

POPULAR USE IS FOUND FOR CASTING POOL

North Side Boy Suggests Skating Rink Be Made For Winter.

Do You Know?

Francis F. Hamilton, building inspector, says unwrap your furnace pipes, except at the joints, to obtain most efficient results.

Let Mr. Fixit be your advocate with city officials. He is The Times' representative at the city hall. Write him at The Indianapolis Times.

A popular use has been found for the casting pool the city constructed with the taxpayers' money for a few hundred sportsmen. A youthful correspondent suggested the use in Mr. Fixit's mail today.

DEAR MR. FIXIT: Could you somehow or other fix it so there will be water in the casting pool at Fall Creek Blvd. and College Ave., so that when freezing weather comes it will freeze and the boys in that neighborhood will have a skating rink? Please hurry, because a pan of water in our back yard froze last night.

FUTURE NORTH SIDE CITIZEN: One of the most sensible suggestions Mr. Fixit has received for many days! R. Walter Jarvis, park superintendent, promised Mr. Fixit to see the proposal is carried out at once.

DEAR MR. FIXIT: Find enclosed a list of names signed against the Southeastern Ave. dump. We find and know of dead animals being buried at this place. When the wind is from the south we cannot stand it in our homes. Kindly see if you can give us any relief in this matter.

TIMES READER.

You certainly took a lot of trouble to obtain those signatures. Dr. Herman G. Morgan, board of health secretary, will conduct an investigation. Fire Chief John J. O'Brien told Mr. Fixit you should have relief, as the dumps are a public nuisance concerning which he has received many protests.

DEAR MR. FIXIT: Maybe you could fix this for thousands of people who can not or would not go downtown Oct. 31. Let's suggest a line of march for the Mardi Gras parade that gives the north, south, east, west folks an even chance.

Form on South St., start at Virginia Ave., to Pennsylvania St., to Massachusetts Ave., to Delaware St., to Fall Creek Blvd., to Central Ave., to Thirty-Eighth St., to Meridian St., to Monument Circle and down south to disband.

Why, do you know thousands of people coming to Indianapolis do not know we have a Thirty-Eighth St. Blvd. and a Times Square?

HOOSIER TRAVELING MAN. Sergeant Harry Smith of the parade committee said your suggestion is meritorious, but because there will be twenty marching bands and a number of young boys who will walk, the committee cannot arrange a long parade route.

DEAR MR. FIXIT: A business concern has a big sign across Adelais St., between Market and Washington Sts. It says, "No Thorough-Private Drive."

How does it come they can shut a street off, as there are a good many people who would like to use it?

THE NEIGHBORHOOD. Patrolman Otis Tyner of the traffic department said an investigation would be made at once.

DEAR MR. FIXIT: We were promised an electric light at Christian and Clayton Aves., also at Oakland and Meredith Aves. Both are dark and dangerous corners. Petitions have been filed about a year ago.

TIMES READER. Mr. Fixit has little hope to offer. The board of works spent most of the money available for the lights in the downtown district and in certain favored residential districts. However, your complaint will be referred to that body.

'PROSPERITY IS HERE TO STAY'

Continuance of Good Times Emphasized at Meeting.

By United Press CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—The "Continuance of prosperity" was emphasized at the semi-annual conference of the Robert Morris Association, a national organization of credit men here today.

"The savings deposits are large and the credit situation is sound," Mr. David Friday, former president of the Michigan Agricultural college and an economist of note declared.

Friday said the farmer had good purchasing power, labor was enjoying favorable employment conditions and the situation is helped by an active building program. Railroads and public utilities, he said, are expanding at a normal rate, manufacturing plants are enlarging and creating a demand for building and machinery and experts are large.

Chaplin in Making 'Gold Rush' Demanded Realism

EW people appreciate to what extent actors are frequently compelled to go in motion pictures for the sake of realism. Charlie Chaplin is a stickler for perfection of detail.

In his new picture, "The Gold Rush," which is to be shown at the Circle beginning Sunday, the part of the big miner, Chaplin's partner in his search for gold, is played by Mack Swain, who weighs something like 300 pounds.

Chaplin thought Swain would look funnier with a beard—and he didn't want any artificial beard stuck on with gum. It had to be the real thing, and so Swain, who in private life is clean shaven, had to grow a luxuriant crop of "whiskers."

He was compelled to wear them all through the taking of the picture, and he didn't find them funny to himself.

When the picture was finally completed, and he was at last allowed to have a shave, he said he felt almost undressed for a few days.

Swain speaks amusingly of his first experience in pictures. He was on the legitimate stage with a touring company that closed in Seattle, and, having heard there were great opportunities in pictures, he determined to go to Los Angeles to try his luck.

He met a friend there who introduced him to Mack Sennett. Sennett told him there was no "royal road" in comedy; that he would have to start the same as anybody else, as an "extra" at $5 a day, but would be advanced as he improved.

The first day he was placed on a set representing the interior of a little theater. Some people rushed in for a few minutes, and then he was alone. Sennett told him he was through for the day. Swain thought motion picture acting was certainly to be easy.

The next day he was dressed as a "dude," and taken out on "location." He was told to stand on the bank of a lake and just "look natural." Some ruffians rushed at him, grabbed him and threw him bodily into the lake.

As he floundered out, covered with mud, and so mad he could hardly see, Sennett said "That's all for today, Swain." Swain said he came near ending his motion picture career right then and there.

LOOKING OVER NEW PALACE BILL

The ball game part of the act of Walton and Brant at the Palace today and tomorrow is a sure-fire laugh producer. Imagine taking a girl to a ball game who had never even heard of such a thing. That is about the way this happens. The questions asked by the girl are so "dumb" that they are brilliant. They are meant to be so.

HUNTER, 70, DROPS DEAD

By Times Special

NOELSVILLE, Ind., Oct. 30.—William A. Young, 70, died of heart trouble, Thursday afternoon, while hunting.

After failing to come home by dark, his family searched for him and found his body in a field eighty yards from the house. The gun which he carried had not been discharged.

He was found out, covered with mud, and so mad he could hardly see, Sennett said "That's all for today, Swain." Swain said he came near ending his motion picture career right then and there.
