza had done anything "which could be called crooked." James T. Hanley, vice president of the American System of Reinforcing indicated that the specifications for the foundation did not restrict competitive bidding. He added, however, that estimates could not be made without referring to the catalog of the Rivet Grip Steel Company of Cleveland, of which the architects are officials.

YOUTH PLEADS SELF DEFENSE

Unshaken after nearly an hour's grilling by Deputy Prosecutor Judson L. Stark, Coburn Huntington, 719 N. Alabama St., today testified in his own behalf before a jury in Criminal Court to the charge of second degree murder. Huntington was arrested May 6 after he fatally stabbed John Williams, 17, colored, with a butcher knife in a restaurant, 326 E. Market St., where both were employed.

Huntington insisted he stabbed Williams only in self-defense.

"I intended to stop him before he got at me with a meat cleaver," said Huntington. According to Huntington, Williams became angry when he remarked that Williams' grandfather was descended from an ape. The case is expected to go to the jury late today.

War and Apple Pie Are Legion Head's Hobbies

Mr. and Mrs. John R. McQuigg, their daughter, Pauline, and their son, Donald.

By NEA Service

LEVELAND, Oct. 13.—Gen. John R. McQuigg, the new national commander of the American Legion, and known as a "hard-boiled" veteran of the World War, is far from being a commander in his own home.

It seems that the great "weakness" of McQuigg is his fondness for apple pie. Nearly every day his lunch consists of apple pie, and it is the dessert for every dinner he eats away from home.

But at home everything is different.

Mrs. McQuigg insists that no man should eat pie more than once a day. She "commands" there, so despite all the new commander's entreaties, pie is rarely served at the McQuigg home.

"I know my husband eats pie nearly every day for lunch whether I had it for dinner or not, so I make sure that he doesn't get it at home," says Mrs. McQuigg. "Pie more than once a day is good for no man."

PUBLIC WORK URGED AS AID

Indianapolis Employment Bureau Has Meeting.

Dr. William M. Leiserson, professor of industrial relations and economics at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio, in a speech at the first annual dinner and meeting of the Indianapolis Employment Bureau at the Columbia Club, Monday night, advocated governmental work on public buildings and roads during dull seasons and slack years.

George E. Gill, bureau director, summarized the bureau's work in forty-seven weeks of operation. Gill said the bureau has registered 4,996 persons, or an average of 106 persons a week and 1,063 applicants have been placed in jobs.

"Recently, former residents of Indianapolis who have returned from Florida registered with us," Gill said. He recommended no change of positions where there was no just cause.

Holtzclaw, 25, 2020 N. Pennsylvania St., just before the board of safety today dismissed him from the force for conduct unbecoming an officer and neglect of duty.

Holtzclaw was found by Lieut. William L. Cox and squad Oct. 7, at 525 E. North St., where police also discovered eighty-one quarts and thirteen pint bottles of beer and one gallon and one pint of alcohol. Two women and two men were with him, officers testified.

Holtzclaw refused to resign in face of damning testimony.

S. E. Armstrong, who lives at the North St. address, admitted he intended to sell the liquor. Holtzclaw rented the house, showing his badge, Oliver Clark, a rental agent, testified.

Chief Police Herman P. Rikhooff, following the raid, ordered an investigation. "You've just fallen in with bad companions as they've got the goods on you," Mayor Shank said in advising Holtzclaw to plead guilty. "I'm sorry to see you go wrong, for you were named to the force on my recommendation. Well, maybe there's more in the booze than in the police business."

Holtzclaw denied knowledge of the liquor and said he had come to the house to tell a cousin of a job he could obtain.
