Lemon Removes Lines, Wrinkles

Squeeze the juice of two lemons in a bottle containing 3 ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well and you have the very mild, anti-wrinkle lotion to tighten relaxed skin, erase fine lines and eradicate crows-feet.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the skin at night. By morning most of the tell-tale wrinkles, tired lines and crows-feet are smoothed out, giving a more youthful contour to cheeks, chin, throat. It leaves the skin velvety soft, clear and fresh.

Beauty experts use this stringent lotion for enlarged pores, also to bleach and whiten yellow, tanned skin. Mix this harmless lotion yourself since it acts best immediately after preparation.—Advertisement.

LETTER FROM SALLY ATHERTON TO LESLIE PRESCOTT
Received your note, my dear Leslie, this morning. It was very sweet of you to take the trouble to write to me the moment you arrived at your destination. I had hardly finished reading your letter when your husband came in and read me parts of the one you had written him.

It must be very sad for poor Ruth Burke when she had added to her own physical ills and fears this terrible thing that has come to her husband. I used to envy her and think that while she, perhaps, was no more deserving than I, she must be having a much happier time of it.

Of course, I knew she wasn't very happy with her first husband and neither was I, and I said to myself "Walter Burke is making up to her for all this."

Today, Leslie, I'm a little mixed up about it all. Taking it altogether, I don't believe that Ruth or even you are happier than I. I have seen enough lately among my married friends to know that life, yes life and love, are mostly fifty-fifty propositions. If you do not once in a while run into unhappiness on your own account, you are sure to be more unhappy when the one you loves gets into trouble.

You will notice, dear, that I say "when the one you loves gets into trouble." When one loves much, one must have a very deep knowledge of what that love is costing him. I have never been able to realize, or rather determine, which were the best. Having love, there almost always comes a time when one wonders if its possession is worth the heartache it entails. Even when two people are as devoted as are Ruth and her husband, there is more or less unhappiness caused through circumstances over which neither has any control.

For instance, I know Ruth is much more troubled over her husband's gunshot wound than he is himself and he, of course, is worrying for fear something will happen to her when her baby is born.

I am feeling greatly disappointed, my dear Leslie, for I am afraid you will not be home when Paula Perier is here. I counted so much on seeing you two women together, for you know, I think, of all the women I have known, you and Paula are the finest.

And yet, you are so totally different from each other. You both seem to have the same understanding and that seems very strange to me, for each of you must have reached it along entirely different paths.

If I did not know better, I would say you both had suffered greatly and come through it purifying fires triumphant.

Orchid Crepe de Chine nightgown finished with bands, is seen in Design No. 2612. Embroidery and orchid crepe satin ribbon, contribute to its daintiness. The miniature figures reveal the simplicity of the pattern. Gowns made at home will withstand constant wear and laundering. Soft cotton batiste or cotton crepe is lovely, too, for this gown. Sizes 16 years, 36 to 44 inches bust. Size 36 takes 3 yards, 40-inch.

Emb. Design No. 709 (blue or yellow) is 15 cents extra.

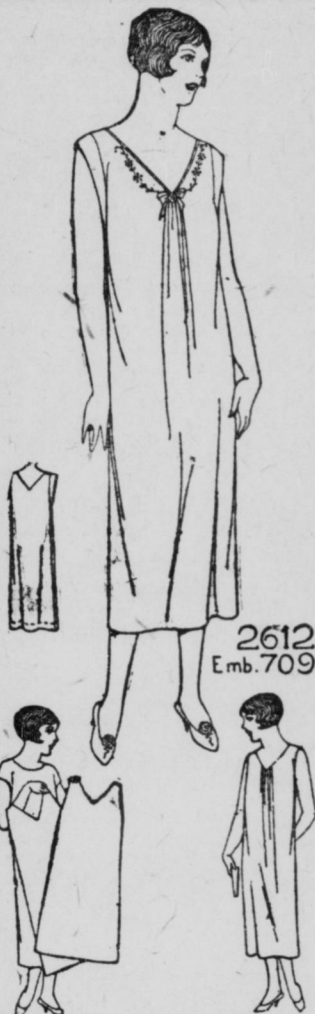

Our patterns are made by the leading Fashion Designers of New York City, and are guaranteed to fit with V-shaped neck, and armholes perfectly.

Every day The Times will print on this page pictures showing the latest in up-to-the-minute fashions. This is a practical service for readers who wish to make their own clothes.

Martha Lee Says

THE 'RIGHT PEOPLE' ARE WITHIN OURSELVES

Who are the "right people?" Everybody seems determined to know them. The idea has become a national slogan. But down at rock bottom, the "right people" now, were once the people who wanted to know the "right people."

And that is because we ourselves are the right people, if we only look hard enough, and work hard enough to make ourselves so. Parents scrimp and save to send their children to expensive Eastern schools, so that they may "meet the right boys and girls." The main idea seems to be to achieve success on the success of others. Not enough is said about knowing the right people that reside within us. A young playwright on Broadway is today, at 25, one of the most sought after men in all New York. Five years ago no one knew him. He knew no one of influence except himself. But he knew himself. And he looked the door of his workshop—and worked. Today he is one of the "right people."

Artistic Inclinations

Dear Martha Lee: I am 17 and want to be elevated to be an artist. I have ability and am ambitious to do portrait work. If I could only go east to art school, where I could meet the right people, who would be sure to help me become recognized. I would be so happy. But my father is very discouraging. He says he's not going to squander money foolishly, and if I have ability to succeed I can do it here as well as in the East. He doesn't realize what it means to my future to have the right people back of me. Mother and I want to know your opinion and some suggestions for persuading my father to let me go.

COLORINE.
I'm inclined to think Father is right. If you, my dear, have that gift of God to paint beautifully you will force people to recognize you. You will not have any trouble knowing the right people for the right people will seek you out. The surest plan is to do your work first and get your recognition later. If you could get the recognition without doing the work, the odds are against the work ever materializing. Moreover, opposition is the very best thing for artists. They don't work well when they are comfortable and satisfied.

Lodge Nights

Dear Miss Lee: I have been married seven years. My husband is good to me, except that he leaves me one night every week and goes to lodge. He plays cards afterward and stays out late. I never go anywhere without him and do not see why he should leave me at home. Don't you think I am right?

MRS. H. T.
I most certainly do not. Your husband enjoys his evening with "the boys" as all men do, and there is no good reason why he should not have it.

Why don't you join the lodge auxiliary? Or you might spend an evening with one of your women friends when your husband is away.

SOME LAD MADE HAPPY

Community Fund Campaign Director Gives Away Prize.

There's one small boy in Indianapolis today, happy because he's the proud possessor of a new wool-lined coat, and this is just because A. E. Baker, director of division three in the Mile Square campaign of the Community Fund, received a prize Monday, at the regular Fund luncheon, for leading his division over their quota first. Baker bought the coat and sent it to the Salvation Army, accompanied by a pair of warm gloves to be presented to some small boy in need of it.
