

LUCY GATES IS GUEST STAR IN CHOIR CONCERT

Caleb Mills Hall Filled for Program of Coloratura Soprano.

A full house greeted the Mendelssohn Choir and Lucy Gates, coloratura soprano, the guest star of the evening last night at Caleb Mills Hall.

Elmer Steffen led the program by conducting the choir as usual in the national anthem, followed by the salutation number by Pecchia, which evoked great applause.

Miss Gates then opened her program with "Hymn to the Sun," by Rimsky-Korsakoff. The choir followed with three Negro folk songs that were well rendered and Miss Gates closed the first part of the program with "Hymn to the Madonna," accompanied by the women's voices.

The second part opened with three songs by Gates by Regner, Dalcroze and Greig, and she was forced to give an encore, singing an arrangement of Riley's "Orphan Annie," which brought down the house.

The choir followed by two numbers, then Miss Gates sang a song by Handel, Greig's "Henschel," and gave her inimitable "echo" song, one of the most difficult songs arranged for a coloratura voice, and so great was the applause that she was compelled to give another encore, singing "Back to Old Virginia," which nearly precipitated another riot.

The program closed with the prayer number from "Cavalleria Rusticana," with Miss Gates, accompanied by the Mendelssohn Choir, and every one went away voting it a most enjoyable and well spent evening. (Reviewed by T. D.)

Her Own Way. A Story of a Girl of Today

FIRE MEETS FIRE

"Did you meet Gerald at the restaurant, Miss Dean?"

"No, I only met your son last night. You see, this friend of mine got a black eye in the melee and I was still in my black maid's costume, so we were hunting an inconspicuous place to eat when Mr. Hathaway, who it seems, is a partner of my friend."

"You don't mean that Irish Jimmy Costello, do you young woman?"

"My name is Miss Dean, Mr. Hathaway."

"Yes, yes, I know, young — Miss Dean."

"Your son, sir, said that Jimmy Costello was not only his partner but his friend."

"He's a good boy and a smart boy — Jimmy Costello," remarked Mr. Hathaway, Senior, "but I wish he and Gerald weren't such good friends."

"Of course, Mr. Hathaway, I can't understand that because I think Jimmy is perhaps one of the most wonderful boys in the world."

The old man cocked an eye at me over a pair of nose glasses that hung around his neck on a broad ribbon. I really think he wanted to wink at me, but restrained himself.

"Oh, of course, of course, he sputtered, 'but let's get back to your story.'"

I reminded him that he was the one who had gone off on a tangent about Jimmy.

As I said this I heard a queer little suppressed exclamation. I turned and faced the secretary whose eyes were bulging out of her head. Evidently no one in that office had ever dared to be a human being before when the autocrat of the Hathaway fortune spoke.

"I confess I began to be a little nervous myself."

"Be yourself, Judy, be yourself."

I kept repeating inside of me, especially as I heard Mr. Hathaway tell his secretary that she might go to luncheon and I knew that he had understood the suppressed little incoherency as well as I did.

When she had left he turned to me with a laconic:

"Go on."

"There isn't much more to tell, Mr. Hathaway. Only this." I held out the splendid bag.

"This morning I got this by special messenger and it, isn't mine."

MARRIAGES MADE IN HEAVEN? NAY; NOT SO

Martha Lee Says

"Marriages are not made in heaven," is what a well-known London psychotherapist has discovered and is revealing to the world. What a man of wisdom that doctor is!

But he's not the only person who has discovered this fact. Lots of young folks have found it out after marring on the love-at-first-sight superstitions and the "Thou wert made for me" patent ideal. And I don't think anybody in Heaven would want to take the responsibility for some of the marriages that are made. It stands to reason that marriage has to be made from day to day and year to year. Because marriage should be based on mutual love and love is something that grows with contact. For love is service and service begets service. Thus the ideal marriage is one of thoughtful consideration, loving kindness, of fellowship and good will, humor and understanding. Holding Heaven responsible for marriage is easy, for most folks rush in where angels fear to tread, and they're the first to expect too much from marriage without effort on their part, and consequently grow resentful and fault-finding. Any bubble bursts from pricking.

Not Made in Heaven

Dear Miss Lee: I am a married girl of 19, have been married one year and four months. My husband loves me, but he thinks I am just a plaything. He thinks me around like I am a boy and can stand it. He is 22 and I am 19. I don't like him and he refuses to dress up and love another man, but I didn't realize it until it was too late, but I haven't been with him for a year, but I know he loves me and I can't get him off my mind. I dress like the modern girl and wear my dresses about three inches below the knee and just like the modern girl and wear my band garters all about it, but I don't like it. I don't like to talk and cut up in the right way, but he disapproves of it. I do not like it.

AN UNHAPPY WIFE.

Now see here, my dear, marriage has probably palled on you some, what and you're looking for a new thrill and can't find it in your husband. But you won't find it in the other man either, so put him out of your mind. If he were to show up tomorrow and ask you to marry him you'd probably discover that you'd forgotten his prominent teeth, or that his hair was unromantically thin, and that he didn't look any better in a close-up, than your own comfortable young husband, who is still just in the puppy stage and likes a frolic now and then. Marriages are not regulated by the Powers-that-be. They equip you with the gray matter and expect you to use it in the matter of marriage as well as everything else. If you don't do it no fault of theirs. So it's up to you and your husband to make a success of your marriage by going about it in the right way, trying to help and boost each other with kindness and understanding.
