

REPORT MADE BY GEOLOGIST

Logan Lists Harrison County's Natural Advantages.

Harrison County, Indiana, land contains shales for cement tile and brick, sandstone and limestone for building and lime and natural gas which has attained the flow of 4,635,000 cubic feet in twenty-four hours. Dr. W. N. Logan, State geologist, who has just conducted a survey, reported today.

The mineral formation belongs to what geologists call the "Mississippian age." In the southeastern part minerals belong to the Borden formation containing sandstone suitable for abrasives, and shale for cement, tile and sewer pipe.

Mitchell limestone, the best road material in the country, is abundant to the west. Oil has been found in the Borden formation at a depth of 200 feet and gas has been obtained in the black shales near New Albany.

LEATHER DRESSES

LONDON—An entire leather outfit, except for silk stockings, was exhibited here by mannequin. The frock was of suede with dyed leather insertions and the cloche hat to match.

Activities Told—Will Help Membership Drive.

Activities of the Chamber of Commerce are described in a pamphlet to be used in a membership campaign, edited by R. Webb Sparks, publicity director.

Spark wrote "The Parable of the Lost Soul," which points out the value of cooperation among business interests.

The folder contains a sketch of the chamber's new home being erected in N. Meridian St., and an article by Frank S. Flehback, president.

"He who is too engrossed with his personal affairs to join with those progressive business men who constitute the personnel of the organization is guilty of a three-fold injustice—first, to himself for ignoring the companionship of its members; second, to his city which the organization always is serving; and third, to his business or profession which needs the contact and broadening influence of the organization," Flehback said.

MUST USE PARACHUTES

LONDON—Following recent crashes in which six aviators lost their lives, the Air Ministry has announced that in future all Royal Air Force planes will be equipped with parachutes.
