

THE GORRIN' the DOPE By VEDDER GARD

It looks as though the football team with the best pass attack in the best club these days. Not many are being won by the old smashing type of football. Two fairly evenly matched lines can battle all afternoon without either one getting a decisive advantage.

But the day of 0 to 0 deadlocks is passing—in fact, has already gone the way of the nose guard and the chin guards.

No matter how good the defense against the aerial stuff, a team with a good passer is going to complete some of the air shots. Dartmouth, of course, is the best example we can think of right now. Michigan is another.

The chief requisite of a successful barrage is someone who is an accurate thrower. A team can not stop a man who throws straight and true.

This is something Minnesota must think about when it plays the Wolverines. The Gophers have a crushing, powerful line plunging attack, but not so many catches have been won that way.

The Minneapolis outfit showed it had some passes in previous games, but main reliance has been placed in a driving offense.

That Michigan line will stand up under plenty of hammering. It is the fly in the ointment for those who are picking Minnesota to beat Michigan next Saturday.

At Bloomington next Saturday plenty of passes are likely to fly. Purdue has used the aerial attack to great advantage all year and seems to have a good heavier in the veteran Tauter.

U. I. also has an expert tosser in Salini, a southpaw. The overhead is going to be heavy in that annual rivalry scrap at the dedication of the Memorial stadium.

The forward-pass is the style these days. And the team with the most style wins.

ACROSS THE BOARD TODAY

Bowie track proved our undying on Tuesday. We won at Lexington, but dropped it all, and more, too, at the eastern course. In Kentucky, Flag Lieutenant won. Marvaco Out and second and Indianapolis third. The Spas was scratched.

In Maryland, Mr. Pepp wasn't feeling that way and finished fourth. It wasn't our Birdies in the last race at all. That horse was far back. There's one that wins about twice a year. We'll hook it some of these days. The best handout could do this. When we give him his money, we'll let him go. We'll find the bank roll down just $50. The B. R. today is $1,000.05.

At Lexington today we will start out by playing FINE $200 across the board. RESONANCE probably has to win some time, and we'll risk $5 win, place and show on that maiden in the third. There's CAPTAIN GUARD again in the fourth, which means we'll put up our $2 across-the-board investment.

OUR SUSANNA in the fifth. CHERRY-COTE in the sixth and our old friend, KUBIAK KAHN in the seventh all red a $10 win-place-and-show play. The last two will be combined for $20 across-the-board. We'll let Bowie alone today.

THE chief subject for discussion wherever football fans gather these days in Northwestern's stunt of downing the ball behind its own goal line for a safety. The Purple resorted to the strategy against Michigan and again last Saturday against Purdue.

At Lafayette with only a minute or so to play and the score 13 to 7 in its favor, Northwestern was forced back to its own goal line where it obtained possession of the ball. Instead of risking a blind punt and possible touchdown or giving Purdue the ball on a short kick, Lewis gave the Bollermakers two points by putting the ball to the ground back of his own goal.

As the rules provide, the ball was then brought out to the thirty-yard line and put in play by Northwestern.

Now all the arguments hinge on the ethics of the stunt. Some characterize the play as "yellow." We can not see it that way. It is smart football and perfectly within the rules. It is the same idea as walking a heavy hitter in baseball with the winning runs on the bases.

It is not a sure-thing play. Sometimes the following batter breaks up the game with a hit. Northwestern ran the chance of losing by those two points handed the opposition.

As long as the rules remain as they are the Northwestern team is perfectly within its right. All is not fair in love and football war, but we see nothing unethical in the safety-safety as used by Northwestern.

SOME day the wise crackers will have to stop kidding Philadelphia about the "sleepy village," etc. If there is a live sport town anywhere the Quaker City is it. In 1924 Philly will just about be the sport capital of the United States.

The A. A. U. has awarded the Pennsylvania city a number of the major events of the year, including the national senior and junior track and field championships. Then there is the huge carnival, the Pennsy Relay games.

Quakertown always has been one of the best boxing centers in the land. Connie Mack's Athletics might rise to the heights and oop the American League baseball championship. Who knows?

Football? The high school and college grids around Philly swarm with players. Guess you've heard of Penna. U. The committee handling the affairs of the resplendent celebration plans the most pretentious grid schedule ever dreamed of for the fall of 1928.

It will endeavor to get the college grid champions from all sections to play a series of contests for the national title. Many difficulties will have to be overcome, but it is an ambitious undertaking.

Sports of every kind flourish in Philadelphia. Think well next time before you make some wise crack about that "sleepy village."

Hubert President

Unanimously re-electing Murray Hubert of New York as president, and approving some 200 records made by athletes of all nations during the past year, the American Amateur Athletic Union brought its annual two-day convention to a close.

Sixty-six applications for records, including some made by the famed Paavo Nurmi and his rival, Willie Ritola, at "trick" distances such as 4,000 yards, were denied.

Meets of all kinds were allotted by the A. A. U. to various cities throughout the country. Prominent foreign athletes were invited to compete, and Charley Paddock and Loren Murchison were completely exonerated of charges that they had demanded exorbitant expenses during their trip around the world.

List of Officers

Other officers named beside Hubert included: First Vice President William F. Humphries, San Francisco; Second Vice President Avery Brundage, Chicago; Third Vice President William F. Kenny, Boston; Fourth Vice President Frederick L. Hoffman, Cincinnati; Secretary-Treasurer Frederic L. Rubien, New York.

Among the records approved by the A. A. U. was that of 95-10 seconds credited to Jackson Scholz of the New York A. C., made at Greensboro, N. C., in May, 1925.

Charles Brooks' record time of 23 seconds for the 220-yard hurdles was approved. Jole Ray divides honors for the record (4:12) mile with Paavo Nurmi.

ACCORDING to Ernest Young, theatrical producer, "the Flo Ziegfeld of the Middle West," the slogan of the 1926 flapper will be more freedom and less clothes. Only 43 more days until 1926!

As Dorgan, the humorist, says, the gals are making it harder every day for the blind men.

"LADIES' DAY" AT THE BALL PARK NEXT SUMMER WILL BE WORTH DOUBLE TICKET FEE.

The complexion of Miss 1926, 'tis said, will be ghastly white. The idea being to resemble a spook. That will be a tough job for some of 'em, but a dive into the flour barrel might help.

PERHAPS the ghastly and spook-like faces of the co-eds, row upon row, in the bleachers next fall will scare some of the timid grid warriors into ducking madly toward the opponent's goal.

SHE WON'T BE YOUR SHERA ANY MORE: SHE'LL BE YOUR SPOONING SPOOK.

Getting away from the flapper subject for awhile, we see where Shorty Burch and Shorty Holderman are going to box in the prelim to Steve Hart's fistie show Monday night. With a couple of "shorties" in the ring, the fans probably will be supplied with plenty of kick. Did you ever hear of "little shorty" with the cork hat?

Snow fell in Hanover, N. H., last Saturday night, probably in celebration of Dartmouth's football victory. "Swede" Overlander now can go "yoomping" on his skis.

Yell Practice Friday Night For Crimson Followers —Purdue Saturday.

By Times Special
BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 18.—This city will be taxed to the limit Saturday to take care of the enormous crowd expected for the dedication of the Indiana Memorial stadium. It's THE day of the year for the Crimson and homecoming for former students.

Special trains, buses and autos will bring fans by the droves. Many old U. I. grads will be on hand and Purdue students and alumni will be present in droves to see the annual feature, Purdue vs. Indiana on the gridiron.

Pep Sessions Friday

Things will start popping Friday. The dedication of the Women's Memorial Hall will take place in the afternoon. On Friday night big pep sessions will be held. There will be one for the women and one for the men.

All of the trimmings that go with such a gala occasion will be part of the extensive program. Fraternity houses will be decorated, as will the various local clubs and organizations which will hold open house. Welcome to this week.

Bloomington is the place to be on this week-end. Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs will hold State meetings. High school principals also will gather at this time. There's no doubt about it—Bloomington is IT Friday and Saturday.

Dope Often Upset

And the football game—that sure to be worth while. The yearly battle between the two State rivals always is strenuous and many times the dope is upset. There is no dope on such struggles.

If one were bold enough to hazard a guess on the outcome he naturally would select Purdue because of the fine ball the Bollermakers have played, although looking to Conference teams. Indiana also has played good games against Northwestern and Ohio State and seems to be a much improved team as the season reaches the end.

The J. J. C. football team will practice tonight at 7 o'clock at Indianapolis Park.

GRANGE HAS 'EM EXCITED

By United Press
URBANA, Ill., Nov. 18.—Red Grange will play his last game as a collegiate athlete for the University of Illinois when his team meets Ohio State at Columbus, Ohio, Saturday, university officials said today.

There is no evidence that Grange has violated his amateur standing. It was pointed out, and unless some evidence to that effect comes to light between now and Saturday Red will be in the line-up.

Red has been offered contracts to sell real estate, to sell insurance, to act in the movies, to go on the legitimate stage and to play professional football.

"But I haven't signed a contract for anything," he stated positively. "It would be a violation of the university's rules and until next Saturday's game is over I'm going to be loyal to my school and give it everything I have."

"After that game, I'll be ready to talk business."

"You had a lot of offers but I don't like to sell them. I think I'd make a rotten salesman. But I do like to play football."

Grange gave the "lie" to reports from Florida that he had signed a contract to play professional football.

"I'm not saying that I won't," he explained. "Some of my advisers have frowned on professional football, but the way I figure it that's my own business, and my father has left it to me to decide."

"After all, I'll soon be forgotten on the campus and some of the fellows who are now my best friends wouldn't loan me a dollar ten years from now if I were broke. And I haven't much money."
