

TRIBUTE PAID EUGENE FIELD

Body, Long Neglected, Laid in New Tomb.

By United Press
CHICAGO, March 8.—Thousands of grownups who still retain something of the spirit of childhood stood with bowed heads in various parts of the Middlewest while the body of Eugene Field, the children's poet, was lowered into its last resting place here Sunday in the yard of the church of the Holy Comforter.

Heads were bared to the sting of snow and wind by those who were present to see the actual burial, but at the same time in other communities young and old alike were paying tribute to the memory of the author of "Little Boy Blue," "The Sugar Plum Tree" and "Wynken Blynken and Nod."

Like the little tin soldier which he immortalized, the poet's body lay neglected for thirty years in an obscure cemetery here. Then a group of literary men and women started a movement to build a lasting tomb in the church yard.

A score of prominent literary and journalistic personages, many of whom knew Eugene Field when he was writing a column in a Chicago newspaper, were among those who wept as his body was lowered into its new tomb.

Garden Flowers Society to Hear
Talk on Tulips, Friday Night.

Holland, the tulip-land will be shown in motion pictures at the regular monthly meeting of the Garden Flowers Society of Indianapolis, Friday evening, in the Crosey auditorium of the Central Library.

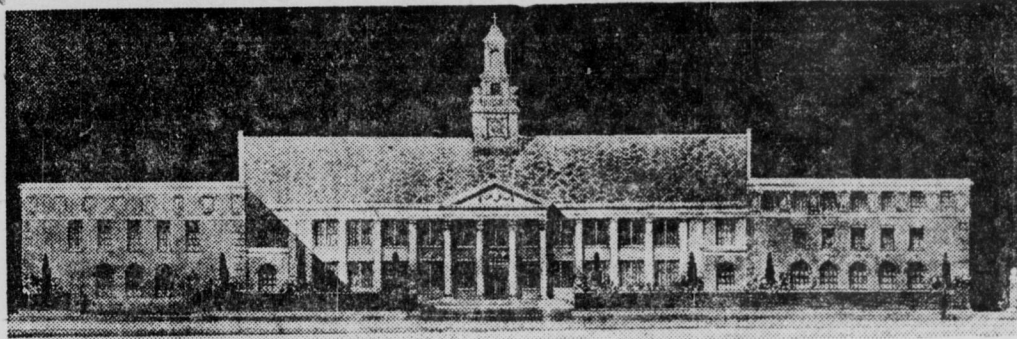

Sol Bush, an authority on tulips and bulbs of other sorts, will talk on tulips. E. S. Fisher, organization president, has invited all flower-loving persons to attend the meeting Friday night.

The society hopes to make Indianapolis the flower center of the country. Members already are planning to place some prize-winning exhibits in the annual national peony show at Ft. Wayne, Ind., in June. City beautification is another object.

PLIGHT OF FARMERS REVEALED BY SURVEY

Big Business Finds Rural Folks Not Even Half as Well Off
as Average American Wage Earner.

By Times Special
NEW YORK, March 8.—Realizing America's economic structure cannot be sound while so vital a factor of it as American agriculture is unhealthy, the big industrial interests of the nation have investigated the situation of the farmer and have confirmed the fact that he is in a very bad way.

The farmer, they find, is not even half as well off as the average American. His buying power has been growing steadily weaker for the past twenty-five years. For every dollar of national income received by the worker in other occupations, the farmer receives about 40 cents.

These findings are based on a year's survey conducted by the national industrial conference board, an industrial-economic research organization supported by manufacturing, mining, transportation and public utility interests. The survey concludes that what the farmer is suffering from is a "serious economic maladjustment." It is no longer paying agriculture to maintain its production in proportion to the population increase.

The conference board presents the following table showing the actual average earnings of workers in other industries for 1924 as compared with those of the farmer:

Farmers, $730.
Factory workers, $1,256.
Transportation workers, $1,572.
Clerical workers, $2,141.
Ministers, $1,678.
Teachers, $1,235.
Government workers, $1,650.
Other groups, $1,415.

Drop in Income
The drop in the per capita income of farm dwellers is graphically shown by the following figures:

	1919	1920	1921
Farm ...	$622	$298	$186
Urban ...	$723	$816	$701

Inasmuch as these are all averages, the survey points out, there are as many worse cases as better ones; there are as many farmers making less than 2 per cent on investment as are making more than 2 per cent.

Overhead Cost
Overhead farming costs rose 100 per cent between 1900 and 1910 and 600 per cent between 1910 and 1920, the board discovered. The farmers combined costs per unit of production rose 300 per cent in twenty years, but wholesale prices of farm products rose only 120 per cent in the same period. And for the last five years, it is asserted, the net return on the individual farm operator investment has been only 2 per cent.

Figures almost as startling are shown when it is added that the amount of invested farm capital dropped from $47,000,000,000 in 1920 to $32,000,000,000 in 1925.

Yield Decreased
The per capita acreage of improved farm lands has decreased 16 per cent since 1880 and the crop acreage has decreased 7 per cent since 1900.

Even the yield per acre on principal crops has decreased 4 per cent in the last twenty-five years. For the same period, farm production in proportion to urban population is down 20 per cent.

What is needed, the conference board concludes, is "a more scientific coordination of all business and industrial activities"—including the business of farming. The agricultural problem, it reiterates, is everybody's problem.

APPEAL DEBS CASE TO PUBLIC

Socialists 'to Go Over Coolidge's Head.'

By Times Special
CHICAGO, March 8.—The National campaign to carry the Eugene V. Debs amnesty case to the American people in defiance of President Coolidge.

George R. Kirkpatrick, national secretary of the party, said Sunday the fight is to be resumed immediately.

Debs has been denied his citizenship following his imprisonment for wartime speeches in which he said the fundamental causes of the war were economic and industrial.

"The Socialists will go over the head of President Coolidge, ignoring him as he has ignored them, and will carry the case to the Senate and the House, and to the American people in defiance of the President," said Kirkpatrick.

The campaign will start May first with the distribution of a million copies of a special amnesty issue of the American Appeal, the Socialist paper. The issue will carry petitions to Congress asking that Debs' citizenship be restored.

FINDS $37,000 IN GOLD

AUSTIN, Texas.—Miss Alma Currie, high school girl, discovered gold under her own doorstep near Teague, Texas. The gold was in the shape of coins and totaled $37,000 in value. The farm on which the treasure was found was occupied a few years ago by a man supposed to have operated a gambling and drinking resort.

twen 1910 and 1924, while commercial failures remained virtually the same.
