

S. H. S. TEACHERS MAY FIGHT FOR LARGER SCHOOL

Decide They Have Right to Take Active Interest in Controversy.

Shortridge High School teachers have a right to take an active interest in the controversy over the location and erection of the new Shortridge, and may enter the fight in an endeavor to have a large school built, it was decided at a teachers' meeting Wednesday afternoon at the school.

Figures on growth of the school city, showing that 2,325 children will desire to enter the new Shortridge when it is ready for occupancy, were turned over to the teachers.

The instructors reiterated their stand, outlined in a petition to the school board, that a 2,500-capacity school should be erected at Thirty-Fourth and Meridian Sts., instead of an 1,800 capacity school there or a larger school on another site.

Action of the teachers directly supports the contention of the board minority faction composed of Fred Bates Johnson and Charles R. Yoke, that the larger structure should be erected at Thirty-Fourth St. Mrs. Lillian Sedwick, majority faction member, wants a larger school at Forty-Sixth St. and Washington Blvd., and President Theodore Vonnegut and Charles W. Kern, chairman of buildings and grounds committee, have asserted they believe an 1,800 capacity structure at Thirty-Fourth St., with a supporting junior high school system, will relieve the congestion in the local high schools.

A special board meeting will be held at 4 p. m. Friday. A deadlock is expected because of the stand of the majority faction.

Her Own Way. A Story of a Girl of Today

AN INKLING OF A FAMILY QUARREL

"Take my bag, my dear," said Mr. Hathaway in a very paternal manner. "Take it and rest assured that I'll make the manager of the Beaux Arts pay for it many, many times over."

"There's only one thing I want you to promise me—that you won't say a word to Gerald about coming here. I also have a bone to pick with that young man. What right has he interfering in my affairs when he has declined to have any responsibility in my business at all?"

"Please, please, Mr. Hathaway, don't have any trouble with your son. He would think I was rather a squealer. It was mighty kind of him to take my side in this affair and I wouldn't want him to think that I didn't consider him a regular fellow—one of the few I've met since coming to this town."

The old gentleman looked quite pleased. I could see he had a sneaking liking for his son, anyway.

"I won't say anything to him, young lady, unless he opens the subject, but if you want to go back to the restaurant in your old place, I'll see you're at the Beaux Arts hat-checking station tomorrow night and that every man Friday in the place comes up and apologizes to you."

"That would be very nice—not! I shall be afraid of my life anyway after you get through with those people. Thank you just the same, Mr. Hathaway, but I wouldn't go back for your whole chain of restaurants, let alone the Beaux Arts. I'm going out to hunt a new job."

"You'll get it, young woman, you'll get it. Indeed, I'll give you one in my office if you want it."

"Thank you, sir, but I don't know anything about office work. I think I'm going to try for a place in a department store. I saw there was an advertisement for a clerk this morning in the papers, at Alvard's."

"Good luck to you then, only wish the young men of today started out in the same fashion for what they wanted."

"Well, if what Jimmy Costello told me was true, that's just what your son did and you didn't seem to approve of that with any great enthusiasm."

"You're very frank my dear. You don't seem to have any more fear of me than my son."

"Why should I be afraid of you? I think you're a very nice old gentleman."

"Good Lord!" Mr. Hathaway exclaimed. "I'm not so very old, you know."

"I beg your pardon, sir. If you'd gotten rid of a fear of a man like your father, you'd never be afraid of any other man. Good morning, Mr. Hathaway."

PRETTY SPRING WEDDING HELD AT CATHEDRAL

Miss Mildred Brosnan Bride of Walter Joseph Stuhldreher.

Miss Mildred Brosnan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Brosnan, 1471 N. Delaware St., became the bride of Walter Joseph Stuhldreher at the St. Peter and Paul Cathedral Wednesday morning.

Lighted with tall cathedral candles, and with great baskets of pink roses, lilies and greenery, the chancel was a beautiful background for the ceremony, performed by Bishop Joseph Chartrand, preceding mass by the Rev. Edgar O'Connor.

Miss Frances Spencer, as the guests were being seated, played a group of bridal airs and during the ceremony played "At Dawning," "Ave Maria" was sung by Edward La Shelle.

The bride, entering on the arm of her father, made a lovely scene in a georgette crepe gown of a pastel shade, trimmed in ecru lace and with transparent pink hat trimmed in pink roses. She carried an arm bouquet of pale pink roses. Miss Frances Krieg, the bride's only attendant, wore shell pink crepe, with girle in delicate rainbow shades, an orchid transparent hat, and she carried pink and lavender sweet peas.

Harry A. Stuhldreher, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the Columbia Club. Immediate members of the families were present. Mr. and Mrs. Stuhldreher left immediately on a wedding trip to the East.

The bride's traveling costume was beige, with hat and shoes of slightly lighter shades. Mrs. Stuhldreher is a graduate of Butler University and a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. Mr. Stuhldreher is a graduate of Notre Dame University. They will be at home after June 1 at 3543 N. Pennsylvania St.

IT'S WELCOME, TOO

A feeling for the longer skirt is indicated by the "poodle" of chiffon that are added to some of the smartest Parisian frocks.

YOUTHFUL STYLE

Box coats with flaring lines, are often joined with a finely pleated skirt to make a very attractive suit.

ATTENTION, FLAPPERS

The most common type of blouse to wear with the new tailors is the plain silk skirt with turn-down collar such as boys wear, in colors as well as in white.

IN ALL LENGTHS

Fringes were never more popular than now and are seen extensively on afternoon and evening coats as well as on frocks.

CHIFFON SUITS NEW

A very extreme French model for evening is of tulle with a full, bouffant skirt with flowers, outlining the waistline in the back, but not in the front.

PLAID HAT AND SCARF

To give a suit of dark shade and severe cut just the jazz note it needs was a plaid taffeta hat and scarf with it.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

The Papers Say

Dancing girls of Turkey now demand—and get—pay for tripping the light fantastic. A certain stag club in a town near Constantinople, composed of sons of old pashas who ruled harems, must hire their dancing entertainment these days and pay good shekels for the entertainment which their fathers had for merely providing shelter, food, and raiment.

At last! Some enterprising soul announces the discovery of a way to make silk stockings so they will not run! And just watch "us girls" ever own such! Ambitious stocking makers who turn them out while the woman pays and pays and pays for new ones every day or so, thanks to those measly "runs," will see to it that no anti-run invention ever hurts their business!

Pin Money

If you want pin money, Mrs. Honor Woman, who not raise snails? The French custom of masticating helpless snails with zeal and gusto is spreading in this country, too, we are told. Here's how to raise snails in the way that they would go! Strew a cellar with mulberry leaves during the summer months. Put trillions of baby snails in the cellar. Sprinkle the snails with water from time to time, then turn on an electric light. The snailish habit of coming out to food after a shower will work now. The snails will stick their heads out of their shells, when they are sprayed with milk and flour and become milk-bottle snails, are bottled, sold, and the lady gets richer than from raising mushrooms or dahlias.

Style Note

Spite of all the hue and cry about silk stockings, the girls wore them back in 1830. An old-time fashion book of that vintage speaks of fine white silk hose beneath which should be worn a second pair of pale pink cashmere ones.

Nothing new under the sun, at all! Maybe you thought the expression "high hat" sort of new. In the fascinating new book of "An Immigrant in Japan," by Theodore Geoffrey, the author tells of her shock in seeing her hitherto totally proper Japanese butler answer the door clad in undies only. To her remonstrances the butler showed an American ad of gents in nether garments and grinned. "Me new clothes all same as American boy. Very hi kara!" "hi kara," it seems, is Japanese slang for "high collar."

Here is sure relief for Constipation

You cannot be well and happy and be constipated—that is certain. Headache, dullness, sallow complexion, sickness and operations are caused by carelessness and our modern way of living. No laxative is effective that does not act on the entire bowel system. Just the emptying of the lower bowel does not give best results. The new accepted way is by taking KLOK-LAX at night. KLOK-LAX thoroughly cleans the entire bowel system. Your druggist will guarantee KLOK-LAX—in the "gold and black" box—18 tablets thirty-five cents.

JUST HOW FAR CAN A REAL GOOD SPORT GO?

Just what constitutes a good sport? How far can a good sport go and still be—nice and above reproach? In these days of rapidly changing moral codes that's a regular zig-zag question.

But it is one that girls are asking themselves and everyone else, and there's just about only one way to answer it—let your conscience be your guide. If you have no conscience then you'll probably be pretty rotten; but you won't care. If you do have a conscience it will regulate your life like a balance wheel.

Let your conscience be the regulator of your life, like the gyroscope of a huge ship which keeps it on an even keel in any kind of weather. We're all human, of the earth earthy, subject to human failings and influenced by human follies. This is not Utopia yet. As the writer of the letter below suggests, no woman could be happy living with an angel! Perfection does pull. On the other hand, you can't be happy indulging your own weaknesses and failings simply because you have them. Happiness lies only in making someone else happy. And making someone else happy usually means bringing yourself to a higher and better level.

The Good Sport

Dear Martha Lee: I have kept myself above reproach, but though I am not a flapper, but a girl in my early twenties, I refused to drink or smoke as the other women were doing. I was very modern, a former college man, popular, educated in every line of life, a man who fits in any group of people. The other night in a vague sort of way I thought of the attitude of these few seconds that evening with him I joined a few of his friends. I succeeded in being a good time at the beginning, but later the party became too rough. My dance spent money lavishly on good wines and other pleasures. My future husband did not want to have anything to do with me after that. I am not asking you whether I should give him up as I intend to marry him if he continues to want me. I do despise a hypocrite and a sissy. An angel would make a poor husband. I love him for all he is and do not wish to lose him. I don't see the attitude of these few seconds. But my question is: should I be reared in a strictly moral home, join him in the attitude of these few seconds and copy after the other women or should I keep myself above this?

LILLY.

I am sorry that I cannot print your whole letter as it is sound in philosophy and thought. You mistake me. I do not advise you to give him up. I realize that an angel doesn't make a good husband and love and companionship mean more on this earth than perfection. But, no, do not copy the other women. You do not have to drink, and smoke in order to keep from making yourself a "wet blanket" on the party. Don't be prudish. Tell them you just don't like the taste of cigarettes and wines, and as long as you are going to take the man, you'll have to take his friends too, unless you can subtly win him away by being such a fine girl that he'll be ashamed to make you go with his friends. But you'll have to be careful not to overdo it, or be forever attempting to reform him, or his old friends and ways will be more attractive than ever.

DENIAL BY MINERS' HEAD

Lewis Says Modification of Wage Agreement Is Not Being Sought.

A denial was made today by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, that field agents are agitating for modification of the Jacksonville wage agreement as a means of getting a number of idle coal mines in operation and affording wider employment.

Officers of the union are opposed to any change in the existing wage rate set forth in the agreement. Lewis said in a letter to B. W. Elkins, managing editor of the Daily American at West Frankfort, Ill.
