

NEED OF GOOD AUTO LIGHT IN FALL IS SHOWN

Motor Club Official Says Good Beam Very Essential.

A better driving light is needed by motorists at this time of the year, when shortening days require driving home from work in the dark, if a repetition of last year's accidents are to be avoided according to a statement by Todd Stoops, secretary-manager of the Hoosier Motor Club. "The Indiana law not only requires the use of dimmers or a non-glaring light," said Stoops, "but it also requires the motorist to pick up objects at a distance of 150 feet by the use of the same dimmed lights."

"A study of last year's record of fatal accidents shows that seven persons were killed within a period of twenty-five days between the hours of 5:30 and 7:30 p. m., in December. Other accidents during October, November and December seem to prove that motorists were driving with too little light."

"At this time of the year the headlights must penetrate the fog, rain and smog combined with the early dusk of Autumn days and it is difficult to do this with ordinary dimmed lights. There have been many arrests for driving with glaring lights but no reports have come to the office of the Hoosier Motor Club of motorists being arrested for driving with too little light and this phase of the headlight problem is just as important as the other."

"The headlight which will render objects visible at a distance of 150 feet is a powerful factor for safety at night. It protects the driver and other traffic in his path and serves as a warning of approach to motorists coming from cross streets. No one steps into his car to go to an accident but the motorist who looks but cannot see where he is going on account of inadequate light is surely going to have an accident sometime."

"Light at night is essential for safety and every precaution should be used to see that the tall light is turned on at the proper time and that obstructions in the street be well marked by lanterns."
