

When you drink tea— you should drink INDIA TEA

INDIA TEA, when made in the correct way, is the most stimulating and refreshing drink in the world. It soothes and rests the nerves. It increases energy. It helps digestion.

More than a million pounds of Tea are consumed every day in England. They know its bracing and stimulating properties. All classes drink it. In cottage and mansion, in workshop and factory, Tea is drunk many times a day, because it creates renewed energy, and invigorates you so.

When you have guests, serve afternoon tea. It makes things run smoothly, promotes cheerful conversation, and creates a pleasant atmosphere.

About one half of the world's tea supply comes from India. On the India Tea Bush grows the finest Orange Pekoe in the world.

How to make a perfect cup of tea.

Use an earthenware teapot. Put into it one teaspoonful of India Tea for each cup of Tea required. Be sure the water is poured into the teapot the moment it boils. Allow to stand for 5 minutes to infuse. Put a little milk or cream into each cup before serving the tea. It greatly improves the flavour. Then add sugar to taste.

but be sure you use INDIA TEA or a blend containing INDIA TEA

HOMES ON WEST SIDE INSPECTED

Residents Urged to Clean Up Surroundings.

Thousands of homes and business places were to be visited today in Mount Jackson and Haughville by Fire Chief Jesse A. Hutsell and his inspectors in quest of fire hazards. Residents were urged to clean up their homes and surroundings as a part of the clean up and paint up campaign conducted by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The city firemen began their inspections Tuesday by visiting approximately 1,600 residences in West Indianapolis. The firemen received the greatest cooperation from every one, declared Inspector Bernard Lynch, who is assisting Chief Hutsell and Horace W. Carey, fire prevention division chief.

Thursday the firemen will inspect north Indianapolis. Friday they will visit Brightwood. The day preceding the inspections a fire truck visits that section of the city, announcing the visit the next day.

CLASS DEMAND HINDERS POLICE

ed crime and vice eliminated. But these same bankers had managed to obtain the assignment of policemen to stand guard inside their banks. When I withdrew the policemen there was an outcry. The bankers felt they were a privileged class, but I could see no reason for their not employing their own guards.

The bankers then lost their interest in the civic fight.

Trafficmen Shifted

We began shifting traffic policemen at regular intervals. They had been kept too long at the same posts, they had made friends and permitted these friends, mostly influential business men, to violate traffic ordinances. Some of these posts were worth thousands of dollars a year to the policemen.

Another clamor arose. Bankers and business men swamped by office and the mayor's with complaints. The Chamber of Commerce refused to support the war because the persistent effort to enforce the law impartially, on rich and poor alike, had affected the hotel business. They said salesmen and other travelers avoided Philadelphia on week-ends because liquor could not be purchased in the hotels.

The churches and church people were sincere, but they were pacifists. They said, let's do it painlessly, without offense to our rich contributors who sit in the front pews. The Committee of Seventy, a so-called reform organization, was a dud. The Kiwanis, the Rotary and similar business groups took no active part in the war, though some did pass resolutions. The Law Enforcement League, not a strong organization, did stand up and is now "in bad" in consequence.

Parsons Pacific

There are no fighting parsons in Philadelphia. All seemed to be afraid of the money suppliers. One prominent clergyman told me he intended to break the law whenever he felt like it.

There are hundreds of traffic violations every day and it is this privilege-demanding class that commits most of them. The president of the Chamber of Commerce, Charles P. Vaughan, was twice arrested for speeding. I wouldn't help him. He appealed to a magistrate and, after an affectionate scene, escaped punishment.

These people really demand privileges—they don't merely request them. A world-renowned philanthropist, who lives in Philadelphia, insisted on being given a courtesy card—a card that would permit him to park his car anywhere he pleased and to violate other minor laws. When it was refused he cooled off on reform. Philadelphia's leading banker, one of the wealthiest men in America, appealed to me personally several times to renew such a card for him. He had carried one for many years. Refused, he, too, cooled.

Double Lives Led

Pillars of the church and of society wanted to be considered on the side of law and order, but many of them were violators of the law. They had liquor in their homes, drank in public, had it at the dinner-dances they gave in the hotels for their children. How could they aid in the war?

The privilege-demanders transferred their allegiance from police headquarters to the magistrates. It was amusing to see men and women prominent in religious, social and business circles making a fuss over magistrates who were former policemen or plumbers.

To eliminate this form of hypocrisy we must classify all citizens. Those with $10,000,000 should have blue buttons showing they were permitted to commit any crime on the calendar, including murder. Those with $100,000, white buttons, permitting robbery, burglary and assault and battery. Those with $25,000, red buttons, permitting only

Color Effects to Be Detailed

Why men love red-headed girls and prefer loud neckties and Nile-green socks will be explained to the Indianapolis Advertising Club Thursday noon at the Claypool by Arthur S. Allen of New York in his talk on "Color in Advertising."

Allen will tell what colors give magazine advertising attractiveness; what are the most effective color combinations for packages, catalogs and booklets covers. He is considered one of the Nation's foremost authorities on color in advertising and printing and his discussion will include a survey of the effect of colors on the mind.

Makes Race for State Senator

Anderson Ketchum

Anderson Ketchum of Greensburg, deputy clerk of the State Supreme Appellate Courts, announced today that he will "stump" four southern Indiana counties in his coming race for the Democratic nomination for State Senator.

Ketchum boasts seventeen years' active participation in politics, entering the game when he was only 15 years of age. He is a member of the Decatur County bar, having studied law with his brother, Gates Ketchum, now Rush County prosecutor. His coming campaign will carry him to Bartholomew, Decatur, Franklin and Union Counties, from which one Senator will be elected this fall.

Ketchum is a member of the Methodist Church, the American Legion, the Knights of Pythias and the Odd Fellows. He served three enlistments in the Indiana National Guard and was a non-commissioned infantry officer during the war. He is married.

violation of traffic laws. All under $25,000 would have no buttons and be punishable for any offenses they might commit—as they are now.

This would simplify the work of the police. It would also inspire citizens to greater efforts, in order to advance from the red to the white and from the white to the blue-button class.

Works That Way

It is not as silly as it sounds, for it works pretty much that way, without the buttons. A cheap saloon, selling beer, is raided, the beer confiscated, the owner arraigned, tried and convicted, his place padlocked. The wealthy hotel owner escapes. He has money and influence. The poor man plays cards in a cheap club and is arrested in a raid; the wealthy man gambles for high stakes in a fashionable club and is free of annoyance.

The liquor laws, the vice laws, the gambling laws, are all class legislation. The poor cannot afford to buy good liquor at today's bootleg prices. They drink poison liquor. The wealthy man, if he didn't stock up before prohibition, buys it at his club or hotel.

So, by divine right, position rules, and the police plod on, opposed by those who can hire skilled lawyers and have millions behind them, unsupported by the very people who cry most loudly for law and order.

Again I must say, considering everything, the political situation, the apathy and pacifism of the churches, the open antagonism of the privileged class and the constant temptations offered, the police of Philadelphia did remarkably well.

Officers of the Indianapolis branch of the National Letter Carriers' Association today wired Hoosier Senators and Congressmen urging their support of a bill boosting postmen's pensions.

The measure makes 62 years the retirement age with the privilege of working an additional three years, requires 30 years service to make postal employees eligible to receive a pension and increases the present monthly pension of $60 to $100. Indorsement of the bill was given Tuesday night at the Chamber of Commerce.

Did Not Have Hands on Wheel, Officer Says.

A musical driver, who, it is said, paid more attention to a harmonica than to the steering wheel, was arrested early today by police on a reckless driving charge. Twelve motorists were taken Tuesday night.

Motorcycle Policeman Reinhardt said he arrested Robert Britton, 20, 212 S. Delaware St., on the reckless driving charge after the young man had driven his car for more than two blocks without placing his hands on the steering wheel. He was playing a harmonica as he drove.

Alleged speeders were: William Shaw, 21, of 1523 S. St. P. R. Whistler, 25, of 1616 Wade St., and Arthur Lamb, 24, of 307 E. North St.; Clarence Raymond, 27, of 2329 Stuart St.; E. Skillman, 21, of 3201 E. Tenth St., and C. B. Wheeler, 27, Fairview Settlement. Fred A. Gorsuch, 49, of 306 S. Warman Ave., and Herbert Willard, 25, Fountainview, Ind., were charged with reckless driving.

Helpless After 15 Years of Asthma

Cough and Wheeze Were Stopped Two Years Ago. Well Ever Since.

Any one who has been tortured by asthma or bronchial trouble will be glad to read how these troubles were ended for Mrs. George Klefer, Route B. Box 133, Indianapolis. She writes:

"I had suffered from asthma for fifteen years. I took everything any one told me, such as electric treatments, serums and chiropractic treatments. I was told I inherited asthma and there was no cure for it. "I was so bad I couldn't do my housework, such as sweeping, washing or anything. Could hardly walk across the house on account of my breathing. In fact, they could hear me breathe clear out in the yard. I began Nacor in September, 1925, and purchased three bottles of it. It used to be that I would have to sit up in a chair for four or five nights at a time. The second night after beginning Nacor I slept in bed all night. I have not noticed any asthma in over two years' breathing time, no wheezing at all and sleep fine all night."

You will enjoy reading many other letters from the people who have recovered after years of suffering from asthma, bronchitis and severe chronic coughs, and have had no return of the trouble. These letters, and also an interesting booklet giving information of vital importance about these diseases, will be sent free by Nacor Medicine Co., 413 State Life Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind. No matter how serious your case, call or write today for this free information. It may point the way back to health for you, as it has for thousands of others.—Advertisement.

PRISON BLAMED FOR ACTION OF DR. ROSS

Mother Says Sixteen Years Behind Bars Have Played Tricks With Mind of Her Boy.

The 76-year-old mother of Dr. N. B. Ross, fugitive Muncie slayer, believes sixteen years of prison confinement have played tricks with the brain of her boy—her nurse.

Mrs. Lucinda Sisson, living with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Walsh, "who are awfully good to me," at 3801 E. Thirty-Eighth St., today said she believed "his mind's rambling," that Dr. Ross would have gone back to prison, April 1, if his mentality had not been upset by the horrors of prison life.

Mrs. Walsh went shopping Jan. 23. She admonished her mother not to go out because of the icy side-walks. But the mailman left a letter in the box.

Broke Her Hip

"I thought it might be from my poor boy," Mrs. Sisson explained. She fell and broke her hip. A thirty-day parole was secured for Dr. Ross so that he might help take care of his mother.

He stayed each night, every half hour giving her medicine. He "got in touch with people," asking them to work for a permanent parole for him.

The thirty days elapsed. A thirty day extension was granted but no more extensions could be secured. Dr. Ross left April 1 to return to prison. Officials started a nation-wide hunt for him April 5, he having disappeared.

"It was politics," Mrs. Sisson said emphatically.
