

STIRRIN' the DOPE

By VEDDER GARD

It finally looks as though it has happened. Several threats have been made in the past to take the final high school basketball tournament away from Indianapolis. The plans worked out in a meeting of the I. H. S. A. A. board of control on Saturday will do away with the big meet that in recent years has been held at the State fairground in March.

Although this city will hate to lose the tournament, there is no denying the fact the H. S. board has listed many good reasons for its action. The State board of agriculture boosted the rent this year on the fairground building at the fairground to $3,000, plus all other expenses, such as light, heat, etc.

There are many big gyms around the State, and with four additional semi-final tournaments, probably as many people will see the games as attended here when it was all in one big net carnival.

But the biggest argument in favor of the new idea is that it will do away with the physical grind of the two days' play. Whatever may be said against taking the tournament away from this city, one can deny that if the strain the players have been lessened, the board has done something worth while.

It is a misfortune Indianapolis does not have a real high school gym. If the city had a structure worthy of the name it would have an opportunity to stage the final battles.

The capital of this basketball State is one of the most backward in providing facilities for the greatest Hoosier sport. Maybe, now, some will begin to realize it.

ONE hears a lot about intolerance these days. It is a favorite word of the school gym. If the city had a structure worthy of the name it would have an opportunity to stage the final battles.

Even Major Griffith, Big Ten athletic commissioner, gets a bit excited while talking about the menace of the pro game and predicts that golf or polo will take football's place if the grid sport becomes commercialized.

There seems to be a place for the collegiate sport, although it might be modified a bit. It may be given more prominence in some schools.

But there is also a place for the professional. Let's be sensible and think straight. Very seldom is anything all bad or all good. Only in the movies are villains absolutely wicked and the hero and heroine the embodiments of every virtue.

So on the sport stage even the referee may be right some times and the college football hero may have his faults. Just be him, folks. Don't let your own likes and dislikes warp your judgment.

There is something to say on both sides—always. It is so easy to be intolerant in the realm of sports.

INDIANA is over-run with good high school basketball centers. Any direction in which one looks there looms a youth of above the ordinary ability who stands in the little ring in the middle of the court as the game starts.

And in spite of all this great array of pivot men, in our mind, there is one out-standing star right at this time. The youth's name is Whitaker of Martinsville. The Artesian City center is playing the best ball of his career—no doubt about it.

It seems to be in superb physical condition and is displaying around ability hard to beat. He may not be as sensational a shot as some others, but he is always in the fray around the basket battling for close-in shots. Under his own basket he is a bear on defense.

That's what makes him good. He is all over the floor and seems untiring in his efforts both on attack and defense. This seems quite a little praise for any one player but the big boy deserves it.

THE Missouri Valley Conference is stepping out. Football in that section of the land has improved steadily in the past years and now basketball is forging to the front. When a club beats Butler, 30 to 20, even if it is the third game in three nights for the Pagetans, that team is traveling. That's what St. Louis University did Saturday. On the same night Drake defeated Illinois, 20 to 16.

The Hoosier college netters had better be watching their step when Missouri U. comes through this State during the holidays. The Show-Me boys will appear here against Butler on Dec. 29. Missouri won six and lost ten games last season in the Valley Conference.

THIS is vacation time for the college and high school students—that is, if they don't happen to be basketball players.

THE Central States bowling tournament proved to be a kind Santa Claus for the Century Alley five of this city. The squad finished sixth in the meet to draw down $185 in prize money. Hueber and C. Schott tied for first in the doubles. The deadlock has not been decided as yet. First place is worth $235. The local pair decided not to go to Cleveland for a roll-off. Hueber also gets $30 for third place in the all-events.

Wiggins and Risko in Main

Go Here New Year's—Other Scraps.

Steve Harter, Washington A. C. matchmaker, has decided to put on an all-star fistic card at Tomlinson Hall New Year's afternoon and he will have John Risko, youthful Cleveland mauler, here to meet Chuck Wiggins in the main go of ten rounds.

Risko is the heavyweight who gave Wiggins a terrific fight some time ago, the outcome resulting in a difference of opinion. Previous to that the rivals met at Fry Harter and Risko was disqualified for trying to get away with a claim of foul.

In the second clash the fans were treated to a great exhibition, Risko leading in the early rounds and Wiggins leading in the closing sessions.

Risko is a heavyweight and has plenty of weight advantage over Chuck, but the local scrapper thinks he will be able to outpoint the Cleveland mauler. Risko has promised promoter Harter that he will come here in top shape New Year's and try for a knockout over the Indianapolis light heavy.

Louie Epstein, Petersburg coal miner, will appear on the New Year's card here against Young Babe Ruth of Louisville. Ruth flattened Wagoner in one round some time ago and the scrap here probably will be a thriller. It will be a six-round affair.

Lennie Epstein, Indianapolis, and Jimmy Stewart, Louisville, will step four rounds in a return engagement. There was a difference of opinion over the verdict in their last meeting.

Harter is arranging other feature matches and his card will call for a total of thirty-eight rounds. Owing to much expense in lining up the various bouts, the prices New Year's afternoon will be $1, $2 and $3.

COUNTY CUP

Southport Wins Trophy by Third Victory in Meet.

Southport High School has the cup. The basketball team of that school won the Marion County tournament at Tomlinson Hall on Saturday night by defeating Ben Davis, 24 to 12. It was the third time that Southport won the meet, and with three victories permanent possession is obtained of the cup presented by Ross Smith.

Southport jumped off to an early lead in the final contest and held the advantage throughout. Ben Davis came back strong in the second half, but could not overcome the early lead of the winners.

Hildebrand, Southport center, who starred throughout the meet, was high point man for the victors. Gladson was best for the losers.

Indianapolis high schools did not participate in the tournament.
