

EX-MINISTER OF U. S. DIES

John C. Wright Was Son of Indiana Governor.

John C. Wright, 93, former United States minister to Prussia and a resident of Indianapolis seventy-five years, died Sunday morning at his home at the Blachere Apts., after a year's illness. Because of sickness in the family of a granddaughter, Mrs. George N. Owen of Great Neck, L. I., funeral services will be delayed at least two weeks. The body will lie at the Plummer & Buchanan funeral parlor for the time.

Up to a year ago Wright was actively engaged in the real estate business here. Following his return from Prussia, he entered the wholesale grocery business and later became interested in banking.
He was born in Parks County, Oct. 17, 1832, the son of Joseph A. Wright, Governor of Indiana from 1849 to 1856. Wright succeeded his father to the ministerial post in Prussia in 1867.
Besides the granddaughter, four great-grandchildren and Joseph Albert Wright of Sparks, Ore., a half brother, survive. Mrs. Wright died in 1922. Wright was a member of the Columbia and University Clubs.

SENATOR TALKS FOR PROHIBITION

Robinson Is Law Observance Sunday Speaker.

A vigorous defense of prohibition was made Sunday by Senator Arthur R. Robinson in an address at Cadle Tabernacle before 1,800 persons climaxed law observance Sunday sponsored by the Indiana Anti-Saloon League. Other prominent speakers included Dr. Howard H. Russell, Westville, Ohio, who repeated today at the Indianapolis Ministerial Association meeting his statement that every effort possible is being made by wets to break down the eighteenth amendment.

Robinson said: "The saloons have gone for good. No longer does the hell hole of a saloon grab our boys and make of them drunken sots. Any one who doesn't obey the law is a rebel against our Government."
Superintendent E. S. Shumaker of the Indiana league; Frank Wright, Indianapolis, author of the Wright bone-dry law, and Sam Eickel, editor of the American Issue, league publication, also spoke Sunday.
