BAKED POTATOES

Baking potatoes takes a considerable amount of gas. You can lessen the time required to bake a potato by first boiling it for 15 minutes and then placing it in the oven to bake.

THE WASH LINE

When you hang clothes on the line hang all things of the same kind together, all sheets, towels, slips, side by side. It will be easier putting them up and will also save time when you take them off the line to iron.

Mrs. A. J. Porter

President of the Riley Hospital Cheer Guild, which will hold a bazaar Dec. 1, 2 and 3, is Mrs. A. J. Porter, 2917 Ruckel St. Contributions recently received are 15 pieces of wash clothing from the Ladies Social Circle of the First Baptist Church, fifty-five bed quilts from a new chapter of University Heights women, ten dozen pints of jelly and preserves from the Home Economics Club of Plainfield, and two dining tables from the Squireboom Squee chapter of the First Baptist Church.

A "navy" dug a pick into the ground twenty-six feet below the surface, and unearthed part of a skull. He reported the find, and scientists were soon after it.

From preliminary examination, they were able to declare that the skull belonged to a sub-human woman, forty-five years of age, who lived some time between 15,000 and 50,000 years ago. They believe that the woman was black, left-handed, and able to talk in a primitive way, but that her nose approximated a snout in the absence of a bridge.

"This discovery is of great importance in the history of archaeology," declared Prof. Grafton Elliott Smith, anatomist of London University, who is now engaged in examining the skull.

EVEN GOOD MOTTOES GO OUT-OF-DATE

Some years ago the favorite motto of the generation was "Hear no evil, see no evil, speak no evil." It was accompanied by sets of queer-looking, small brown monkeys in illustration.

Possibly it went out of style because of the ludicrous monkeys—but it was an excellent motto. Its application to present day needs is so very suitable. The modern idea is to look for the worst in our contemporaries; that we are not good sports unless we live up to the lowest expectations of our so-called friends. And into every word and action of our friends we read insinuations and double meanings.

Even lovers are not exempt. To doubt is one of the favorite indulgences of lovers it seems to me, and we are always criticising the loved ones for the self-same we readily excuse in ourselves, knowing them to be harmless.

Victim of Doubt

Dear Miss Lee: I am engaged for three years. I love him and I think he loves me. He never goes with any other girl. I guess I am funny for there is one thing that worries me. As a general rule, he always asks me if I want to come to go with him, give him up, break off your engagement, and don't see him anymore. You are trundling yourself into a land of misery by stowing about his "adventures." What if he is seen with a girl occasionally? Isn't it likely that he knows and speaks to girl employees at the place where he works? If you are going to be so easily made suspicious, you'll make both of you very unhappy. "Thou shalt not doubt" is indeed new commandment.

Call for an Arrow

Dear Miss Lee: I am 16 years old, and am in love with a girl. Please tell me how can I make her really love me. F. L. B.

Well, since honey catches more flies than vinegar, I would suggest that you shower her with attentions, at the same time keeping her from thinking you her devoted slave. Quite an art. Aren't you a little young to be wanting to fall in love with one girl to the exclusion of all others? Better make a large circle of boy and girl friends, and then you'll have a substantial supply to fall back on you if the young lady doesn't "come through" with "really love."

An Answer

To Bee: I don't think you should give all your time to one man, nor do I think you should drop his friendship yourself. Apparently he is very fine, and you may someday come to love him. But, don't be weak enough to encourage him by lying about other friendships, so that you may always have him to fall back on. That is cruelty, and I tell you appreciate his friendship, want it, depend on it, but that you cannot give all your time to one man when you do not think you love him. If you are in love with another man, that's all right, too. You're not engaged to either of them and you have the privilege of putting your affections where you please. Only be perfectly sure you're going to be happy when you do put them for keeps.

SUNSHINE CLUB DANCE

Children's Sunnyside Organization

Give Benefit Affair.

The Children's Sunshine Club of Sunnyside was to hold benefit Gypsy Carnival dance at the Indianapolis Athletic Club Friday evening. Guests were to come in gypsy costumes and features of the evening were to include the music of an organ grinder, fortune-telling and special dances by Misses Georgia Conely and Thearil Martin.

NURSE REPORT GIVEN

Superintendent Gives Figures for Public Health Association Work.

Mrs. Edna Hamilton, superintendent of nurses, reported that 4,810 calls had been made by nurses during October at the regular board meeting of the Public Health Nursing Association in the director's room of the Fletchers Saving and Trust Company Thursday.

Mrs. W. W. Thornton recommended that orthopedic training be given to nurses in charge of crippled children. Miss Hamilton reported 521 crippled children cared for during October. Miss Gertrude Davis, De Pauw University graduate and of the Methodist Hospital Training School has been added to the staff of P. H. N. A. nurses.

Many ensembles for summer are carried out in shades of lavender and purple.

BLACK AND TAN
The combination of black satin and tan chiffon or georgette crepe is one that is very much favored by sophisticated dressers.

BLONDE SHADES GOOD
Blonde bengaline, unprinted, forms some of the very smartest of ensembles. A blonde satin hat and pumps frequently complete the outfit.

VEILED WITH CHIFFON
The smartest printed silk frocks are veiled with plain chiffon or have chiffon coats.

TELEGRAM FROM LESLIE PRES-COTT TO JOHN ALDEN PRAESCO.

Arrived here all safe and sound. Walter is not home yet. We expect him on the afternoon train. Ruth is her splendid self, but I can see that I am a great comfort to her. Kiss the babies for me and know that I love all my home-folks. including you. LESLIE.

Letter from Leslie Prescott to John Alden Prescott.

I sent that wire off immediately I arrived, dearest. I find since they have brought Walter back that he has been hurt worse than we thought. The bullet through his foot shattered all the bones in the instep. It was a long while before they could get him to a doctor, who could even give him first-aid.

When he arrived home all the specialists in town thought his foot would have to be amputated. Walter emphatically insisted that he would rather die than have that done.

Finally some one recommended a young surgeon who has been making quite a name for himself in orthopedics and he said that there was a chance to save the leg or at least they could try.

"We can always cut off a man's foot as a last resort," he said with a wry boyish grin; "but I am afraid we would find it rather hard to put it back after it has been separated from Mr. Burke's leg."

Just the way Dr. Walton said this seemed to give both Walter and Ruth a lot of confidence, and just as present the doctor is trying to get Walter ready for the first operation which is to be the transplanting of bone.

After all, Jack, there is nothing quite so terrible as a serious physical illness. One becomes only a kind of selfish animal that can only think of one's self.

Please do not get the idea from this that Walter is particularly selfish. I think he is particularly unselfish, but with all the pain and anxiety that his foot has given him, it is beyond human strength to be interested very much in anything else just at present.

Ruth's trouble is being more psychological, she has been able to put her worries into the future where they belong and give herself up to Walter.

Do you know, Jack, I have had ever since I came here a most peculiar feeling that Fate is always jealous of people who seem too happy. Always there is something which seems beyond human control when people's lives become too easy. Walter and Ruth are devoted to each other and one would think they both deserved all the happiness that could come to them, and then, this stalks into their lives.

TOMORROW—Letter from Leslie Prescott to John Alden Prescott.

MOST CONVENIENT

Keep a damp towel at hand on which to wipe your fingers as they become soiled or sticky while you are preparing food.

RIGHT THRIFT

Thrifting does not mean merely buying something that is cheap. Real thrift lies in buying the right things at the lowest price that it can possibly be bought for then preparing the food so that it is appetizing.
