Her Own Way

A STORY OF A GIRL OF TODAY

IN FOOL'S PARADISE

That night I went to a fashionable restaurant for the first time in my life and I sat in a box at the Metropolitan Opera House. I was literally drunk with the joy of it all. The lights and laughter, the music and the knowledge that I, little Mamie Reilly, was one of the gay throng gave me a happiness that I can never forget.

The realization that Mr. Tremaine was not ashamed of me among all his grand friends added to my pleasure.

As I sat down in one of the boxes in the golden horseshoe, I cannot describe to you my feeling. I had often heard the singers of the Metropolitan Opera Company but I had sat so far up in the upper gallery that I could not see them. I was doing something that I had never hoped to do. I had an ambition to be one of those singers on the other side of the footlights, but to be sitting in one of those luxurious boxes that I had been told cost over a hundred thousand dollars a year, was something too wonderful for my imagination to conceive.

"The silver dress did prove a good advertisement, you see," said Madame in the late afternoon of the next day.

"We have had a regular rush of customers, and all of them, Mamie, have asked that you should show the dresses to them."

It is a popular thing, Julie, that the thing we want to do never strikes us as a temptation. I didn't realize as the weeks passed by that my dinners with Tremaine had grown more and more frequent until at last I hardly ever had a dinner at home.

As long as the opera season lasted I went at least four times a week and you do not know what an incentive it was to make me work with my own voice.

Madame Seria gave me the silver gown and wrap saying I had earned it by bringing in new clients. I thought she told the truth and so I lived in Fool's Paradise for three months.

One day Madame was out of town. She asked if I was still modeling there and when she was told I was, she asked if I would wear some of the new evening gowns for her.

All unsuspecting I put on one I thought she would like.

When I walked in I found she was alone in the salon. I had an idea that something was wrong and my knees trembled when I came near the divan on which she was sitting.

As I had been taught to do, I stopped and turned slowly around, that she might see the dress from all angles.

"I don't see why you keep on working."

The words came out softly but vigorously. (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

The WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

MORE OR LESS NEWS

When Cleopatra entertained her Marc Anthony she decorated her boudoir with tons of dewy roses dumped into a fish net carpet, so that his mighty tread would be soft and gentle. Wide-awake florists attempted to reproduce the Cleo stunt at a recent flower show, but gave up when they worked the adding machine on the price of the roses. Things must have been cheaper in Cleo's day. You hear of no modern lady dropping her pearls in vinegar with a dramatic gesture to show how little is the gift of man!

"Picture Thieves" are busy again. Four famous Constable canvases are missing from a London gallery. Special "picture detectives" are watching for some of the time-honored stunts. Women picture thieves, they say, cut the canvas from the frame and pin it 'neath their skirts. Seems to me all the detectives would need to do is arrest any woman entering a gallery wearing a skirt long enough and full enough to harbor a stolen picture.

Agitation for a monument to "The Heroic Women of the World War" is afoot. It will cost $500,000 according to submitted plans. Congress has generously contributed $150,000 so far. I imagine the heroic women of the World War who will pay taxes for their monument would just about as soon live in the hearts of their countrymen, and have beef-steak for supper instead of soup-bone!

"THE RIGHT THING"

"For women and business girls who are too tired or have too little time for evening entertaining, the Sunday morning breakfast in a satisfactory and pleasing way of solving the social problem." We quote from "The Gracious Hostess," a new book of etiquette by Della Thompson Lutes. I like it because it recognizes life as it is lived by folks other than those who week-end with royalty, bear letters to the Pope, and are puzzled about what topics to converse on with the President of the United States. This is a "workable book" for the common people.

YUM, YUM!

"And if you would promise to read a little cookery book that I would send you, it would be excellent for both of us."

This quote of David Copperfield to his weak-domed bride, Dora, prefaces Mrs. Thomas Bailey Aldrich's new book of "Choice Recipes"—a collection of the dishes fed the many celebrities in the Aldrich household. Here's one of the "receipts"—note the darning spelling.

"Chafing-dish spaghetti. Cut up three uncooked sausages in small pieces and fry in a chafing dish until brown. Move to one side of pan and add one onion minced fine. Saute five minutes stirring. Add two cups well-seasoned tomato soup. When heated, add two cups cooked and seasoned spaghetti. Toss about. Serve."

The Play

One of the year's most talked-about is Werthe's "Goat Song," produced by New York's Theater Guild. Story of a monster son, part goat, part man, born to a peasant couple of southern Europe. The monster escapes the coop which has held him in secrecy since infancy. Revolt!

Had sores on leg for more than year

Resinol healed in few weeks

"I have been troubled with sores on my leg for a year or more and all the many different remedies I tried did no good. One day I saw an advertisement for Resinol Ointment in the newspaper and I bought a jar of it. In less than three weeks my sores healed up, and have been well ever since. As my wife has been sick for nearly a year and had bed sores, I induced her to try this salve and the sores are healing splendidly. I have bought several jars of it and believe me it will always be on the shelf in my bathroom." (Signed) Alfred E. Baur, 1014 Monroe St., Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 24.—Advertisement.
