Monday.A new development in aviation is the increased use of the McCook Field type of parachute. To date twenty-five aviators owe their lives to twenty-five small packages of folded silk and cord.Last week three aviators tested these parachutes at three different altitudes. The total drop was 5,030 feet. The second man jumped one-half as far as the first. The third man's jump, although the most dangerous, was the shortest. In spite of that the units in the third man's drop were exactly the same as those in the first aviator's drop.
