

LONG STUDY OF MARS DISCOUNTS THEORY OF LIFE

Scientists' Convention Told Conditions Are Not Suitable.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 17.—Conditions on the planet Mars are such as to make it reasonable to suppose that life such as we know it could exist on Mars, declared Dr. E. C. Slipher and Dr. C. O. Lampland of the Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., in papers presented before the convention of the Southwestern Section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The papers represented the latest work done at Flagstaff observatory founded in 1894. The planet Mars has been studied by this observatory continuously since the institution was established.

Many astronomers, notably those at the Mount Wilson observatory at Pasadena, Cal., do not think Mars has conditions that would support life.

The Flagstaff astronomers, however, give the following reasons for their position.

1. There is evidence that Mars has an atmosphere and that it contains both oxygen and water vapor.

2. Clouds and mists are observed in the Martian atmosphere.

3. The polar caps on Mars, which are white, behave just as they would if they were formed of ice and snow, growing smaller as the Martian summer advances and growing larger again as winter comes on.

4. Observation of the planet's surface, both by visual and photographic means, show that fine network structure, the so-called canals, it was Dr. Lowell's theory that these were strips of vegetation along the water ways.

5. While Mars is further from the sun than the earth and therefore receives less light and heat from the sun, it holds on to more of what it does receive than does the earth.

Measurements indicate that Mars absorbs more of the energy it gets from the sun and reflects away less of it than does the earth.

6. Measurements of the heat radiations given out by Mars indicate that the temperature in places rises at times to between 40 and 60 degrees fahrenheit.

IS AGNES AYRES FAT?

Did De Mille Tell Her So?—Courts
to Decide.

By Times Special

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 16.—Was Agnes Ayres really fat, and did Cecil B. De Mille, noted producer, indelicately call this to her attention
by saying, "Lady, you are fat?"

These two weighty problems will be considered by local courts following the filing of a deposition Tuesday by De Mille answering Miss Ayres' $93,000 damage suit.

The actress charges the producer said she was "fat," and her contract with the film producers' distributing corporation was voided as a result.

De Mille states Miss Ayres "allowed herself to become fat," thus causing her to lose her "physical charm and facial beauty." He declared he made any indelicate remark.

Motor policemen Hudgings and Beeker arrested four alleged speeders early today. They were: Fred E. Driesbach, 38, of 4920 E. New York St.; Nolan Hill, 22, of 627 N.
Wallace St.; Seymour Mazur, 32, of 523 E. Thirty-Sixth St., and Charles

EXIGENCIES' BLAMED

Safety Board Has New Phrase to Explain Personnel Changes.

Board of safety members have coined new phrase to explain the political personnel maneuvers apparently so necessary in the police fire and building departments.

"The exigencies of the occasion," was the explanation O. D. Shedd, board president, offered for the expulsion of Mrs. Maude Starr Reed and the appointment of Mrs. Clara O. Ozley as building department statistician, Tuesday.

No one attacked Mrs. Reed's record, but strong Klan pressure, gaining momentum after recent park board victories, was said to have affected the board.

Heart Failure

"Died of Heart Failure," shocks us by its suddenness. But heart failure is not necessarily sudden—it is usually but the end of a long struggle, the struggle of a heart that may be damaged by poisons left by disordered kidneys to pump the blood through arteries stiffened and encrusted with poisonous deposits. A body free from poisons and kidneys active and healthy are pretty good insurance against heart failure. Assist Nature to preserve these conditions in your system by daily drinking Mountain Valley Mineral Water from Hot Springs, Arkansas.
Physicians prescribe it as an aid in the treatment and prevention of kidney disorders. Phone for
